Clubs and organizations offering many opportunities for enjoyment and learning were open to students of the Harold L. Richards cluster. Athletic clubs consumed the excess physical energy of the students, while organizations such as Debate gave them a chance to demonstrate their intellectual abilities. Most students took advantage of the activities offered and engaged in at least one of them during after-school hours. Student support of the organizations was inspiring to the faculty sponsors who donated hours of service to this special aspect of education. Students polished their culture as they learned to cooperate with others.

Students mixed fun with achievement

School life proved active and colorful

Social events added enjoyment to education

Student life began early in the morning when crowded buses carried chattering students to the three buildings of the Harold L. Richards cluster. Juggling lockers open, sharing bits of conversation and jokes with friends, and getting to class in five minutes proved to be a busy routine. Most of the students enjoyed their lunch period when they could appease their appetites and exchange the latest news with friends. A major part of student life was building a satisfying social life with old and new friends attending the many events during the year. The dances, sports events, and plays all helped to keep the students in high spirits and to make school very enjoyable and exciting.

Social events highlighted senior

Perhaps the biggest change at Harold L. Richards High School was achieved in the many new courses made available to students. More specialized, varied and interesting English courses as well as the new textbooks and modern laboratories of the science department stressed preparation for both college and adult life. Those students interested in a future office vocation were given new opportunities to learn comptometer operation, data processing and key punch skills. The music department offered new courses in piano instruction and the history of music. The enlarged art department took full advantage of the new supplies and equipment available to expand their programs. Enjoyed by the ever-growing student body was a completed and smooth-functioning new campus building to implement the new curricula. Now three modern buildings served student needs. Because the enlarged academic program was deliberately designed to offer a challenge as well as variety, it enabled many hundreds of interested students to realize a fruitful and successful year of learning.

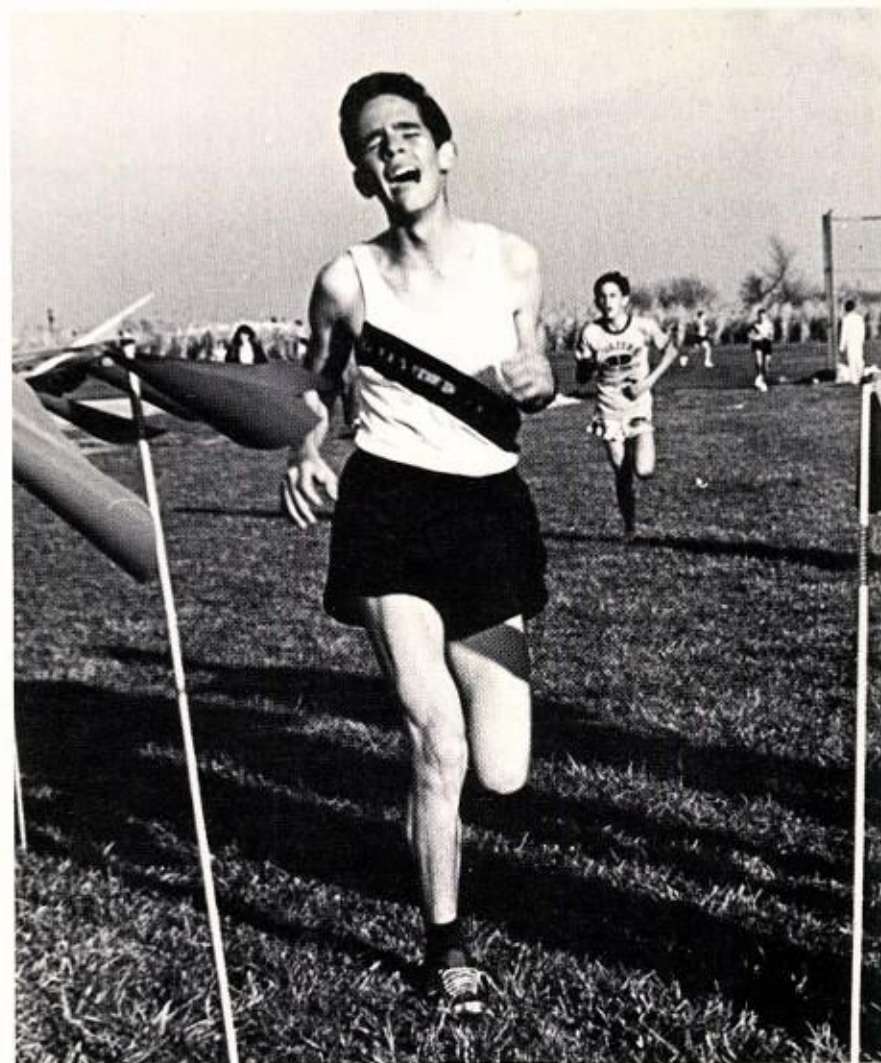

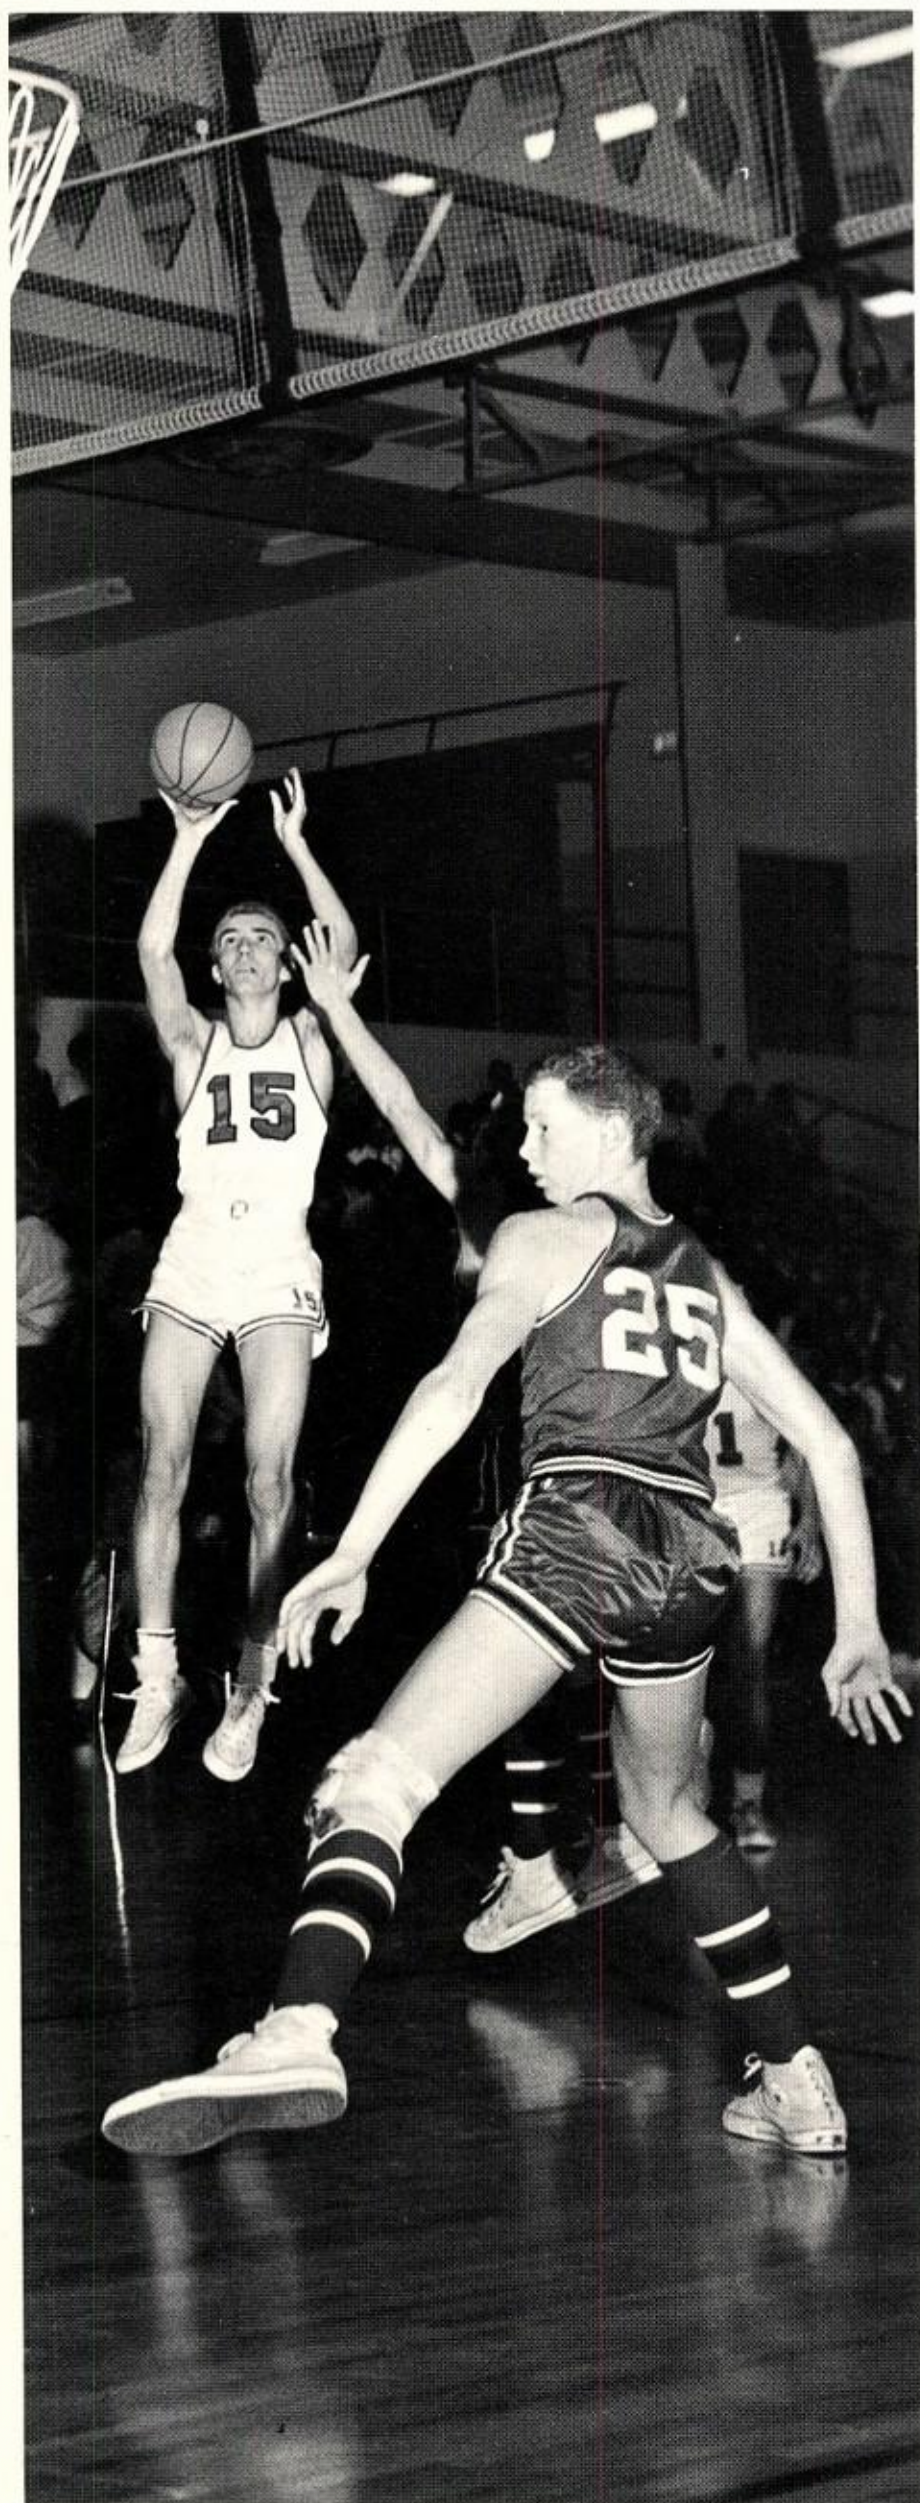

Academic goals required concentration and

Bulldogs showed

Determination was necessary in the athletic programs when Harold L. Richards High School joined the ranks of the South Suburban League. The Bulldogs were invited to match their skills with those of older, more established schools. Sportsmanship, skill, toil and good conduct began to form a tradition for future Bulldogs to follow. Inspired by the large crowds and general support of the students, the Bulldogs were able to withstand the rigors and demands of the South Suburban League. Everyone was proud of the manner in which they met their challenges. The dynamic action of the athletic teams never ceased to thrill the fans. The total athletic program was designed to build a strong body and strengthen the character of a young man. Our teams have faithfully practiced fair play. The variety of sports offered gave most students the privilege of participating in experiences that became valuable lessons for them.

growing skill and determination

School spirit inspired team action

Dr. Harold L. Richards coordinated the administrative staff, which organized the resources needed to make a high school career very beneficial scholastically, socially, and physically for all students. It was with great sadness, however, that the staff paid final tribute to the dedicated service of Mr. R. Pooler, who passed away last summer. A new administrative assistant was later appointed. Mr. D. E. Bapst took charge of registration and of state and federal programs involved in our schools.

The administrative staff concerned itself constantly with the educational welfare and good citizenship of all the students. Recommendations for college and job references were carefully prepared and dispatched to help graduates. Besides guiding the improvement of instructional programs and planning for the construction and upkeep of buildings, the staff contributed their competence and spirit to the various activities that students enjoyed and stimulated wholesome communication between school and community.

FACULTY

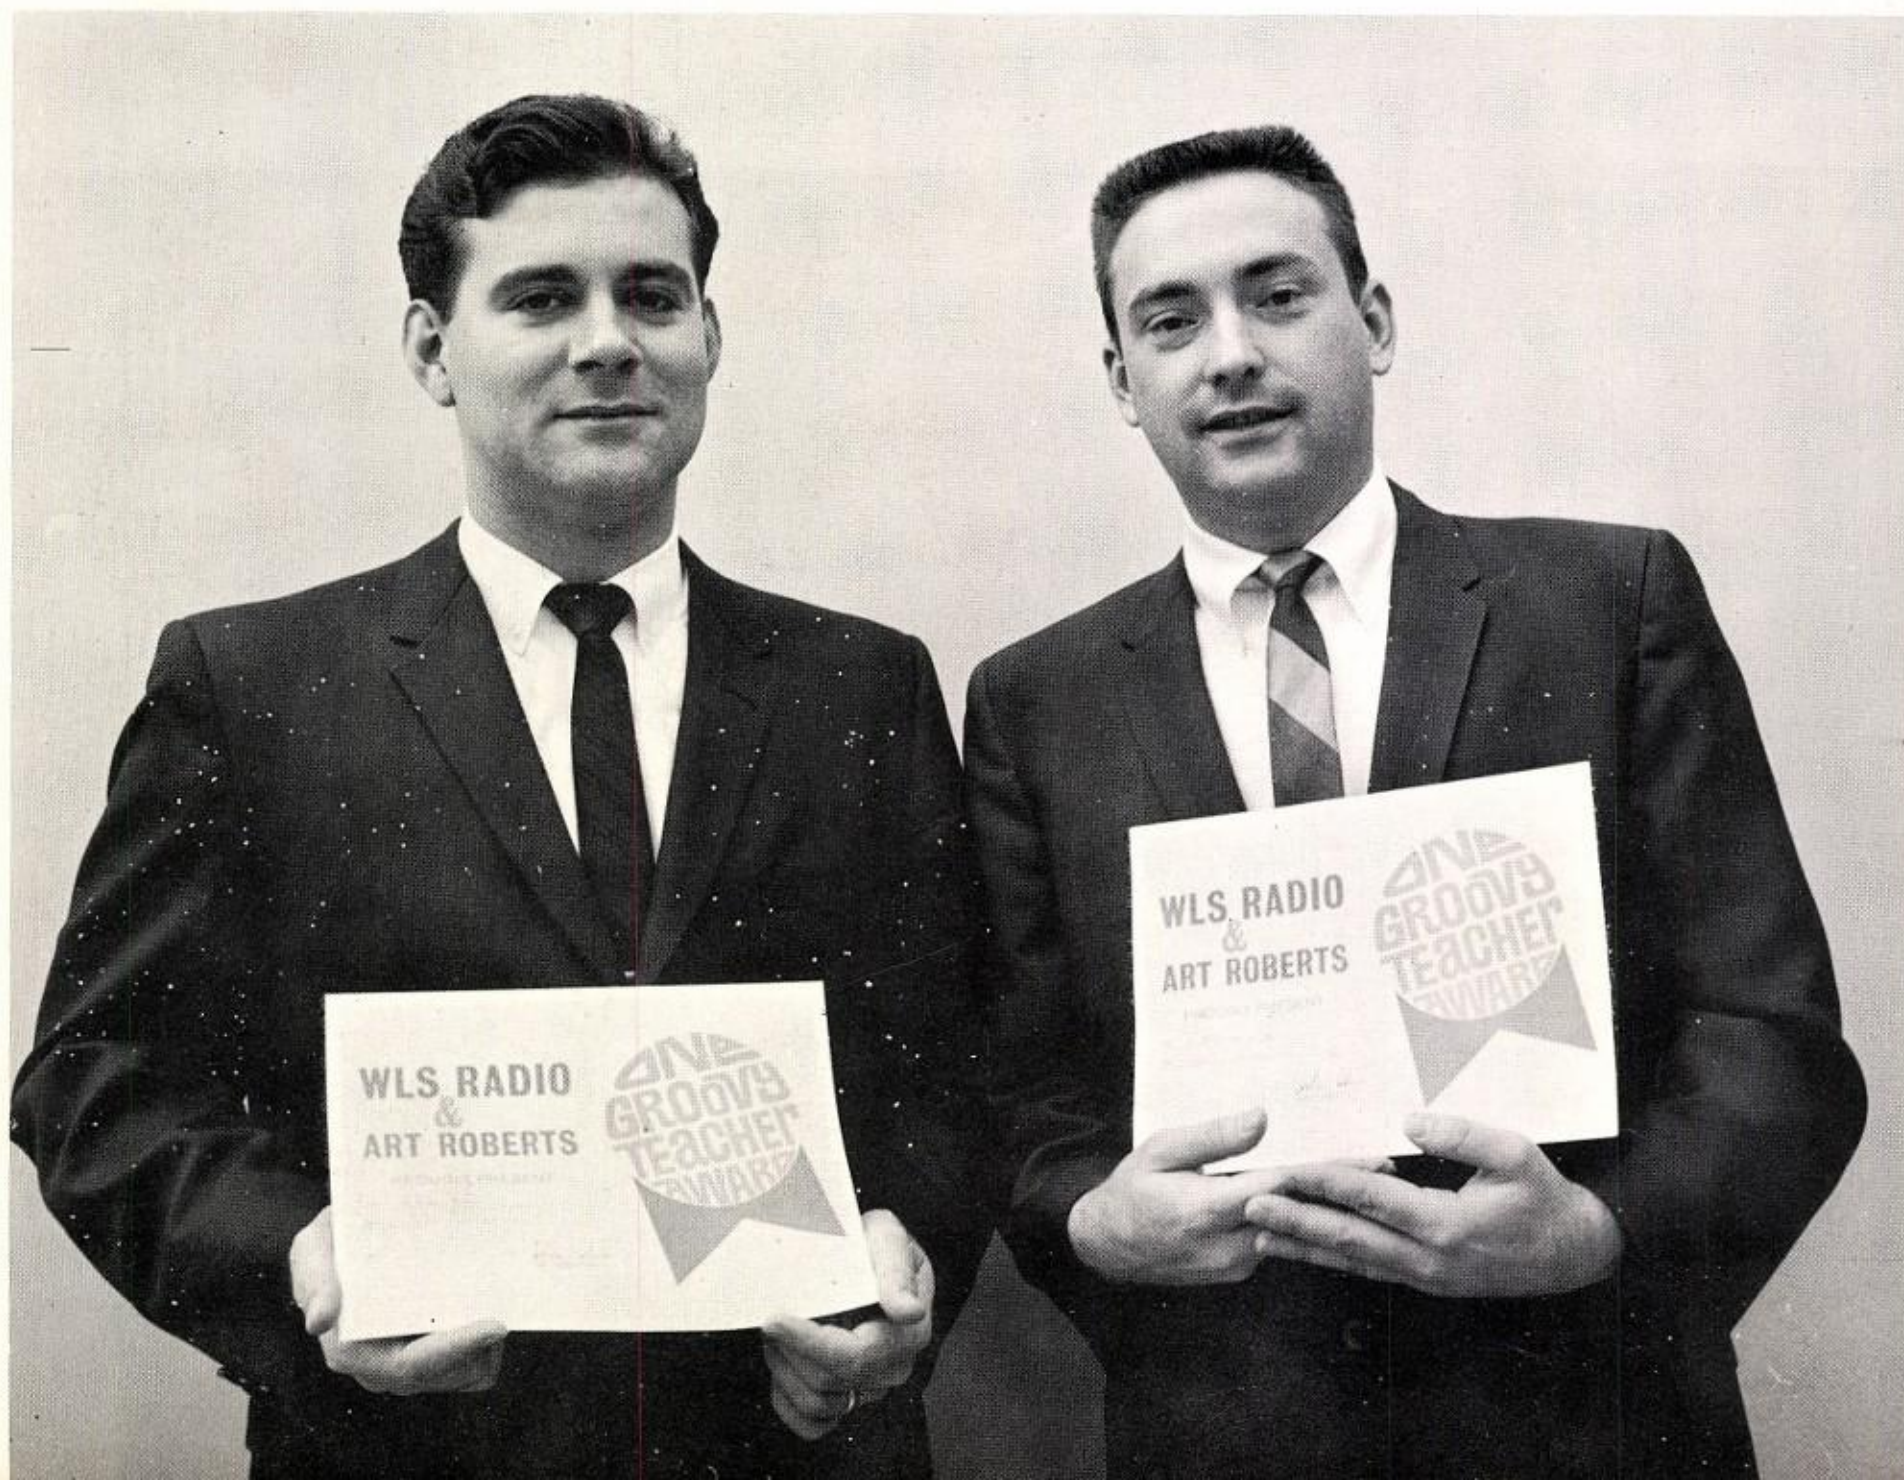

WLS radio presented "Groovey Teacher"

Knowledge, help, and understanding were offered in abundance to Harold L. Richards students by the faculty. The faculty regularly encouraged students to do independent thinking and to evaluate subject matter for themselves. Members of the faculty achieved this by stimulating discussions of controversial issues and by encouraging student participation. The relaxed, informal atmosphere and friendly relationships that existed in most classrooms encouraged learning.

Through genuine interest and constant communication with the students, faculty members gained respect and admiration. Two members, Mr. Hansen and Mr. Frigo, received special recognition through awards presented by a popular Chicago radio station, WLS. Many of the faculty members became recognized as distinct personalities and were often present at school affairs. Members often sponsored extra-curricular activities to aid students in their social development as well as contributing to their mental growth. The faculty eagerly assisted students in worthwhile undertakings.

Harold L. Richards students were very proud of their two "Groovey Teachers,"

Mr. Frigo and Mr. Hansen, whose awards were announced on WLS radio.

P.F.A. hoped to strengthen relationship

Plans were discussed for the Golden Jubilee Scholarships by Mr. Craig, Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Schurr, Mrs. Nyman, Mrs. Nelson and Mr. Schriener.

This year the P.F.A. provided many scholarships for worthy students. The scholarships were awarded on the basis of academic record, extra activities and a desire to teach. Funds for these scholarships were raised mainly through the membership fees paid to the P.F.A. Letters were also written to businessmen who seemed to be likely donors, and they were asked for donations. The P.F.A. started out by awarding only two scholarships, but last year eleven general and one teaching scholarships were awarded, totaling $4,000.

Parents with students enrolled in choir found themselves conferring with choir director, Mr. Geis, about the up-coming Christmas concert.

Mr. Tysall gave a mother a definite idea of how her son was progressing by having her jot down the student's grade average.

Consulting with Mr. Ladwig about her daughter's progress in General Economics, Mrs. Alvin Busch benefited from the parent-faculty conferences.

Mr. Johnson directed people to the Parent-Faculty Association meeting, which was held after parent conferences.

between parents and faculty

Mr. Verdun, Mrs. Barz and Mrs. Lindgren boosted Parent-Faculty Association membership to finance a bigger scholarship fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith learned about the progress of their son in physics from Mr. Lanb, commenting here on the gas valves.

Seniors undoubtedly displayed great enthusiasm and school spirit during their final year of high school. The attendance at dances and sports events consisted of a large percentage of the seniors enrolled. Seniors put many hours and much pride into their activities and seemed to be doing everything possible to make their last year the most successful and enjoyable. For most of the seniors the past year proved to be the busiest as they devoted much of their experience and time to extra-curricular activities. A great many put forth an extra amount of energy academically in order to raise their class rank, achieve recognition, or meet college entrance requirements. The final year was the year for decisions, and many minds matured quickly to meet the demands. Preparation for careers and college required initiative and work. Seniors set high standards in their combined effort to earn respect from all.

SENIORS

SENIORS

The senior class of 1967 produced quite a few honorable and promising Americans. Many received awards and recognition for their efforts during their last year of high school. Janie Stevens qualified as a finalist in the National Merit competition. Steve Culver, Dianne Dado, George Engelmann, Ken Hamel, Robert Hanson, and Chris Pazoles were among those who received letters of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Board. College bound seniors spent many extra hours applying to colleges and taking the ACT, SAT, and other tests required for college entrance. All seniors made decisions during the year which will affect their future lives. Many of the set goals, such as membership in National Honor Society or a scholarship, were accomplished and enabled many seniors to graduate with pride and dignity. Seniors served as the leaders in extra-curricular activities and were a fine inspiration to the underclassmen as they carried out their appointments with desire and brought distinction to their school.

Class officers often conferred with Mr. Johnson when planning senior activities. Mr. Ernest Johnson, senior principal, approved plans submitted by Ed Hastings, president, Chuck Dalke, secretary, Gary Buzanis, vice-president, and John Lazzara, treasurer.

Pictured in the Class of 1967 are those seniors who, at the time these pages went to press, could be expected in due course to become eligible for diplomas in June. A few seniors are not pictured because they did not have their portraits taken as prescribed. Some students who are eligible for graduation are not pictured because they did not complete their fourth year of secondary education at Harold L. Richards High School but elected instead to enroll in college on the basis of their accelerated three-year record. The GOLDEN YEAR disclaims any responsibility for final verification of the eligibility for graduation of any senior pictured, nor does it assume responsibility for the accuracy of the listed senior activity records since these were based on the seniors' claims of participation not necessarily approved by the organizations involved.

Vitality was evident in the participation of underclassmen in their studies and extra-curricular activities. Underclassmen were able to recognize and enjoy competition as they strove for perfection. They worked hard and long to make their organizations, parties and dances successful. Freshmen and juniors adjusted quickly to what they first found confusing at the new buildings. Through their experiences, underclassmen were able to gain a better understanding of themselves and others. Underclassmen were concerned with progressing educationally, and most of them took advantage of the inspiring new courses offered. They were faced with the responsibility of planning courses and activities to meet the requirements of their varied ambitions. Underclassmen contributed new and refreshing talent to our school, and those who deserved special praise were the athletes who worked at varsity level. During the eventful year, underclassmen exhibited the spirit, dedication and skill that will be necessary and helpful in the future.

Juniors attended the new campus building with pride and exhibited tremendous school spirit in all events of the year. A great number of the active supporters of dances and games were members of the junior class.

Many juniors faced difficult subjects such as Advanced Algebra and Chemistry. Attending the campus building provided the juniors with the opportunity for participating in the Driver Education program. Many juniors were pleased with the large new selection of English courses.

In preparation for their senior year, juniors selected a committee to make the important decision concerning the class ring design. As they looked ahead to consider their future vocation, a great number of juniors frequented the counseling office. Many juniors chose to experiment with the PSAT, ACT, and many other types of tests. Juniors planned carefully to meet various requirements and were determined to become qualified to take the role of leadership in their next year of education.

SOPHOMORES

NORTHEAST CLASS OFFICERS: Mary Kirinich, Secretary; Mr. Fessler, Sophomore Principal; Bob Pearson, President; George Brown, Treasurer; and Judy Weitzel, Vice-president.

Sophomores entered their second year of high school full of experience and advice to offer the freshmen. Many sophomores displayed leadership as they served as the organizers and officers of clubs and activities at the feeder buildings. Curriculum in the sophomore year proved to be more advanced and difficult. Sophomores were given their first taste of laboratory science and experienced the usual uneasiness during their first dissection. Most sophomores were required to read Great Expectations in English classes.

Sophomores not only attended the many functions throughout the year but also dedicated themselves to making them successful. Our sophomore athletic teams brought many victories to the records of Harold L. Richards. The Sophomore Night Party, which was sponsored and planned by the sophomore class was a tremendous success. All their enthusiasm contributed to the well-being of Harold L. Richards.

CANDIDS

An amusing skit entertained the guests at the Mother-Daughter Banquet.

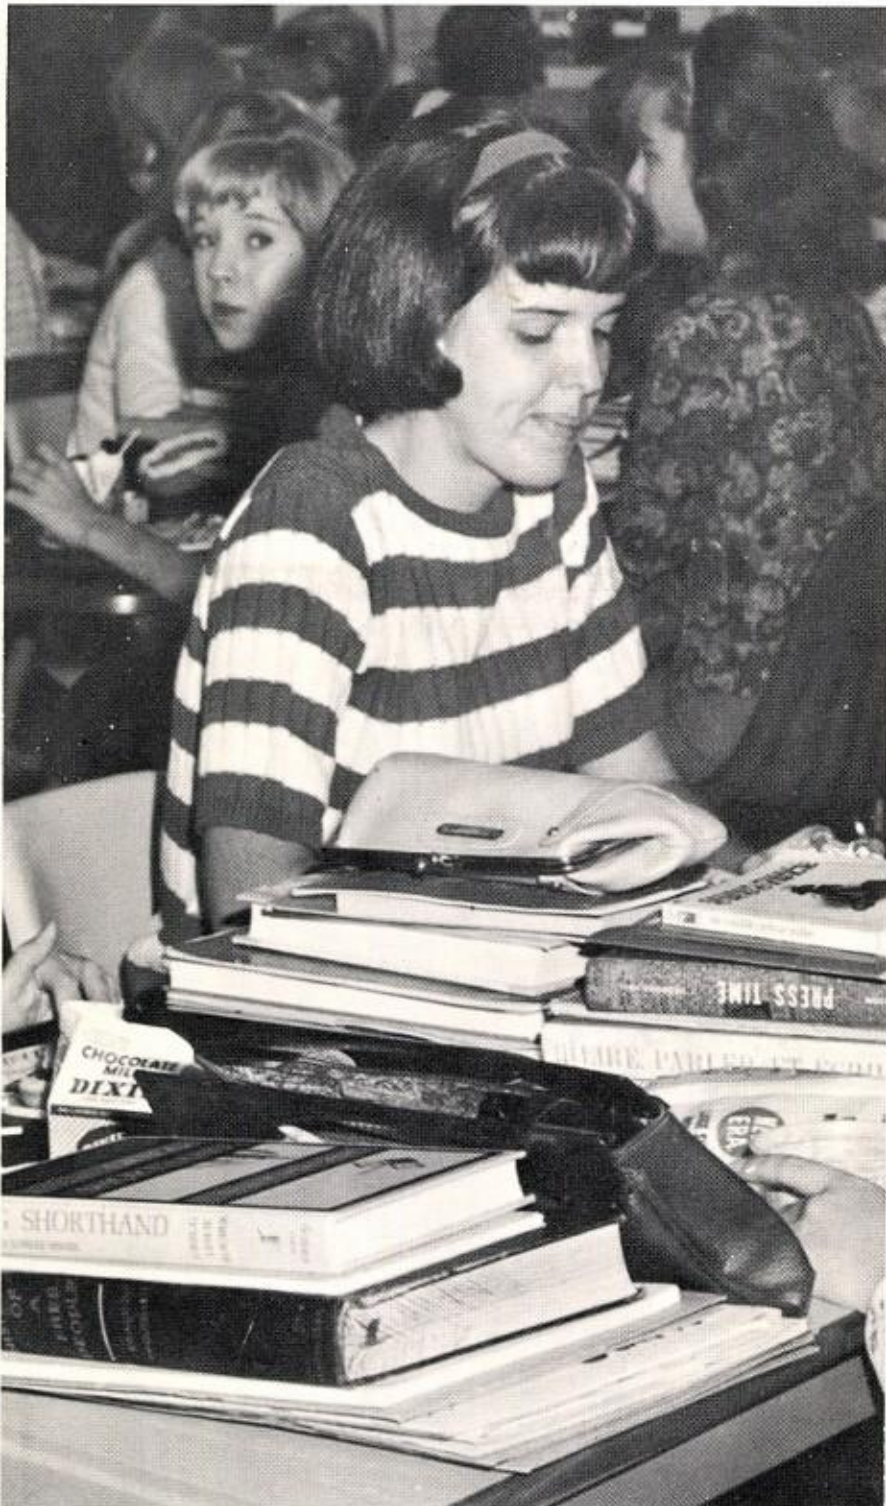

Jane Lausch found an exercise in typing business letters quite difficult but very useful.

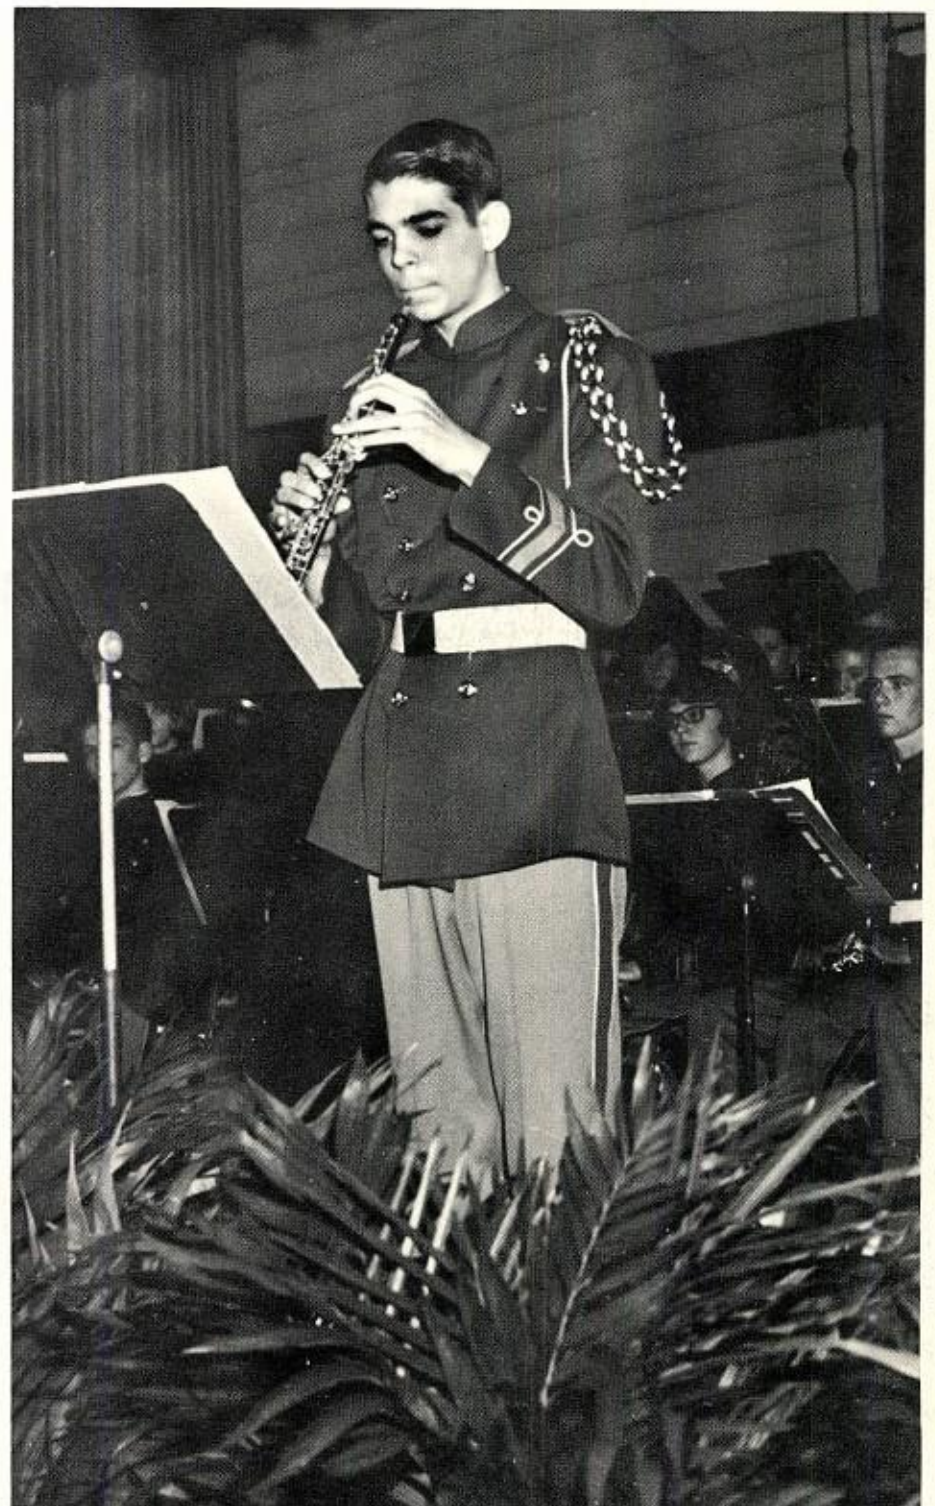

Colleen Bohne threatened Gene Hubacek, Larry Kennelly and Scott McNally with strong words and a firecracker during practice for the junior class play.

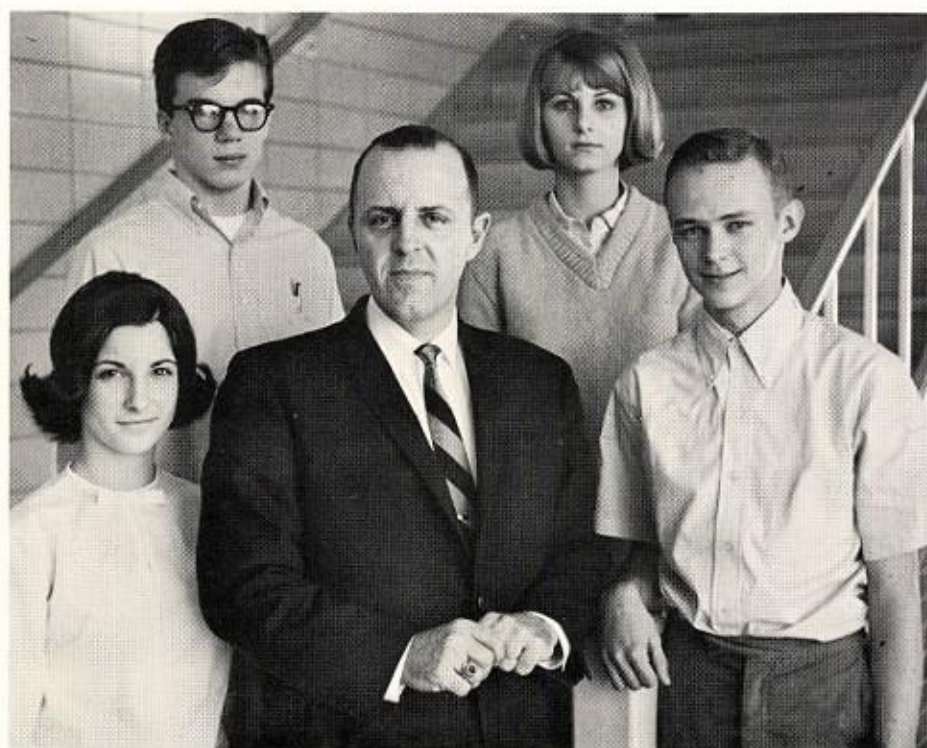

Moods varied in early morning social life in the cafeteria.

Loren Lesner, sophomore, added a talented touch to the band's performance with his oboe solo.

Full of questions, wonder and enthusiasm, the freshman class entered their first year of high school. Although inexperienced, the freshmen were able to develop a great amount of responsibility and maturity. The overwhelming participation in extra curricular activities represented their anxiousness to bring honor to Harold L. Richards.

NORTHWEST FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS: Dave Huff, President; Lynne Eickholt, Treasurer; Bob Davidovitch, Vice-president; Roxanne Babiarz, Secretary; and Mr. Frigo, Freshman Principal.

The freshman year was the year for learning and developing skills. This year introduced the freshmen to extra curricular activities. Freshmen were able to extend academic courses to clubs that suited their varied interests during the last period of the day. Sports events proved to be an exciting part of high school life. The freshman attendance at games was tremendous.

Many freshmen found the academic load, which included algebra and foreign languages, to be more difficult than in previous years. Most freshmen adjusted and became oriented to high school life quickly.

struggled to learn traditions

With help from sophomores, freshmen fell easily into the routine of daily bus-catching.

Student life was built around the academic courses offered at Harold L. Richards High School. Pupils were allowed to select from a wide variety of subjects. More choices were available to students as they progressed through the years of high school. Seniors were allowed many more electives than were the freshmen. A good portion of the students followed the recommended college preparation courses. Other students elected courses which would enable them to seek immediate careers.

Many students worked very hard during the year for a variety of motives. Some students set their goals towards college admissions, scholarships, or membership in the National Honor Society. Others were interested in art awards or home economic honors. The pressure of academic success became stronger as students neared the completion of high school. Seniors were especially conscious of grades and awards.

Changes in the curriculum proved to be worthy of their expectations. The English and Science Departments were especially successful in their revisions.

ACADEMICS

Art Department

Ron Wastelewski experimented with cray-pas and chalk on a sketch.

Inter-class communication was practiced in art classes. Art students contributed posters and also illustrated characters for many classes. Mrs. Huss, the Campus art teacher, believed this method was valuable to the curriculum.

Students worked this year with a new substance called Asphaltum. It was used for drawing, and its difference was that once a line was drawn, it was there permanently. No changes could be made. Art classes also tried the method of working to music for relaxation.

About seventy students participating in art class this year: twenty students were in their third and fourth years, and about fifty were in their first and second year. This year's events included a tour of the Haggart Pottery in Dundee and entrance in the Scholastic Art Competition.

Totem designs proved to be an interesting subject for Kathy Laatz who was wood burning.

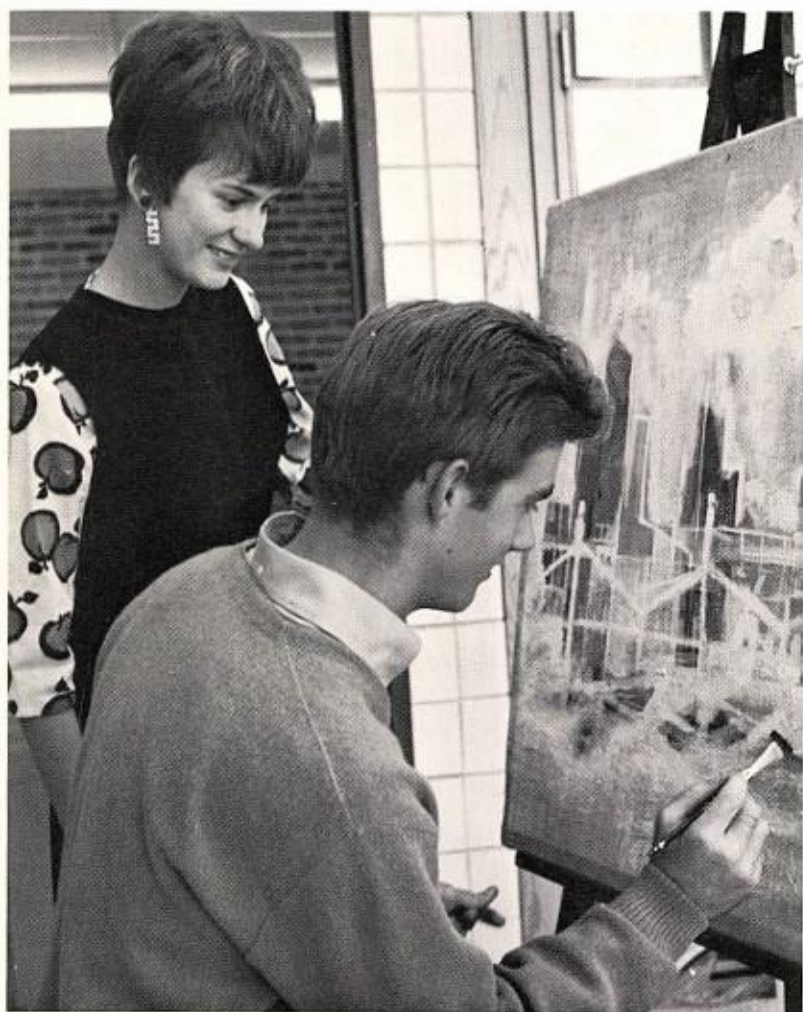

Sharon Geisler, Stephanie Crowhurst, Sharon Terpstra, and Terry Hardie painted imaginary landscapes.

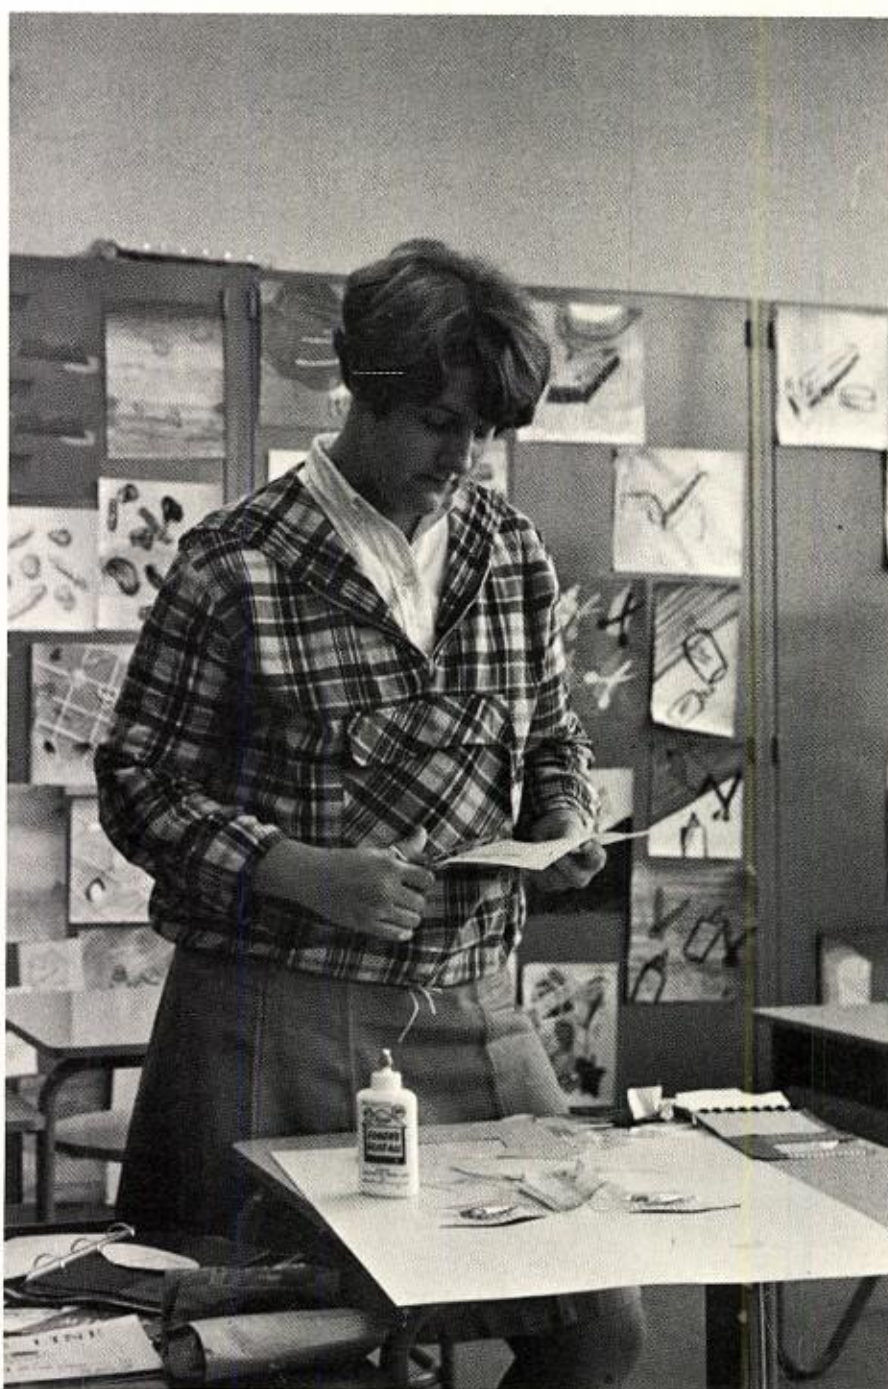

Mrs. Morrison guided Judy Wahlstrom as she made paper mache jewelry.

assisted in illustrating Golden Year

As Don Hehman put finishing touches to his painting, Mrs. Huss approved work.

Janice King cut out various patterns for collage which she was designing.

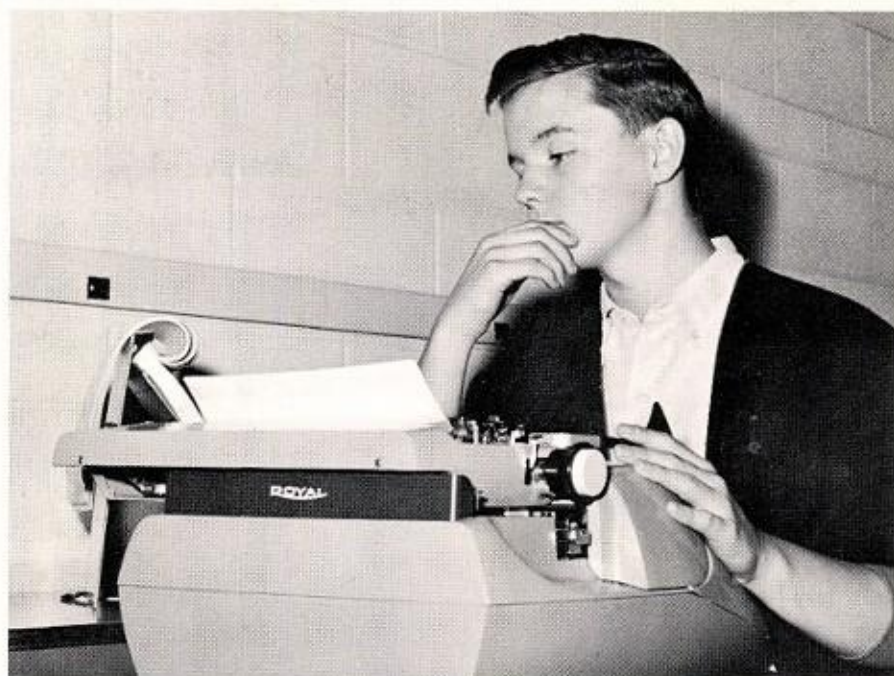

Ed Heffernan tried his hand at Indian ink sketching in art class.

Students created some interesting effects through the use of ink and charcoal at the Northwest art room.

Linda Kerfman received aid from Miss Lauritzen in Typing I.

Jerry Davis pondered his typing assignment.

Many new and interesting courses were added to the Business Education curriculum. Girls enrolled in Office Occupations worked in offices after attending school in the morning. They learned how to use complex machines which would be useful in the fast moving world of business. Key punching and data processing offered a challenging opportunity for students who were interested. By learning to handle these machines, the students could look forward to a successful future.

"Office Day" on Fridays gave Steno I and Typing II students an opportunity to dress up in fashionable suits and heels for the entire day. On this day, girls were required to dress in office attire, and office routines and procedures were followed. During the second semester, members of the business staff provided individualized dictation.

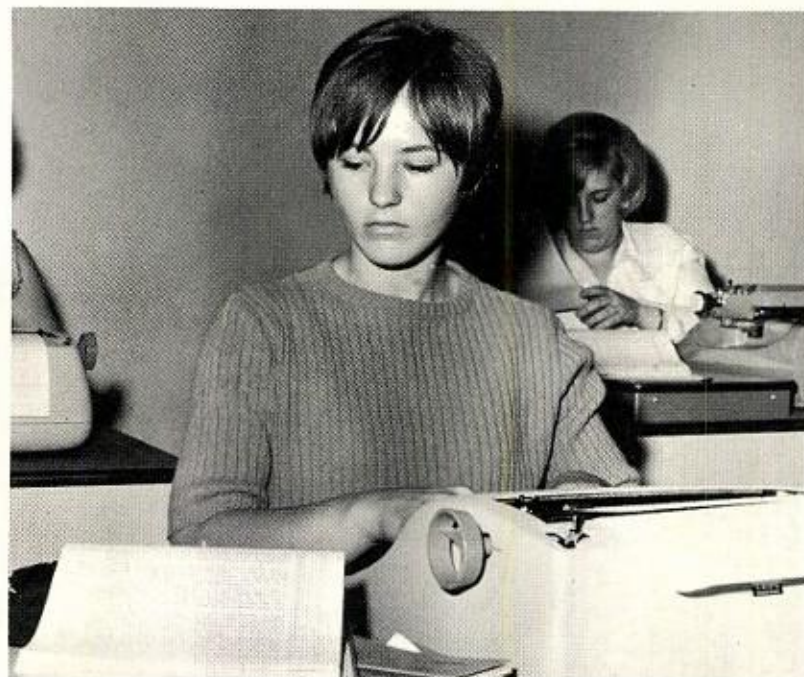

Tina Pilch, Ginger Cole, and Kathy Wachter studied banking forms and receipts.

Mr. Hill observed as Dale Carnagio, Laura Nilles, Kathy Rulien, Peter Glikis, and Lillian Hern discussed medium of money.

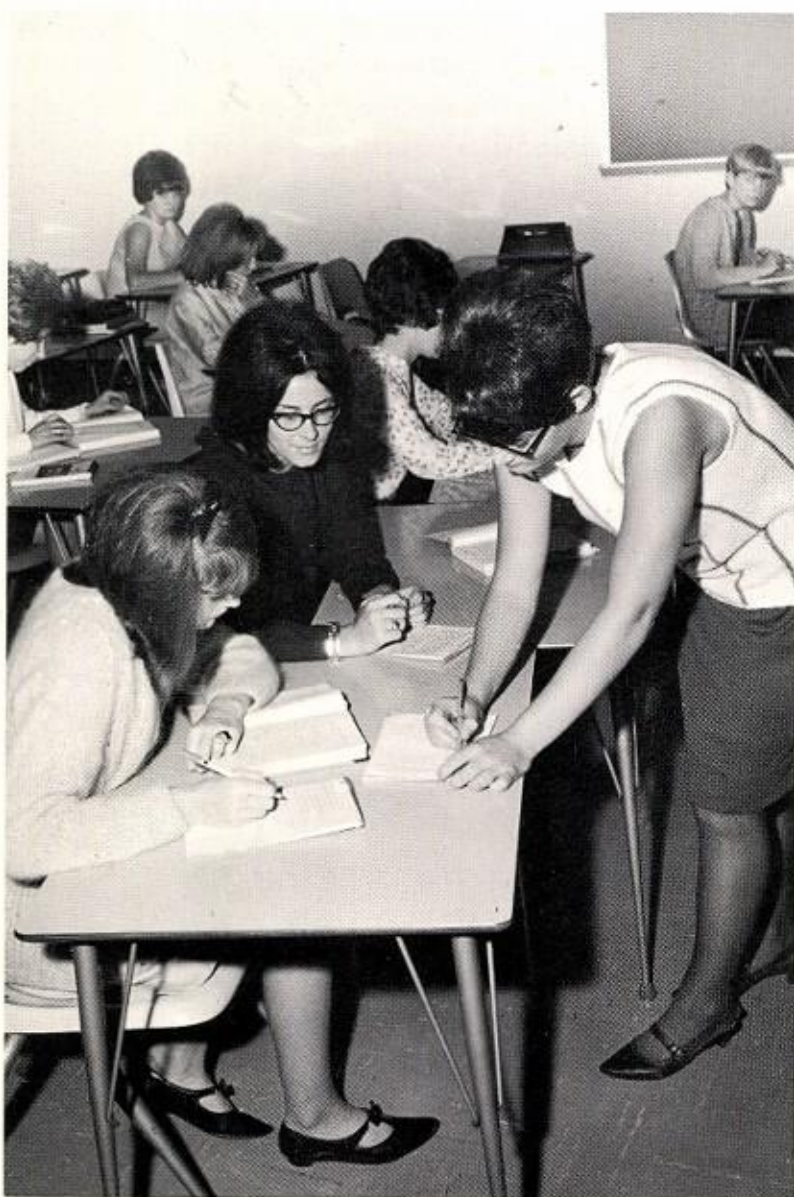

Peggy Mioni, Lorene Cody, Ellen Schreiner, and Diane Woodrull learned how to roll coins in Mr. Duggan's seventh period class.

Nancy Husayko and Linda Glandt typed fervently on work in Miss Ritchie's Typing II class.

stenographers trained for business

Vicki Sedlack discussed homework in shorthand with Joyce Casey and Karen Wakerly as Cindy Maletich, Nanette Salvato, Cheri Corbett, and Chris Zeise studied for a test.

In order to add a large column of numbers quickly, Maureen McQueary helped Lana Dick operate a comptometer.

Distributive Education provided

Shirley Cupples, D. E. student learner, received on-the-job training from Miss Catherine Swan, chief operator at Illinois Bell Telephone Information Office in Oak Lawn.

D. E. student Shirley Halm received instruction from her job supervisor, Paula Gingerich, head cosmetician at Osco Drug in Palos Heights, on procedures for ordering cosmetics.

DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATION CLUB MEMBERS, CLOCKWISE: Lynn Tusack, parliamentarian; Donna Zimmerman, Robert Reis, Rae Ritter, Barbara Clancy, Rodney Combs, president; Barbara Bennett, secretary; Tom Jaros, Susan Fowler, John Smrha, Shirley Halm, John Giusti, Shirley Cupples, vice-president; Claire Hargis, Charles Bergman, treasurer; and Mary Mojden.

"Peanuts and his friends" greeted honored employers and guests at the annual 1966 Employer-Employee Appreciation Banquet at the Beverly Woods Restaurant. The banquet was given by D.E. students to show their appreciation for valuable on-the-job training they had received during the school year as part of the distributive education program.

At Vern's Supermarket, Robert Reis, distributive education student, pointed out a good bargain in the frozen food department to his customer.

head start on future career

Distributive Education student John Smrha, center, his sponsors, Mr. Ed Kulinski, left, and store manager Phil Werner, right, "merchandise" some canned goods at the Jewel Food Store, 111th Street in Worth.

Attending the banquet were Mr. and Mrs. Francis Revor, owners of the L & M Food Store and job sponsor of Distributive Education student learner Sandra Revor, their daughter. Sandra was the D. E. Club President, 1966, and the recipient of the outstanding D. E. student of the year award.

At Ben Franklin store in Worth, Distributive Education student Rae Ritter received instructions on the proper procedure for finding greeting card reserve stock at the greeting card rack from Mr. Jack Badger, manager.

Vice-president of the Distributive Education Club, Jo Lynn Mool, gave summarizing speech of the club's activities for the past year at the annual 1966 Employer-Employee Appreciation Banquet.

Mr. William Mitchell, vice-president of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. was the guest speaker for the 1966 Annual Distributive Education Employer-Employee Appreciation Banquet.

Distributive Education, a cooperative training program among the local businesses, school, and parents for students who have a career objective in the field of Marketing, Merchandising and Management, helped give our curriculum a well-rounded approach. Each student's schedule was arranged to coincide with his time spent as an apprentice with managers and to insure his gaining benefits from our curriculum. Sandy Revour was presented with the 1966 outstanding student of the year award and also served as president of the club.

Diversified Occupations permitted study

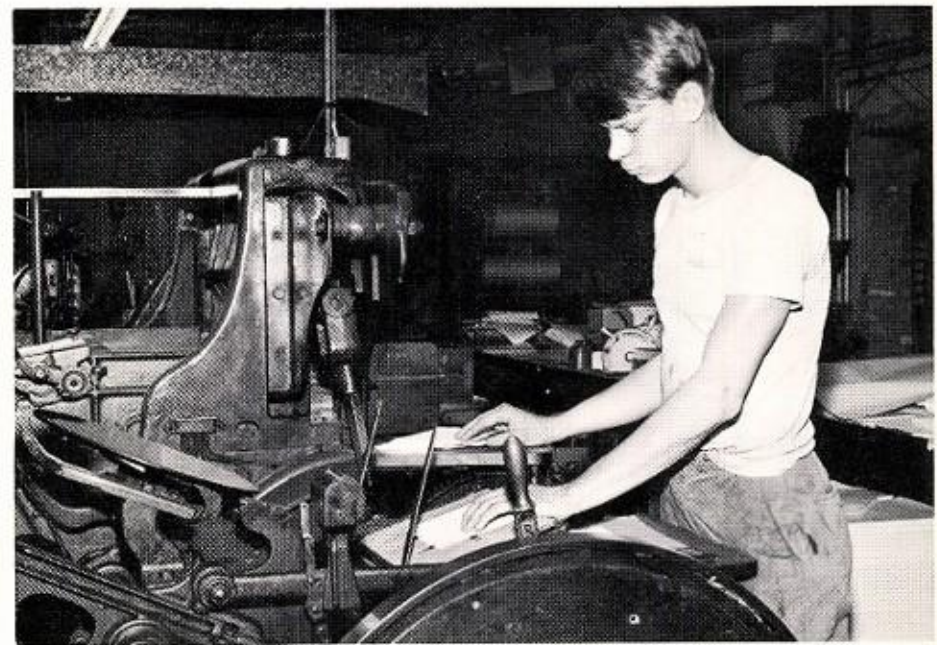

Students not planning to attend college had the opportunity to receive training in the occupational field of their choice by participation in the Diversified Occupations Program. Certain requirements had to be met by the juniors and seniors who participated in the program. Students had to be at least sixteen, have completed a minimum of eight credits, and be able to work fifteen hours a week during the school year. Students were trained both on the job of their selected field and in the classroom. In the classroom they studied such topics as insurance, budgeting, contracts, and personality traits. All of these will affect each student regardless of his chosen occupation.

Working at Hoefel-Goy Ford, Charles Donegan was directed by Joe Stwora, his trainer, and Joe Kristie, his supervisor.

Painting a "for sale" sign, Daniel Welsh worked at Enterprise Signs Incorporated.

Operating a Gordon Press, John Huiner was learning by doing at Maplewood Press in Mount Greenwood.

while learning trade

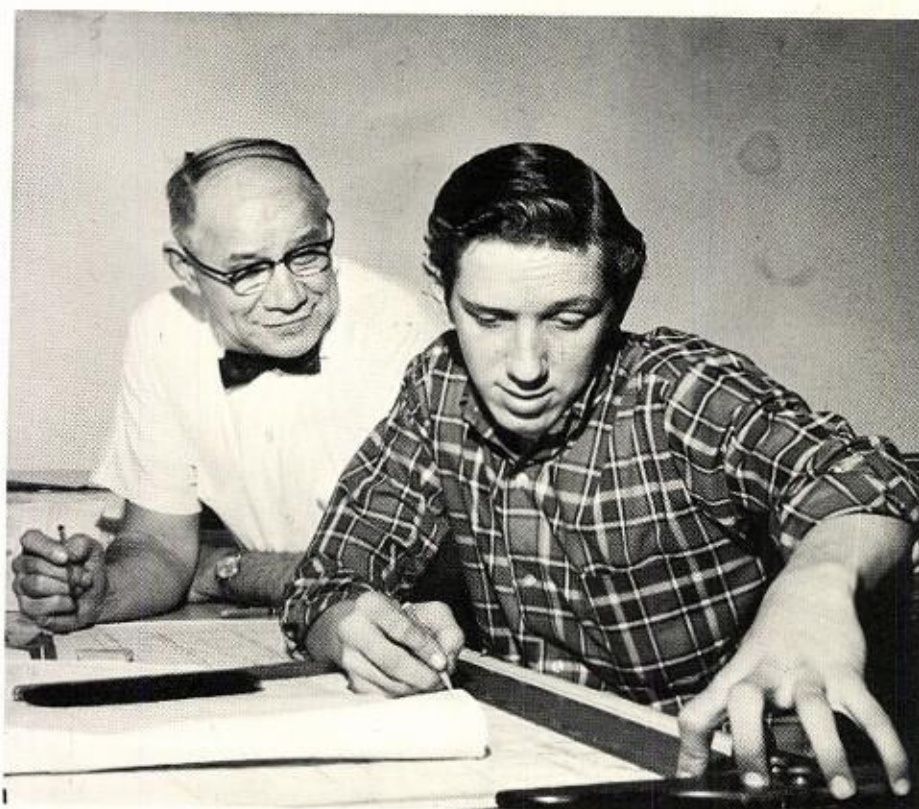

Learning various skills in welding was Edward Szczepaniak who was employed by G. and F. Manufacturing Company.

Sectioning hair for permanent waves was among one of the many tasks Catherine Hargis learned while employed at Mary's Hair Styling Salon.

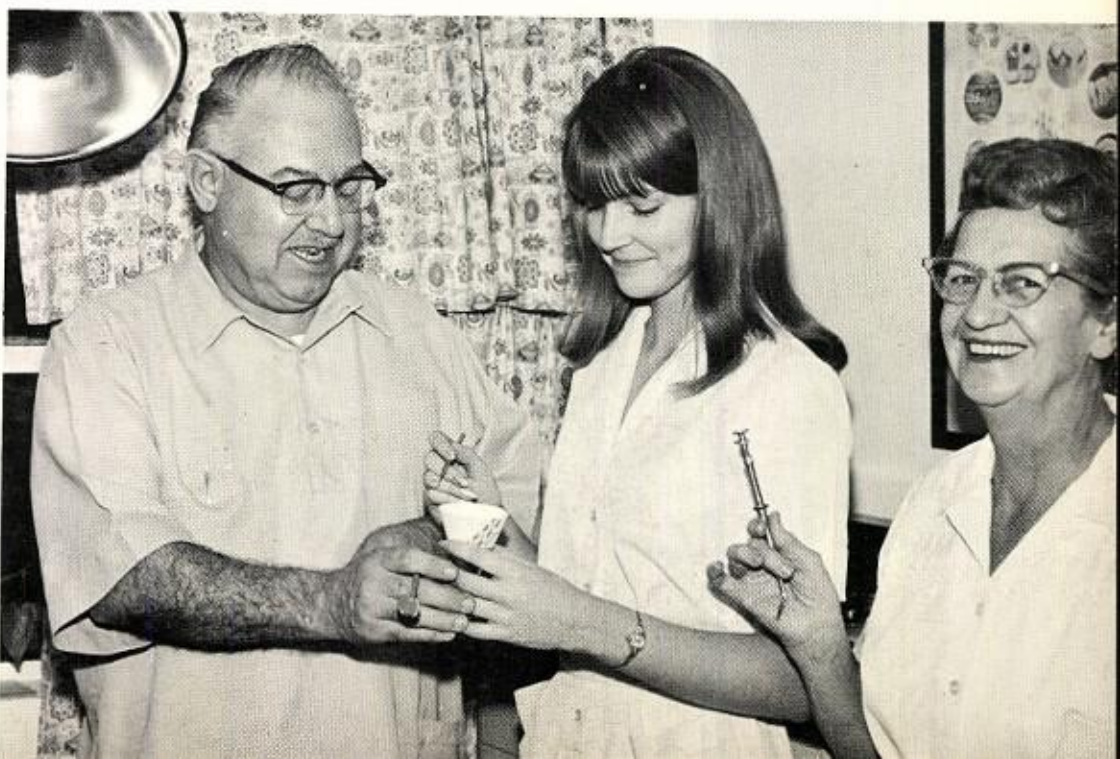

While refacing a set of valves, John McGeoghegan was supervised by Richard Capek. Both are employees of Ridgeland Auto Parts.

Under the supervision of Mr. Stanzak, Richard Baines worked busily on a new high school design.

Dental assistant Sherry Chisholm was taught the careful preparation of a filling under the supervision of Dr. Bell and Mrs. Jesse Moss.

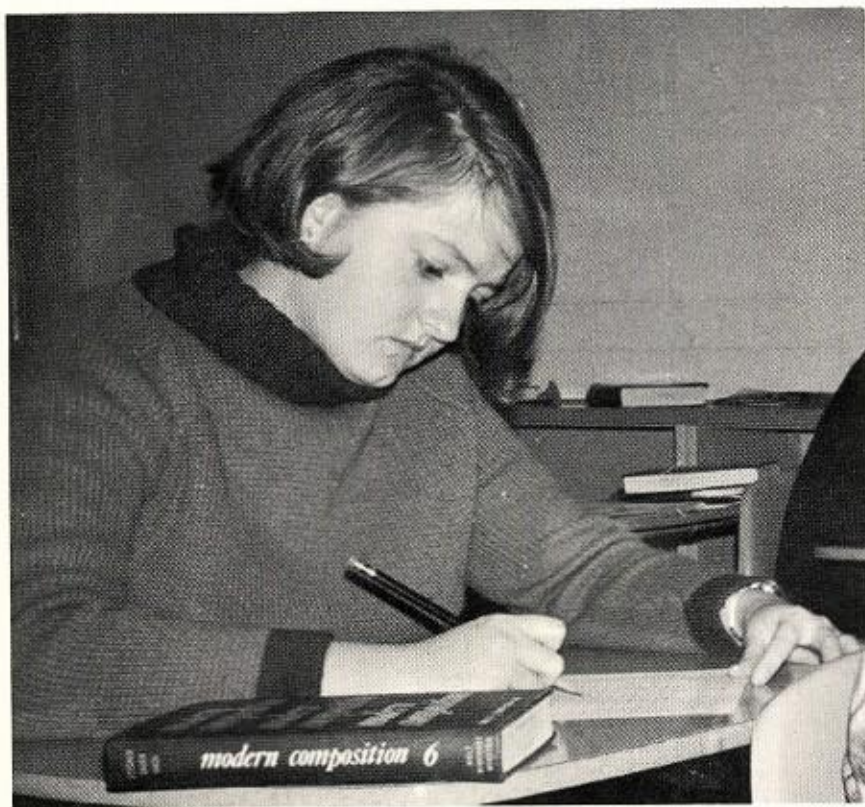

Students listened critically to an oration by Brad White in Mrs. Brodie's English class.

Perhaps the department which experienced the most expansion was the English Department, which completely revised the courses offered for juniors and seniors. Students having completed English I and II were eligible to select from the wide variety of English courses now available. The courses served the many different interests and requirements of the students. For example, courses in Creative Writing, Advanced Composition, and Critical Reading and Writing were designed to meet college requirements. Everyday English and Business English were developed to help those headed for immediate vocations. Individualized Reading, Readings in Drama, and Great Ideas in Literature increased appreciation and enjoyment of literature. Both teachers and students found many advantages in the expanded courses offered to meet more specific student needs. The first experimental year was praised very highly.

Expanded English Department made many Concentrating on writing skills in Advanced Composition class, Nan Houdek checked her critical analysis of a play.

Learning about the history of drama, Linda Walczak, and Bob Templin examined a model of an old Shakespearean theatre in Readings in English Literature.

Presenting an oration for Mrs. Murray's English class was Michele Zurich.

A linguistics tree in Language class made an interesting display which was examined by Dave Erickson, Bob Erickson, and Susan Hopkins.

new courses available to students

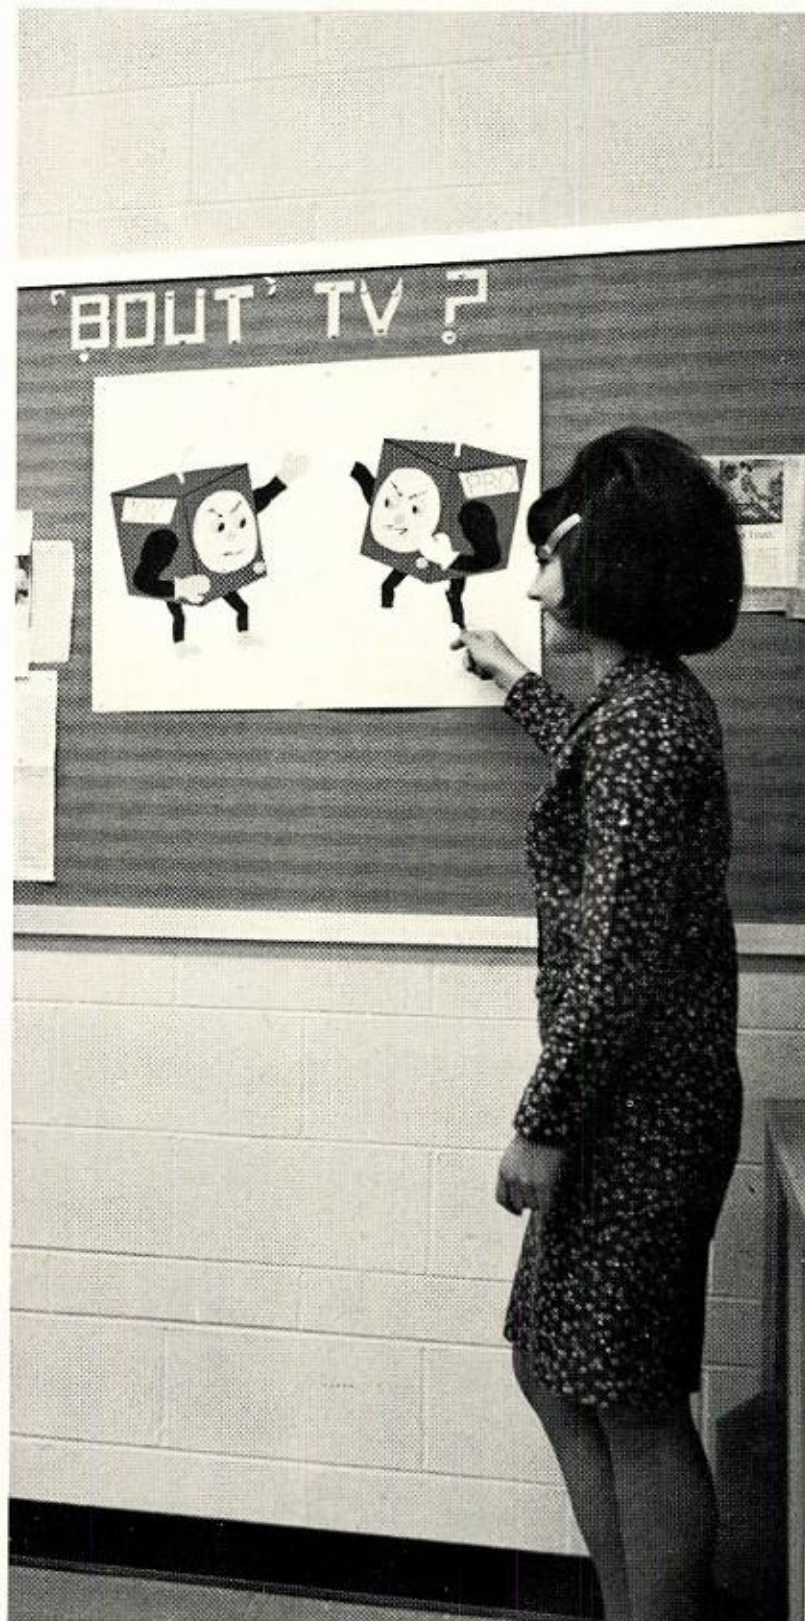

Illinois Bell Telephone provided the teleprompter system through which Mrs. Oppenheim discussed a book with Howard Yawn from his home.

Individualized Reading class gave Jim Kiner, Charles Iazo, and Guy LeMonnier a chance to catch up on some favorite books.

In Mass Media class, a chart representing pro's and con's of television production was displayed by Janice Meyer.

Sheila Sula, Steve Schmiedl, Christine Gorz, Mrs. Dalche, and Arlette Gustafson prepared Russian dialogue to be used in the language lab.

Barbara Janners and Steve Britt performed skits from conversations in their Spanish books.

Language lab

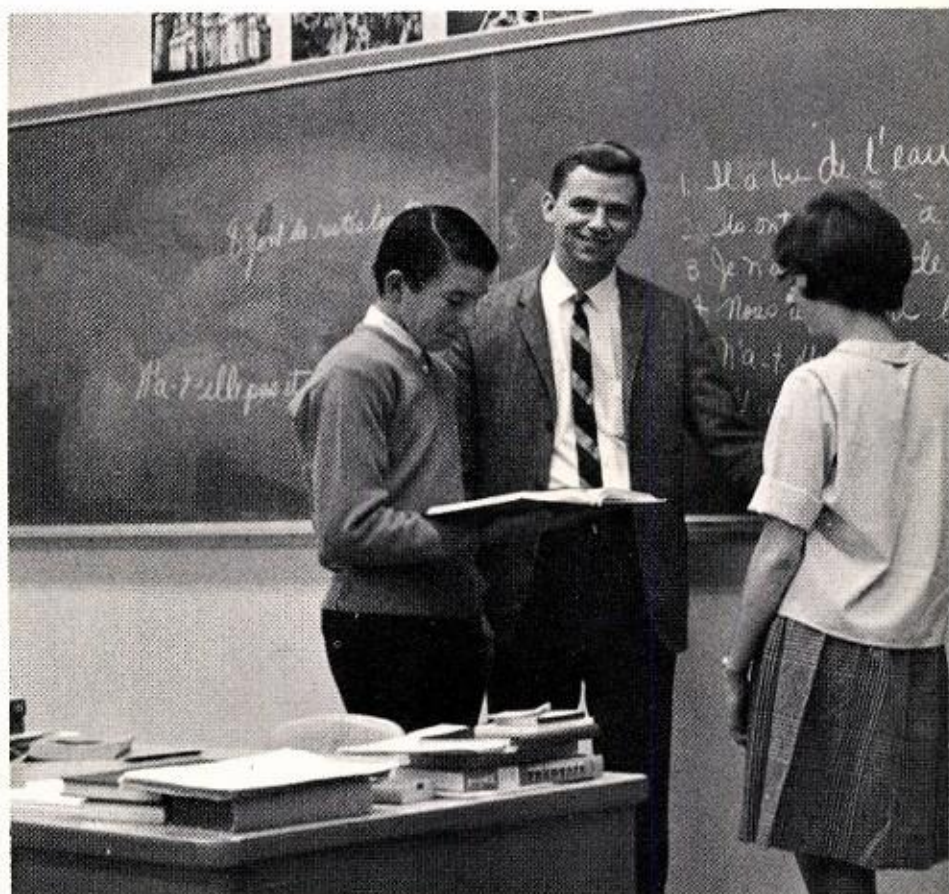

French, Spanish, Russian I, German, and Latin were again offered at Harold L. Richards. The second year of Russian was offered this year as well. Many students demonstrated a genuine interest in the foreign languages and did not merely select them to meet college requirements. Most foreign language courses covered the history and culture of the countries in which the languages were spoken. In Russian classes, every Wednesday was referred to as "Day of Russian Culture."

Students that enrolled in Spanish, French, German, or Latin could continue to take the language for four years or study a variety of languages. Students who spend three or four years concentrating on a single language were richly rewarded as they became fluent in that language. Many students were hopeful that they could put their studies to use some day in a foreign country.

Pam Hearn, Pete Frascella, and Maria Garces took time before class to observe a Spanish display.

John Shermulis, Julia Huff, David Sharp, and Claudia Sulceski aided each other in writing and understanding French II sentences under the direction of Mr. Hatford.

helped students perfect speaking skills

Mr. Dalche assisted Ellen Foyle in completing her German practice in her workbook.

Dawn Winkler, Chris Pazoles, Jane Lausch, and Lynn Tusack polished their French linguistic skills in the French IV language lab.

David Rossen and Linda Danza pointed out interesting cultural facts, in Puerto Rico, observed by Nancy Sullivan, James Raven, and Colleen Tierney.

Kathy Gentile sewed darts as Claudia Sulceski checked pattern layout with Miss Steger.

Modern facilities as found in most up-to-date homes, were also found assisting and aiding many of the girls enrolled in home economic courses at Harold L. Richards. More emphasis was placed upon family skills and planning, in order that the homemaker would someday have more to offer her family. Food and clothing classes were given an extensive study, as was the close examination of nutritional and food value. Color planning and home decorating proved popular. Imagination and technique was an important part of making draperies and curtains. Home nursing and child care, an important and necessary part of homemaking, were stressed all year and learning to make their clothes was a valuable skill to the girls. A "Career Girls" course was available to girls preparing for careers, but wishing to improve themselves as homemakers.

Home Economics classes were filled with Cutting a pattern were Sue Price and Jil Mahar as Sue Quattrochi, Sandy McKey, and Arvilla Fisher read pattern envelopes in Advanced Clothing class.

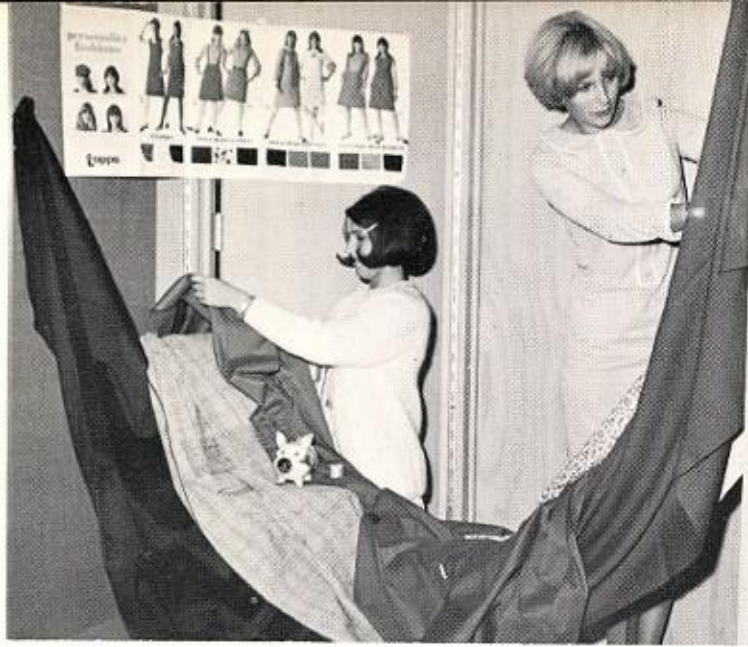

Debbie St. Denis, Jill Pries, Sandy Isaacson, Chris Hargis, and Camille Laskowski practiced fundamentals of setting the table.

Girls engrossed in their individual projects were Rosemary Pote, Kathy Miller, Marilyn Peterson, Janet Crowhurst, and Sharon O'Connor.

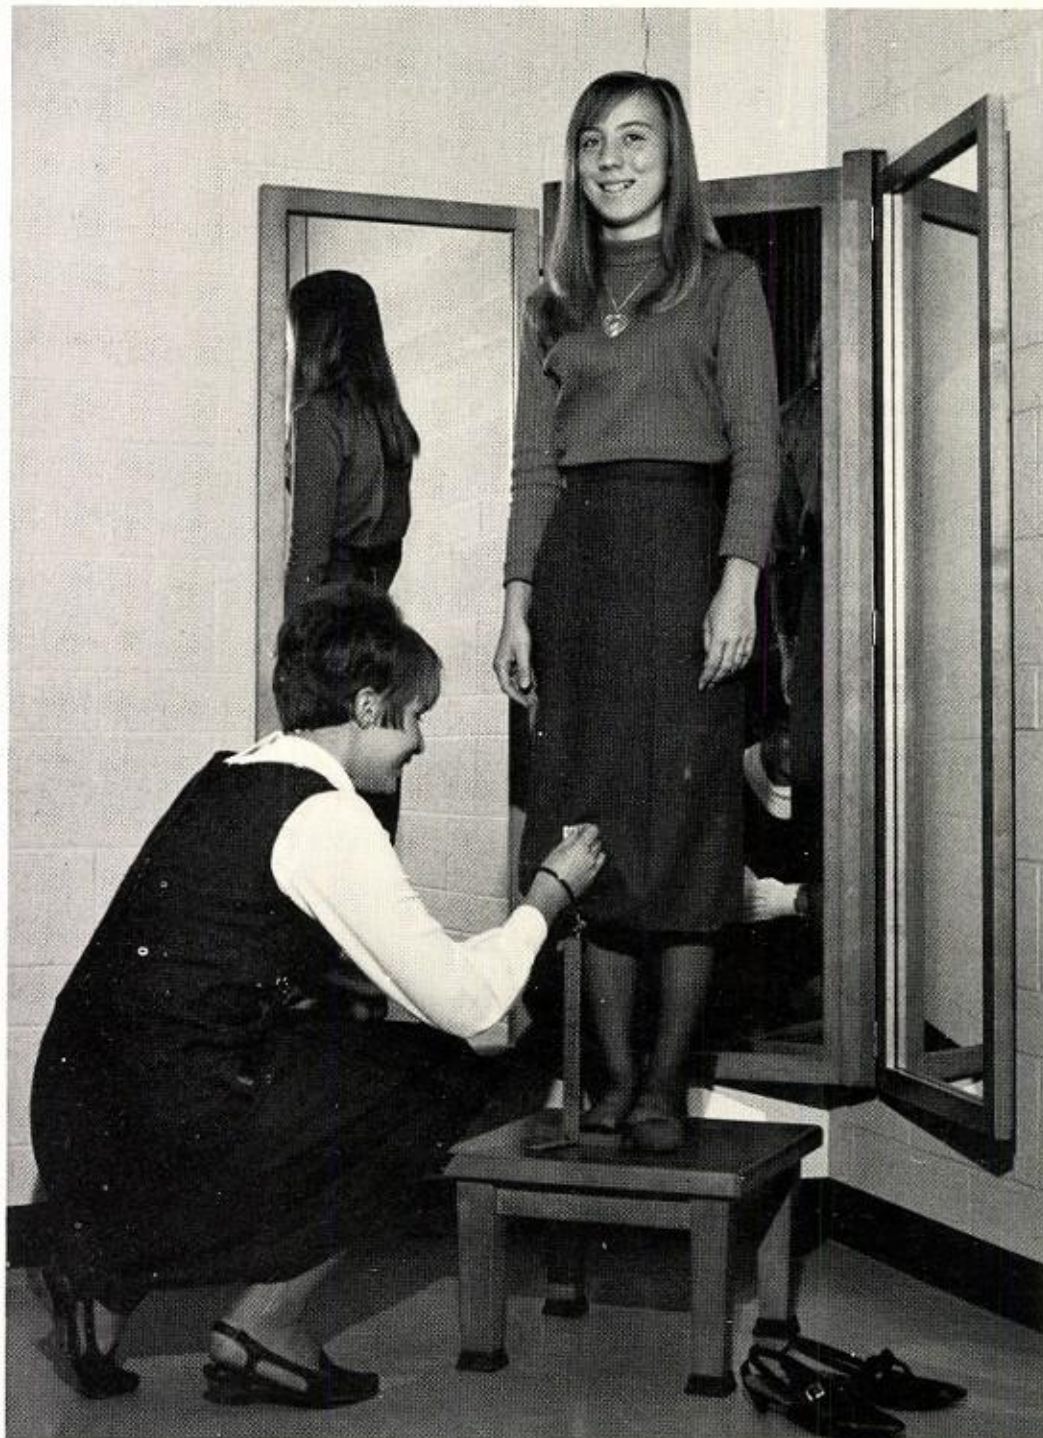

Materials for new fashions were arranged for display by Linda Morrell and Anita Stiglic at the Campus.

young homemakers

Preparing a simple meal in Homemaking class at Northeast was developed into an art by Kathy Falardeau, Karen Civirla, and Joyce Kostecki.

Newest gas stove cooking devices were demonstrated by Mrs. Rosamer from Illinois Gas Company to Mrs. Caliendo's Home Economics class, Denise Ostertag, Pat Bishop, Cheryl Roulo, Peggy Dannowitz, and Linda Achterhof.

Marking a hem for Marilyn Dugan was practiced by Vicki Gilchrist at the Campus.

Industrial shops guided students

Mr. Rodie explained to Nick Hargis, Rick Conboy, and Ed Bradshaw how grooves in pieces of wood were made by using a lathe.

The Industrial Arts Department contained electric, auto, machine, print, drafting, and wood shops. These shops were valuable in preparing the boys for these respective trades. Many of the students used their shop knowledge as stepping stones in preparation for engineering and architectural schools.

Shops were enhanced by the addition of machine tools, work benches, and other new equipment. All shops in the department sported a new look in their second year of existence. Teachers of the department conducted classes that varied from working with metal to electronics. Skillful reasoning and sharp reflexes proved to be necessities in the handling of power tools. All experiences in these courses were valuable, because many professions today require some knowledge of the industrial arts field.

Scott Johnson improved his band-saw techniques in Mr. Schuma's Wood Shop.

Mr. Lane directed Norman Imes, Darrell Leska, and Greg Petrik as they brazed a piece of metal in auto shop.

toward vocations

Skill in spacing characters in print was developed by James Grisham in Mr. Nolan's print shop.

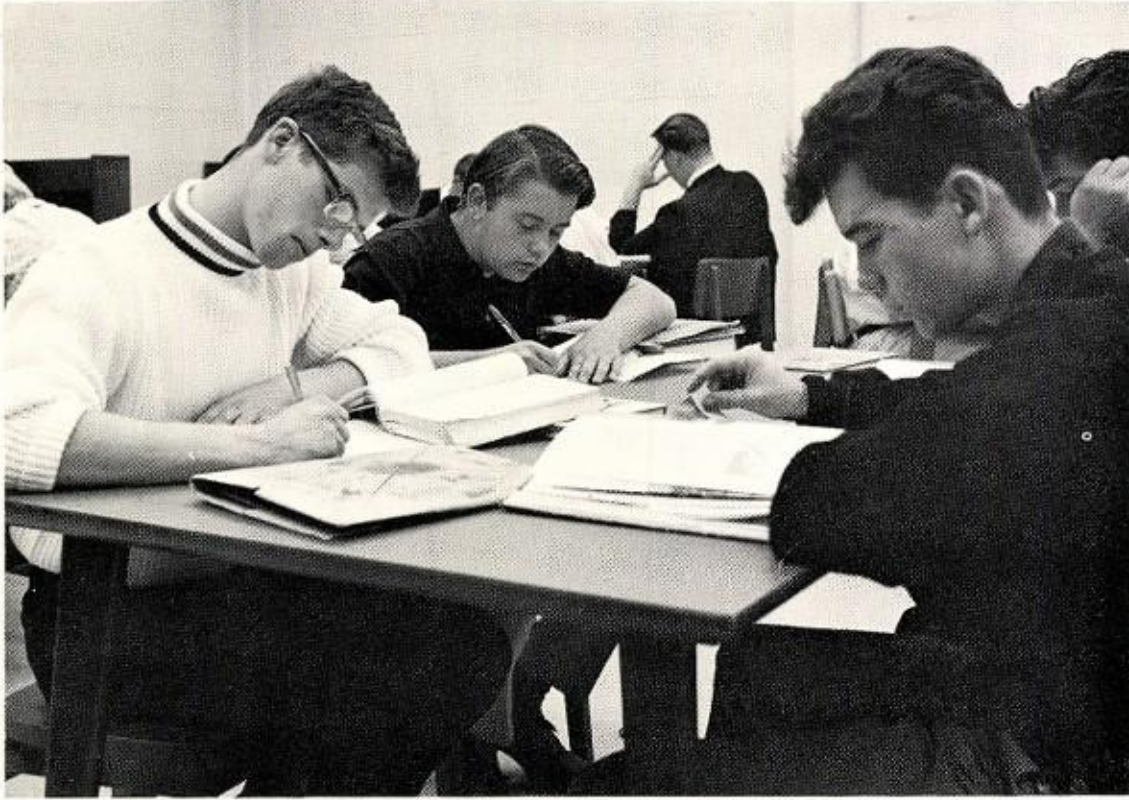

Anthony Bialek used woodworking skills to fashion a "board of education."

Precision in turning metal on a lathe was sought by James Gregor, Larry Kalins, and Wayne Stephens in machine shop.

The techniques of interpreting drawings were studied by Ronald Dyrkacz with the help of Mr. Porter.

Ken Topping, Neil Workman, and Dan Bastick worked on term papers, studied, and read quietly in the Campus II library.

A reference book provided important information for Antonine Federico in her senior studies.

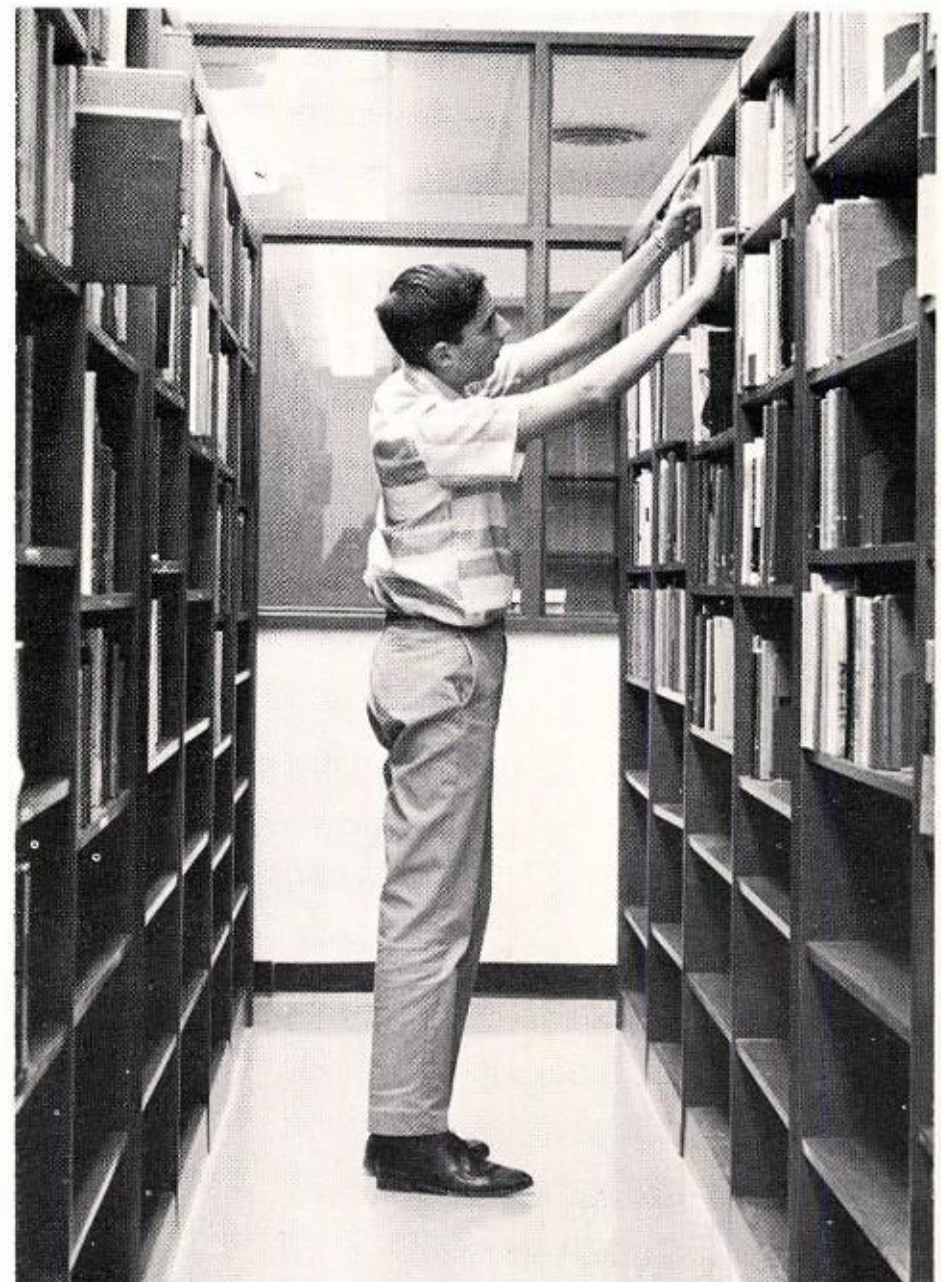

During this past year, many changes were made in the library department. The Campus II building practiced the concept that students should have reasonably free access to the library. Students who wanted to use the library merely signed a sheet in the library. This completely eliminated the need for the library permits which formerly had to be signed by the teachers. More students were allowed into the library, and more classes took advantage of its resources. The vast majority of students accepted the new policy with respect for the responsibility it entailed. The intention of the Harold L. Richards library was to build a materials collection of excellent quality for the use of the students and to make it as accessible as possible at the same time.

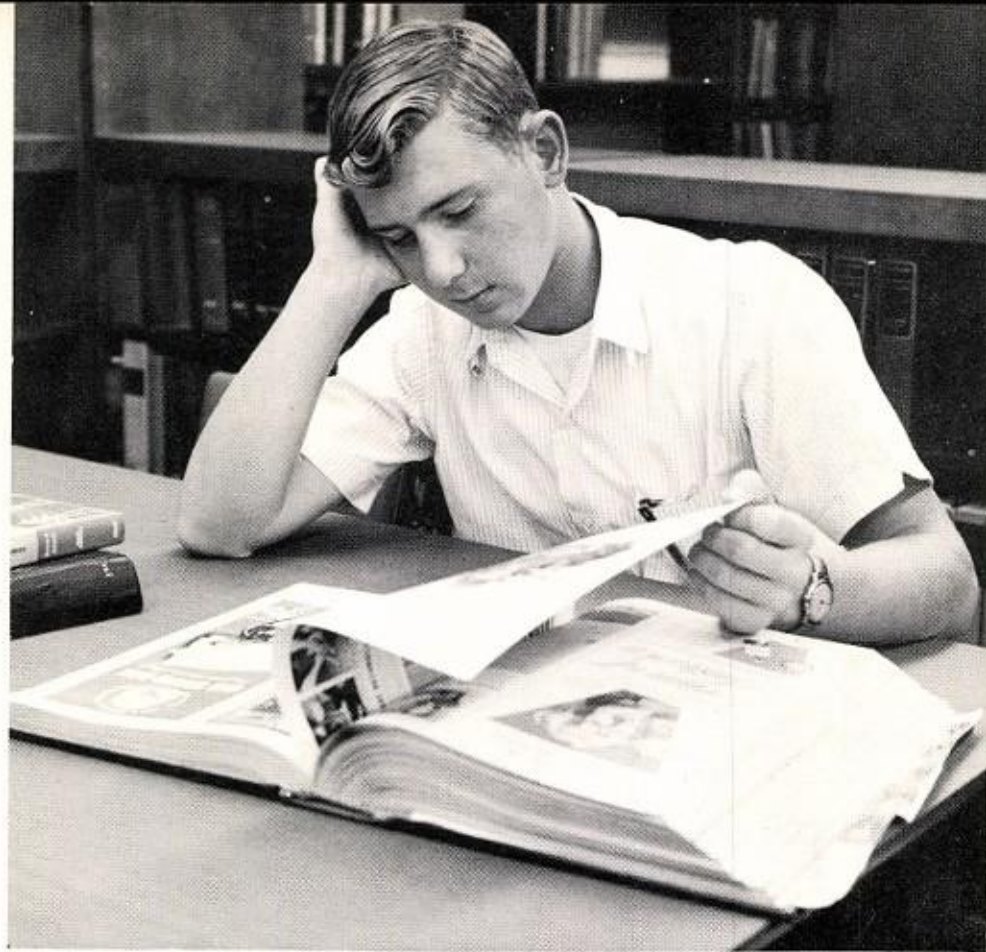

Gerry Vartunas proved the necessity of a card catalog as it aided her in the search for a special book.

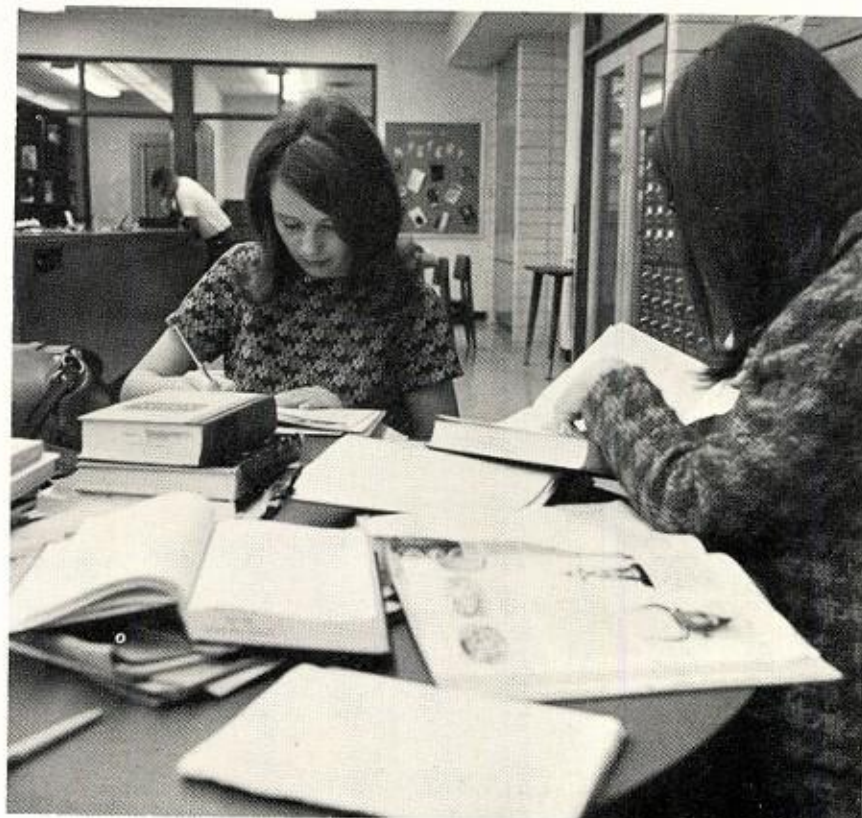

Students used

Herbert Bartels searched for a book to aid him in his research paper.

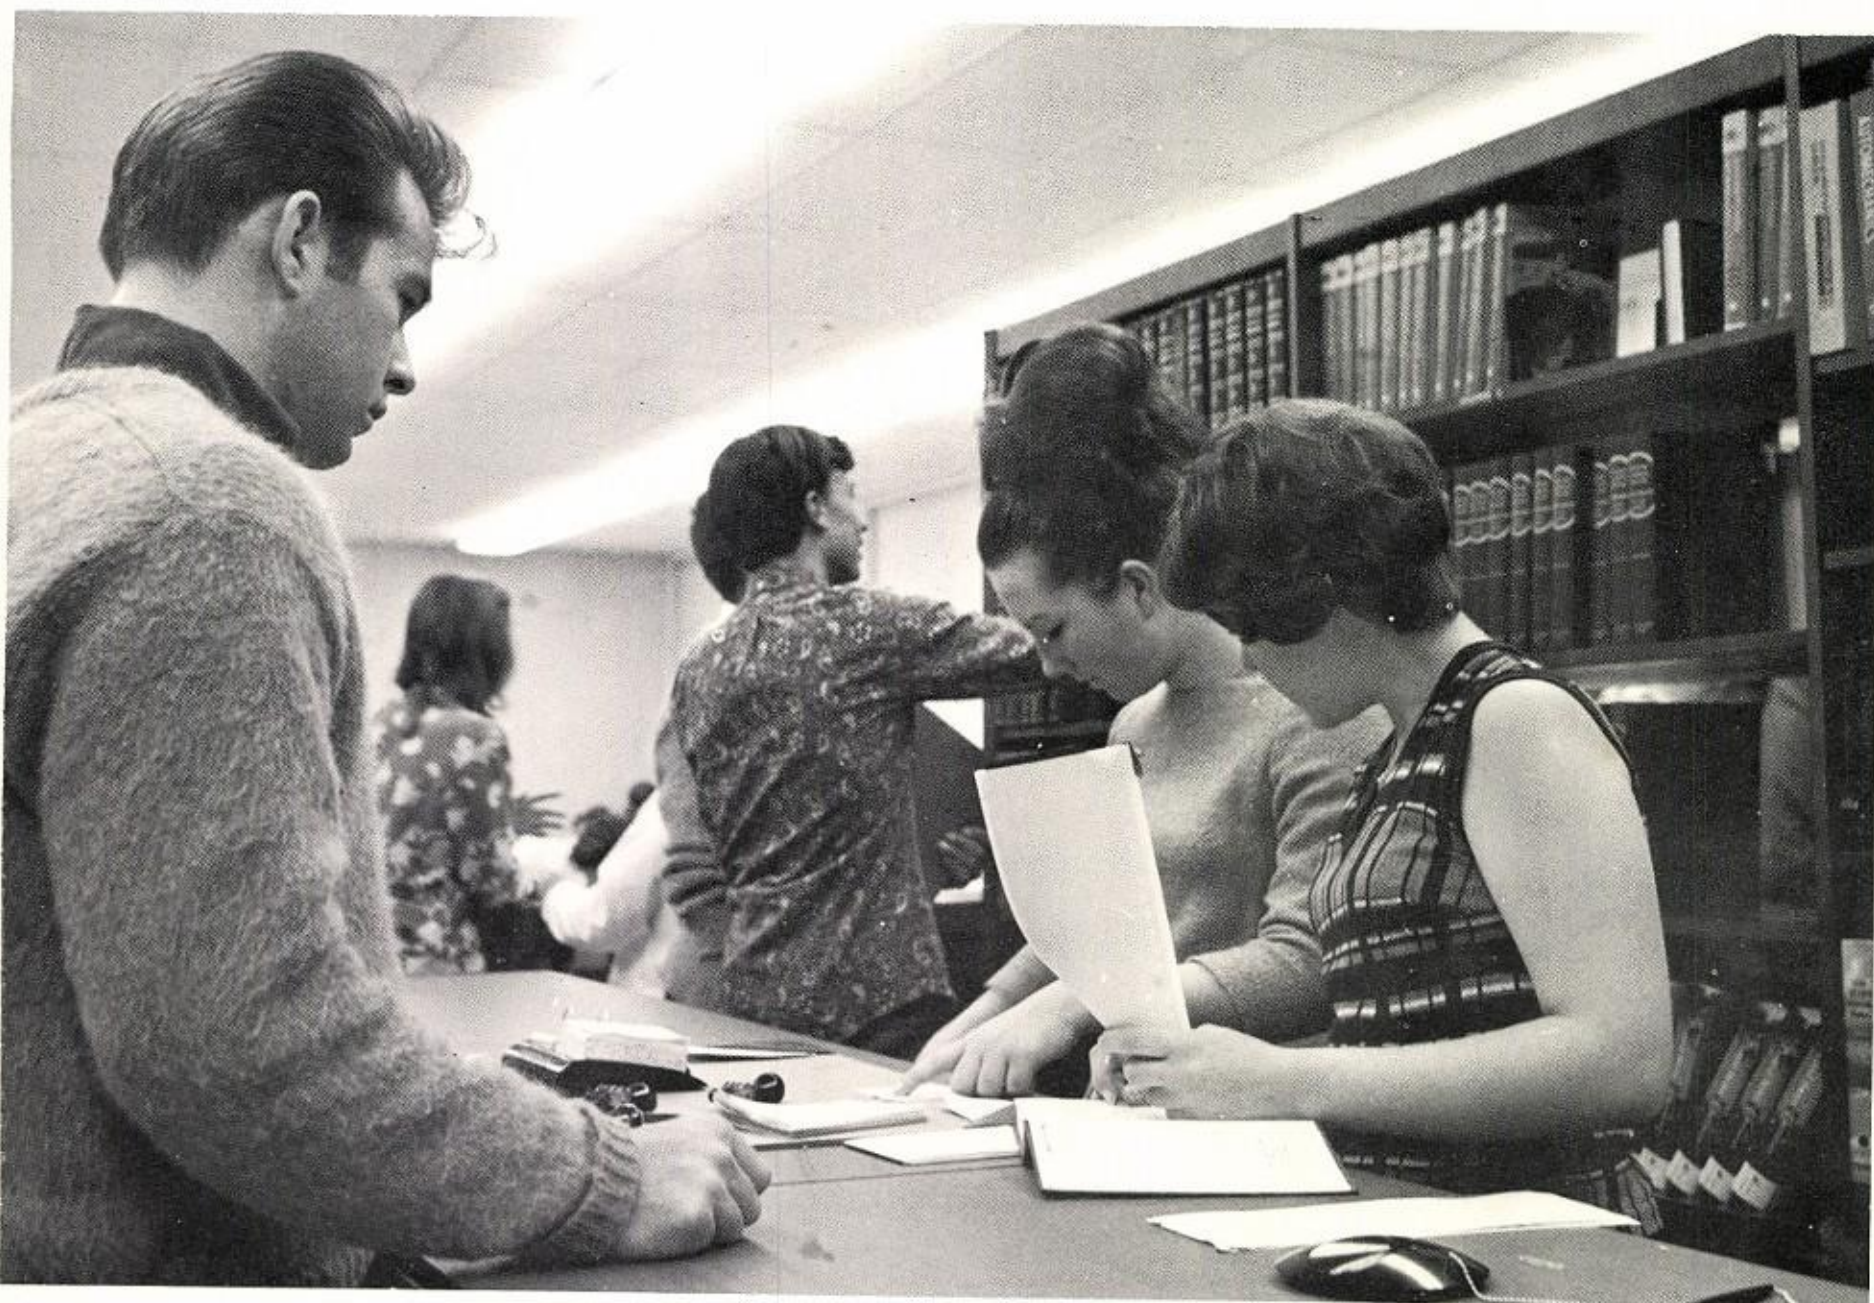

Reference books in the library enabled Ivan Hall to finish his assigned report.

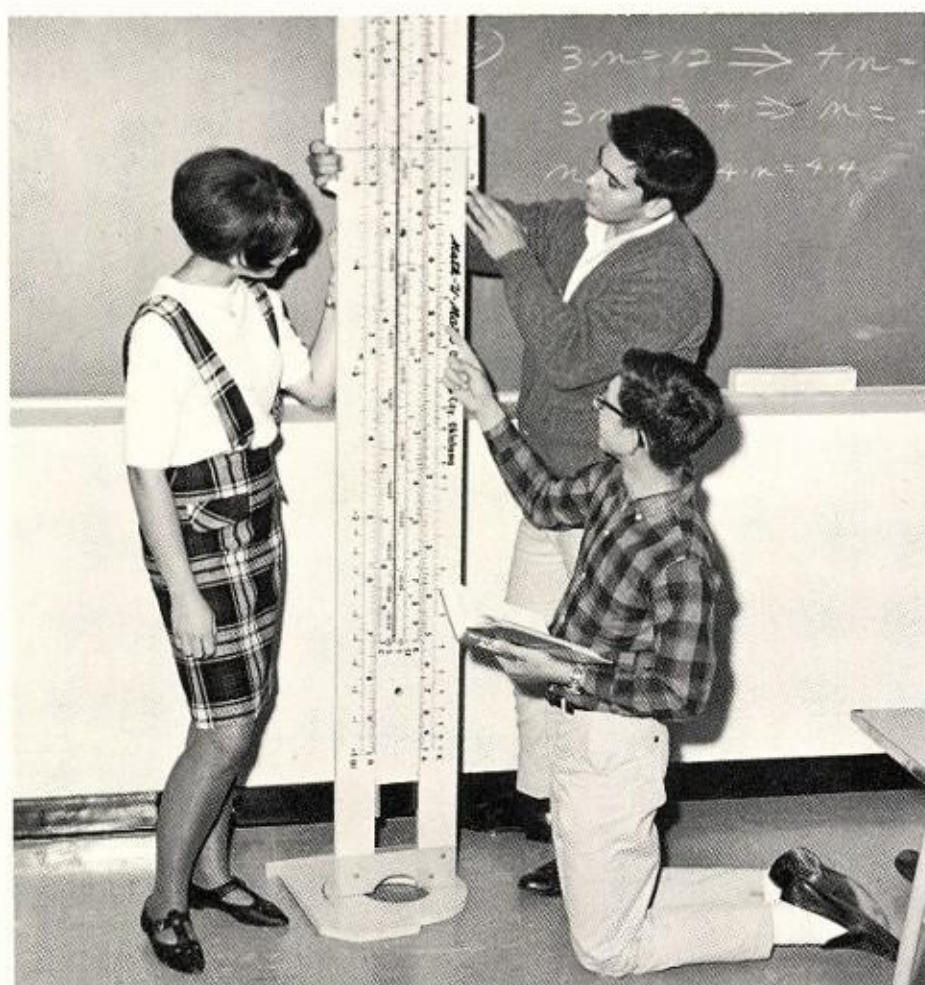

Reference materials available in the library were utilized with interest by Mary Ellen Gandy and Susan Byrne.

libraries for reading and studies

Checking out a book to Bob Falsey were Lorna Fredericks and Terry Van Doren, library aids at Campus.

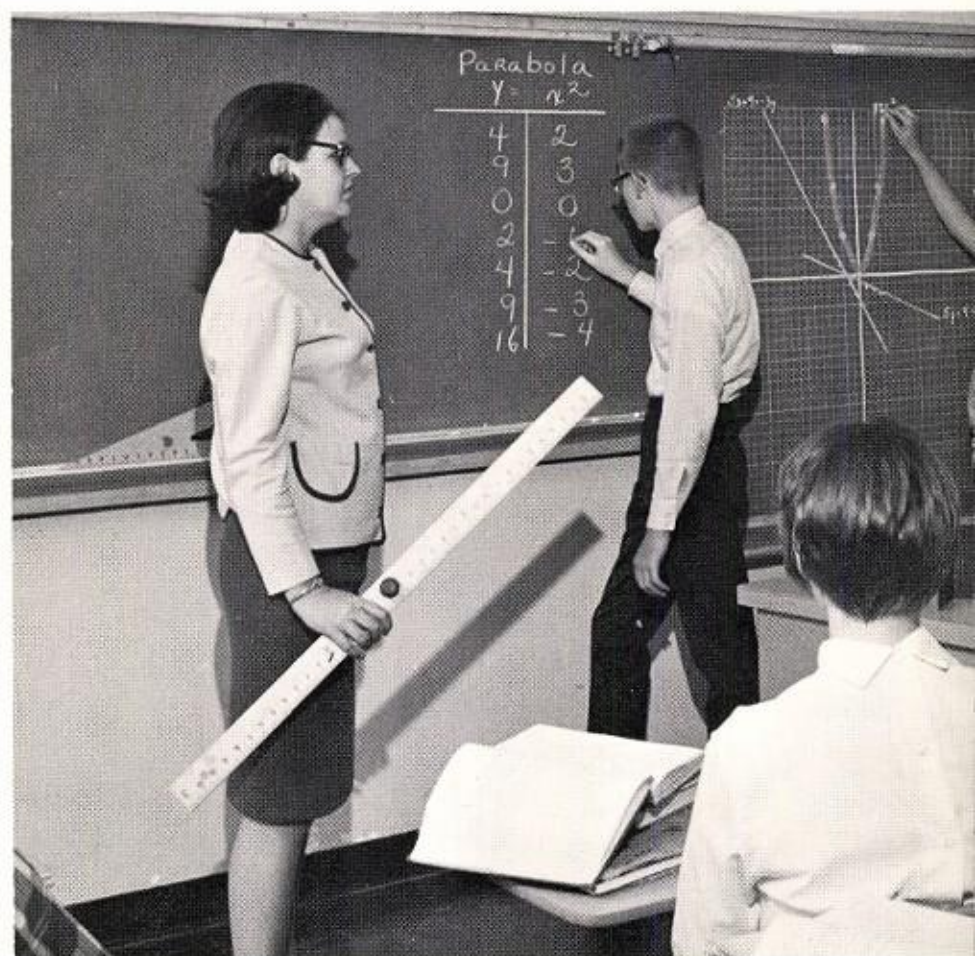

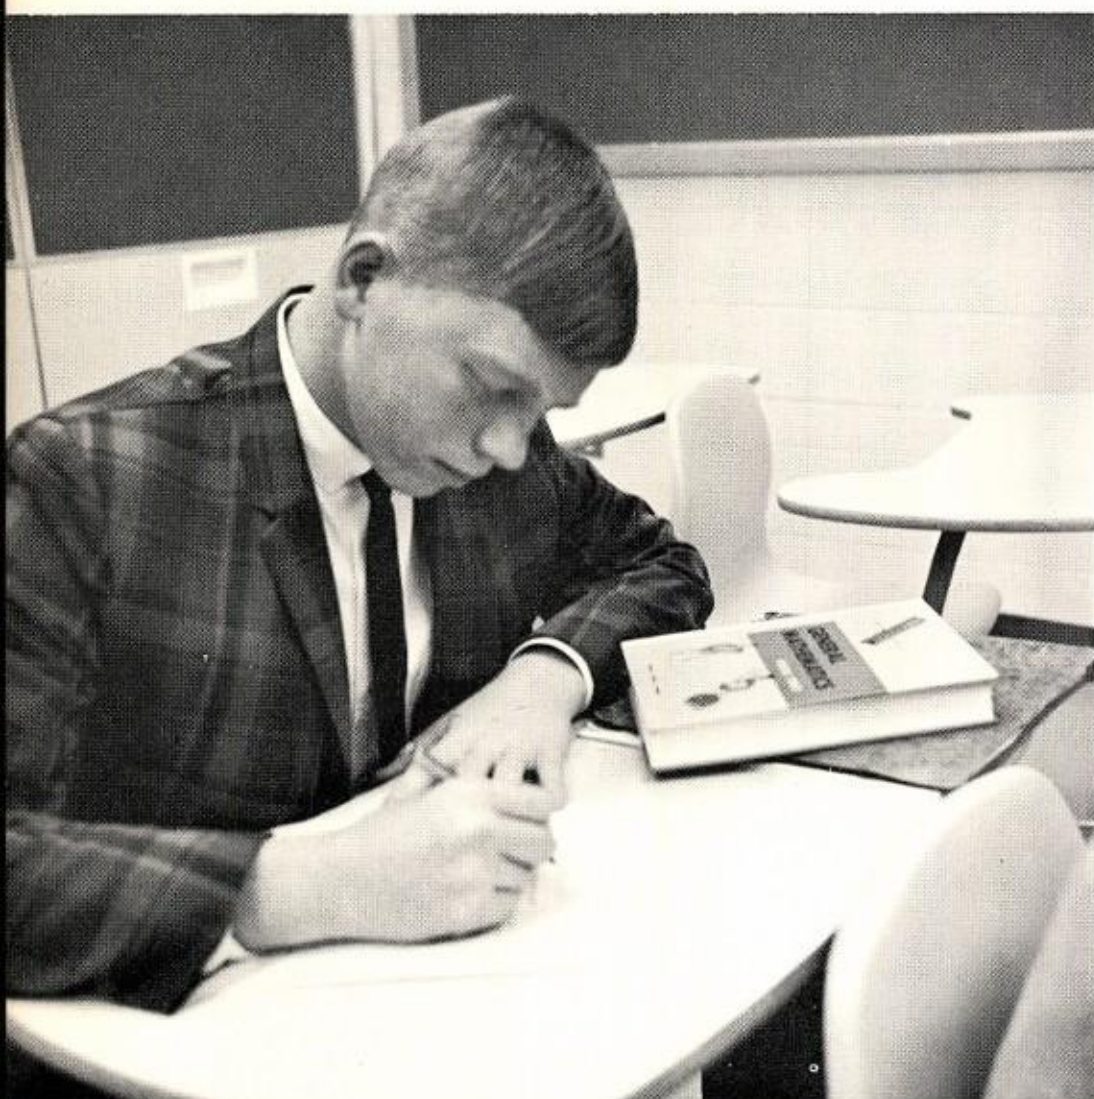

Reasoning, logic were results of mathematics

Speed of calculation in algebra was improved by use of the slide rule as shown by Joyce Dyke, Jerry Staniszewski, and Steve Schmiedl.

Concentration and effort were needed to solve Ford Smith's mathematics problems.

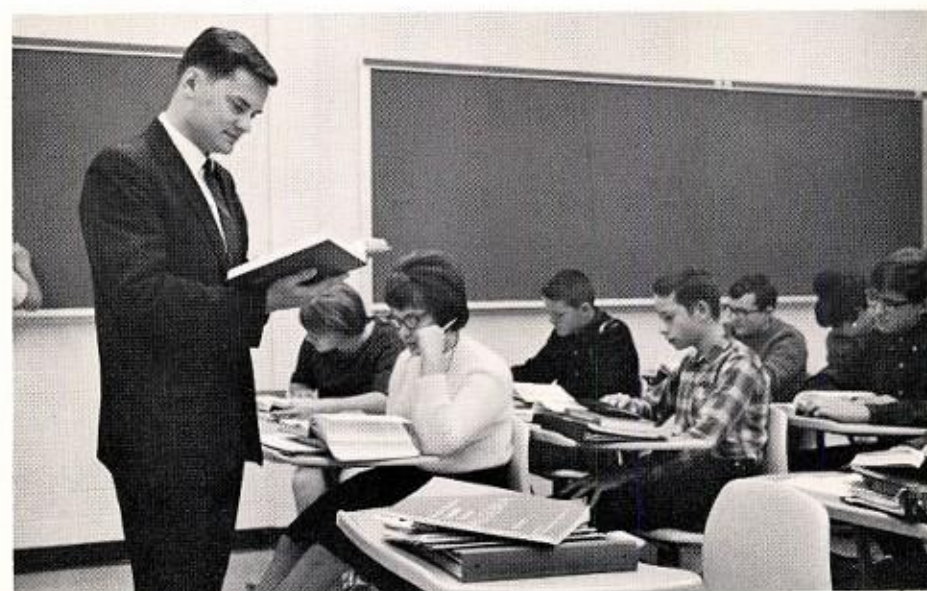

Graphing straight lines and conic sections helped in visualizing functions in Miss [Name].

Knowledge of mathematics was essential to students for success in any future vocation. Math courses were designed to fit the needs and abilities of all students. College-bound students, especially those planning science or engineering careers, continued their mathematics education beyond the required one year.

Courses varying from general math to calculus were available at Harold L. Richards. Knowledge of mathematics proved important in many of the science courses, such as chemistry and physics. Although students were only required to select one course in mathematics in order to graduate, a vast number of students took advantage of the courses offered each year. Perhaps the most practical and valuable knowledge was found in the Mathematics Department.

Close attention to the theoretical basis of algebra was necessary in Mr. Nicholson's Accelerated Algebra class.

Griffin's Accelerated Algebra class.

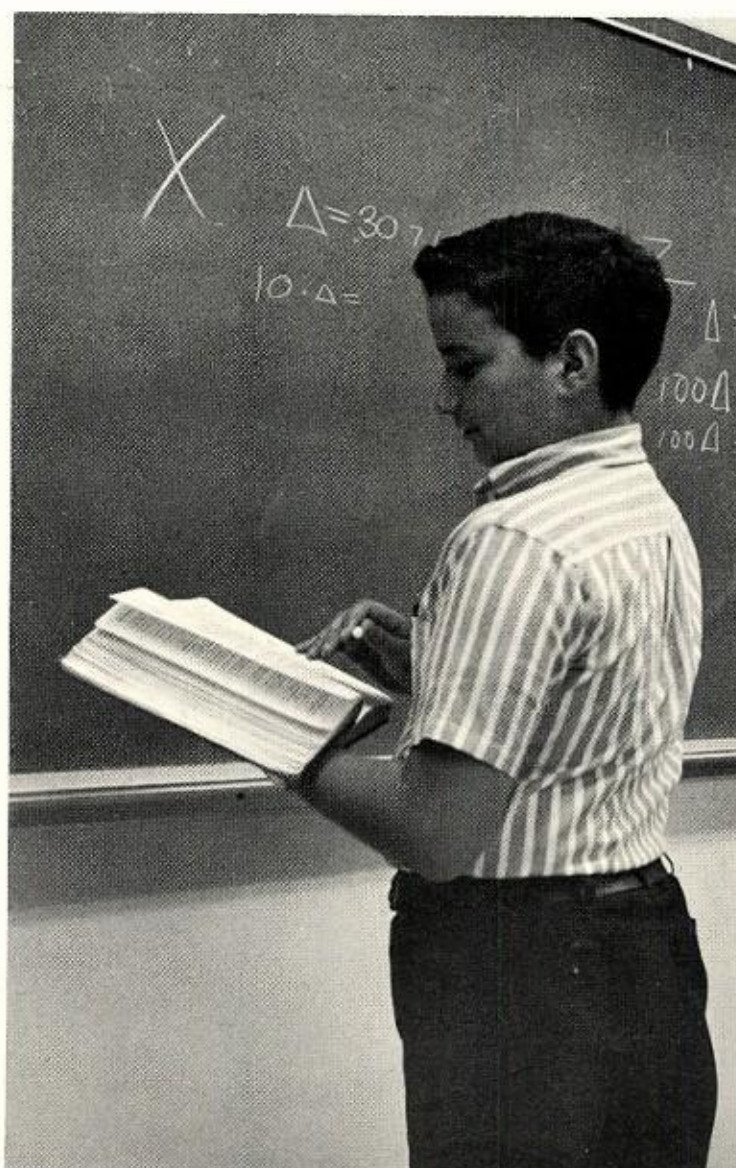

Visual aids and graphs were used to comprehend algebraic functions by James Johnson, Linda Marinier, and Patricia Hartigan.

Algebraic functions were plotted along the ordinate and abscissa by Ken Hamel and Diane Barz.

Practice in evaluating algebraic expressions were useful for John Veneris.

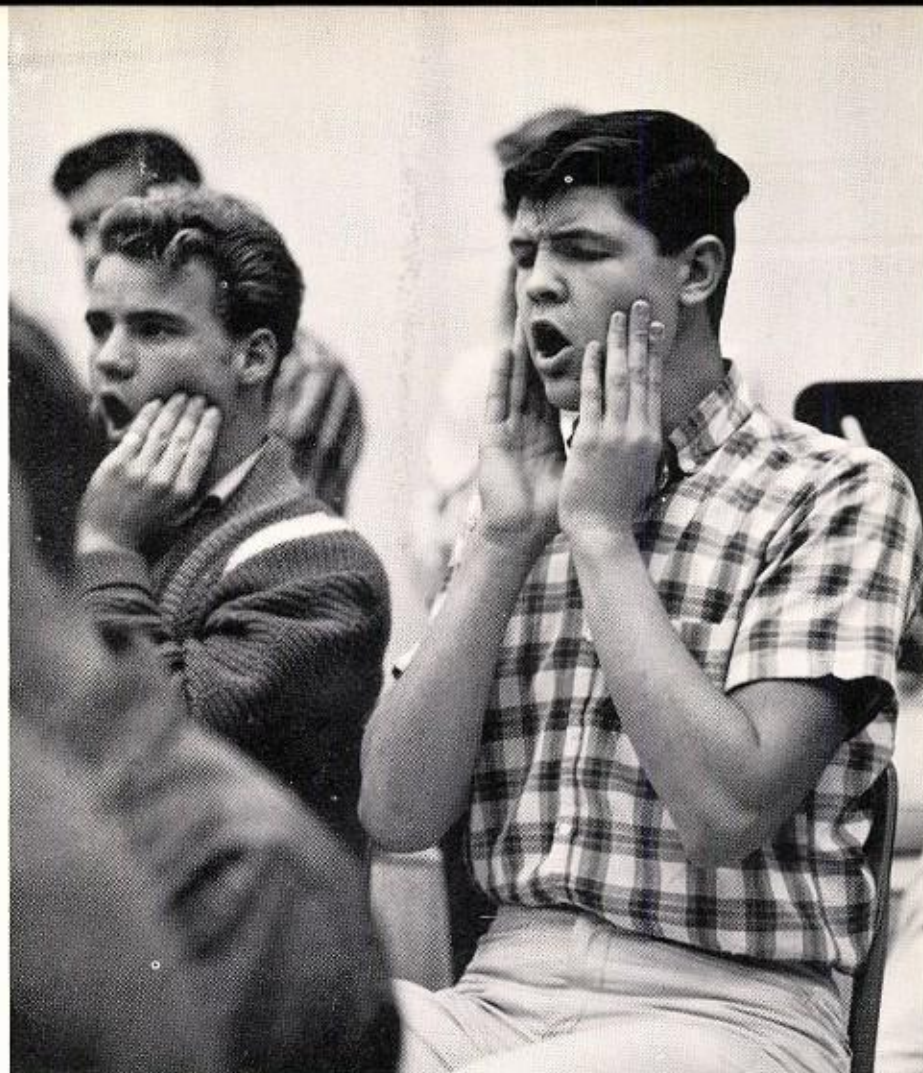

Practice on a new arrangement required concentration on the musical score in Campus A Cappella Choir with Mr. Geis.

New music courses were introduced into the curriculum. A greater range of musical content was evident in the various courses offered. Students now chose from such courses as music theory, harmony, composition, beginning piano, beginning or advanced choral or instrumental performance. Band and choral groups played an important role in school events. Selected musicians from all three buildings combined to form the Marching Band, which performed at many games, parades, and contests. The Concert Band and the Concert Choirs reached their zenith of perfection at the Christmas and Spring concerts for the community. The Concert Orchestra gave its major performance at the Operetta in the Spring. A select Varsity Band played for all the home basketball games. The Stage Band entertained audiences with popular music before several concerts.

Practice to learn new music and prepare for concerts occupied the attention of the Northeast A Cappella Choir.

Perfecting choral techniques through vocal exercises were Fred Haohn and Gene Ricketts in the Campus A Cappella Choir.

Music Department

Needed experience for advanced instrumental music was gained by David Schulz in Beginning Orchestra.

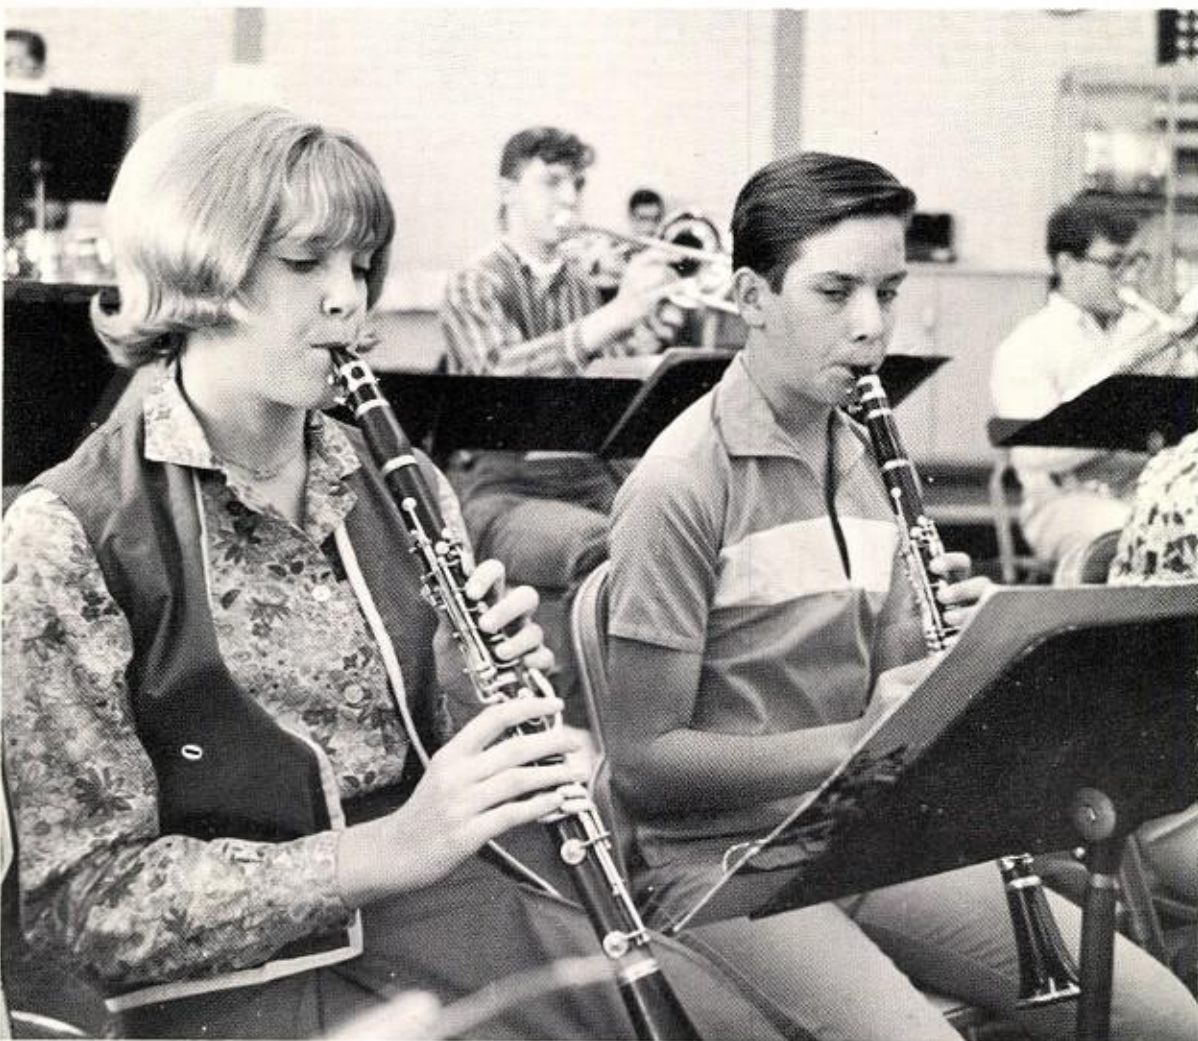

Students took advantage of piano instruction offered for the first time this year.

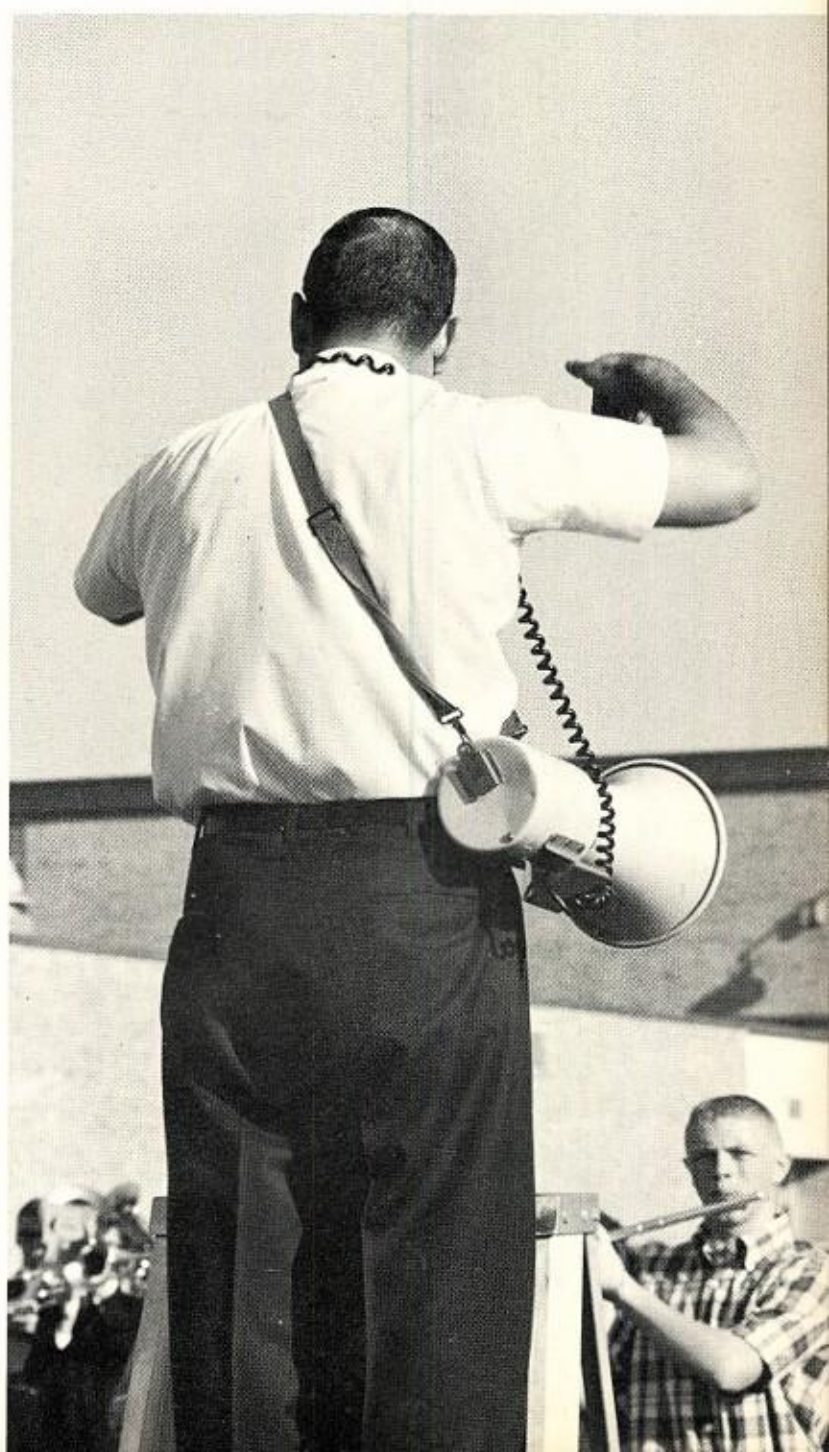

Mr. Hopper, guest director, demonstrated correct voice techniques as Liz Klein accompanied him.

concerts enriched our cultural heritage

Ruth Wierenga and Mike McWatters concentrated on a clarinet duet.

The marching band, under the direction of Mr. Idle, practiced daily in preparation for games and parades.

Employed at the Oak Lawn Trust and Savings Bank, Barbara Bober was instructed on the operation of the proof machine by Joan Overholfer.

Office Occupations, a work-study program for high school seniors, started this fall for the first time. Under the supervision of Mr. Raymond Hoffman, the program was designed to give students skills which would make them readily employable in the business world upon finishing high school. Several girls enrolled in Office Occupations earned a salary while completing their high school education. The jobs these students held were helpful in forming business personalities needed in the future.

Physical Education

Second-hour gym class at Northwest played alley speedball in the fall. Players shown were Eileen Blum, Carol Fitch, Ginger Cole, Leslie Lesner, Barb Klinghamer, Peggy Roulo, and Carol Kline.

Unless students were exempted by a medical excuse, physical education was a required course. The instructors in physical education were exceptionally well-qualified for the job. This fine staff was very much interested in improving the physical fitness and skills of all the students to make them healthier and more successful in their other classes as well. A test of that improvement was the AAHPER Youth Fitness Test. It was generally quite noticeable that the good school citizens scored much higher in physical fitness. Physical education thus gained definite recognition for the building of well-rounded individuals. Good minds were more alert and active in strong bodies.

Seventh-hour gym class at Northwest played a fast game of alley speedball with Barb Kman, Sandy Sonnenschein, Kathy Wochnik, and Debbie Harris leading the action.

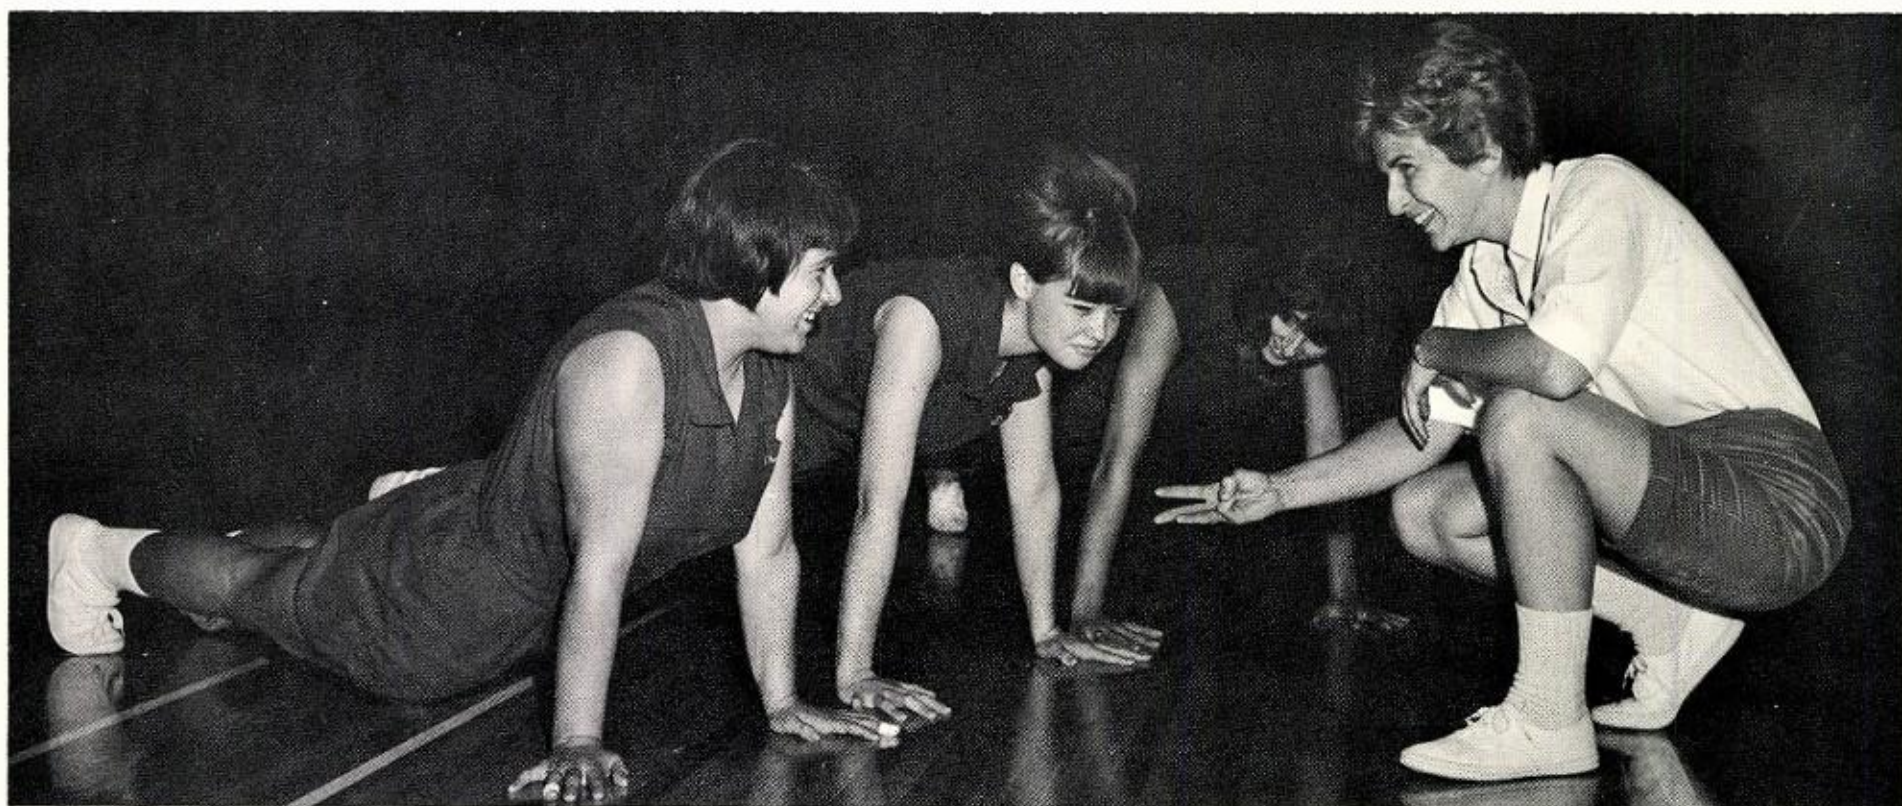

Timing for Jim DeLorme in the shuttle run, a part of the AAHPER Physical Fitness Test, gave Mr. May enjoyment.

Grabbing a half nelson on Pete Gerike, Gerry Landman gained the advantage in wrestling class at the Campus gym.

Margaret Cavera, Sandra Miklian, and Sheila Sula tried harder to get in that extra push up, while Mrs. Kelm counted.

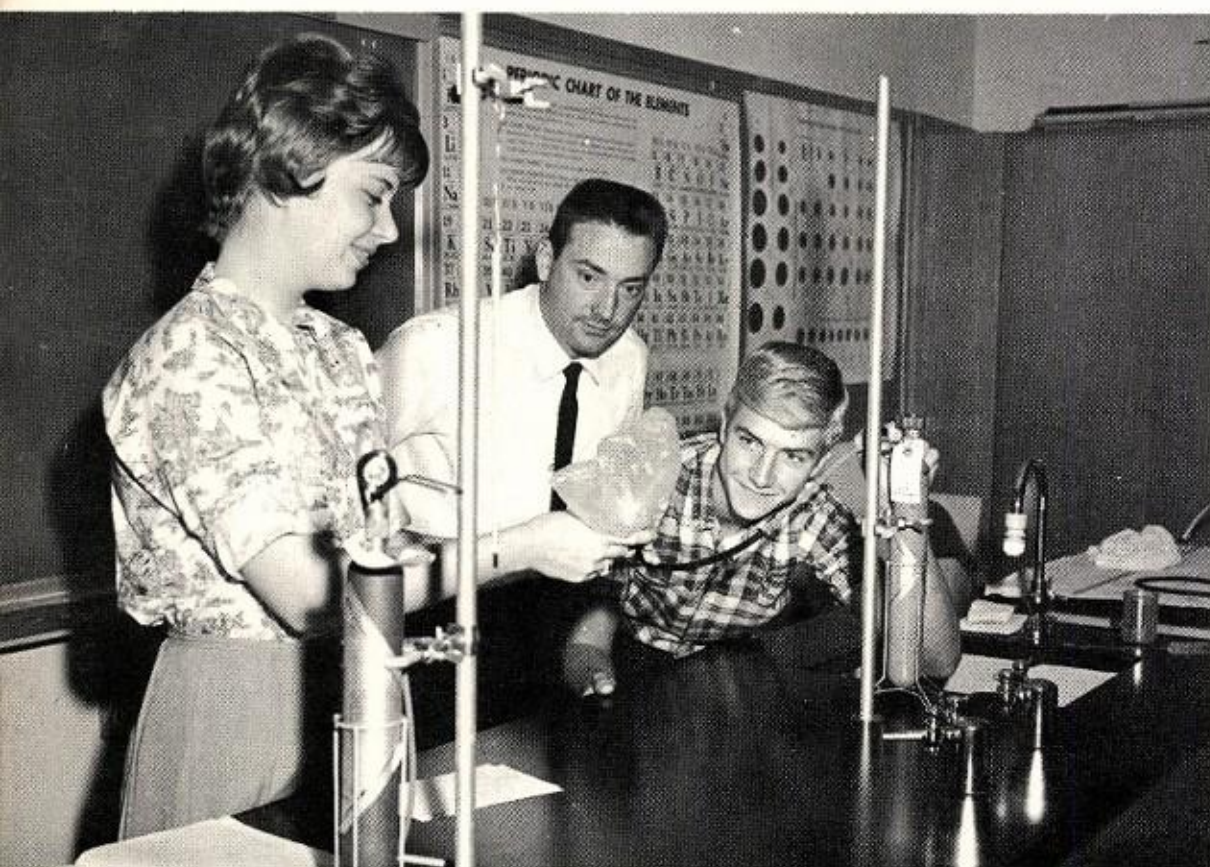

Debbie Richardson and Judy Pope began a vigorous game of alley speedball.

Gary Weiler and Bert Dahlman observed Jim Martinez taking part in the physical fitness test.

Science studies were stimulated

Mr. Frigo observed Gerry Knoll and Harold Hogan as they conducted an experiment using specific volumes of hydrogen gas.

A small explosive reaction took place as chemistry students Tom Duschene, Peggy Dannowitz and Robert Mayor combined sugar and sulfuric acid.

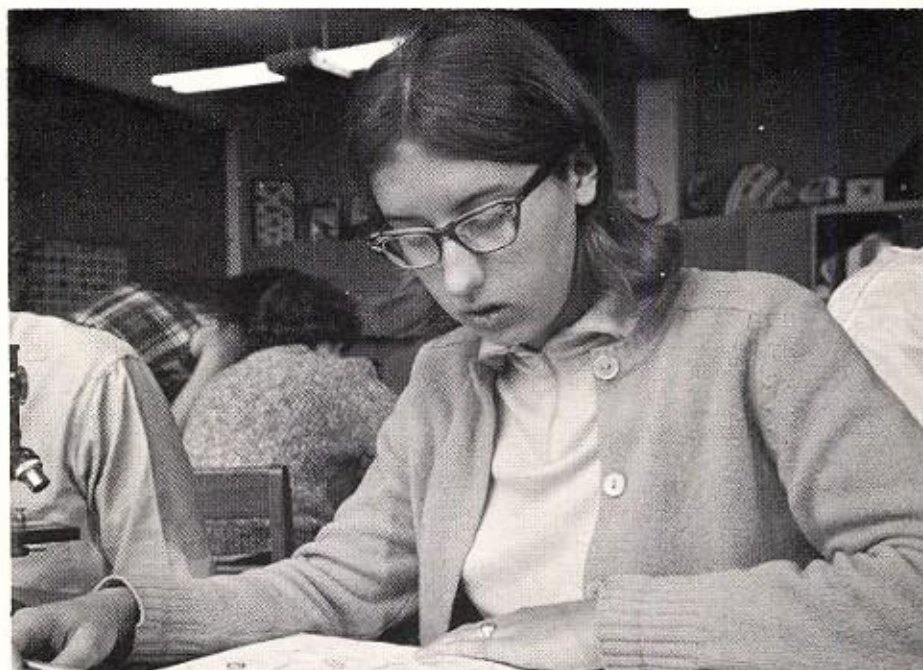

Miss Lau's biology class did informative experiments on dissecting.

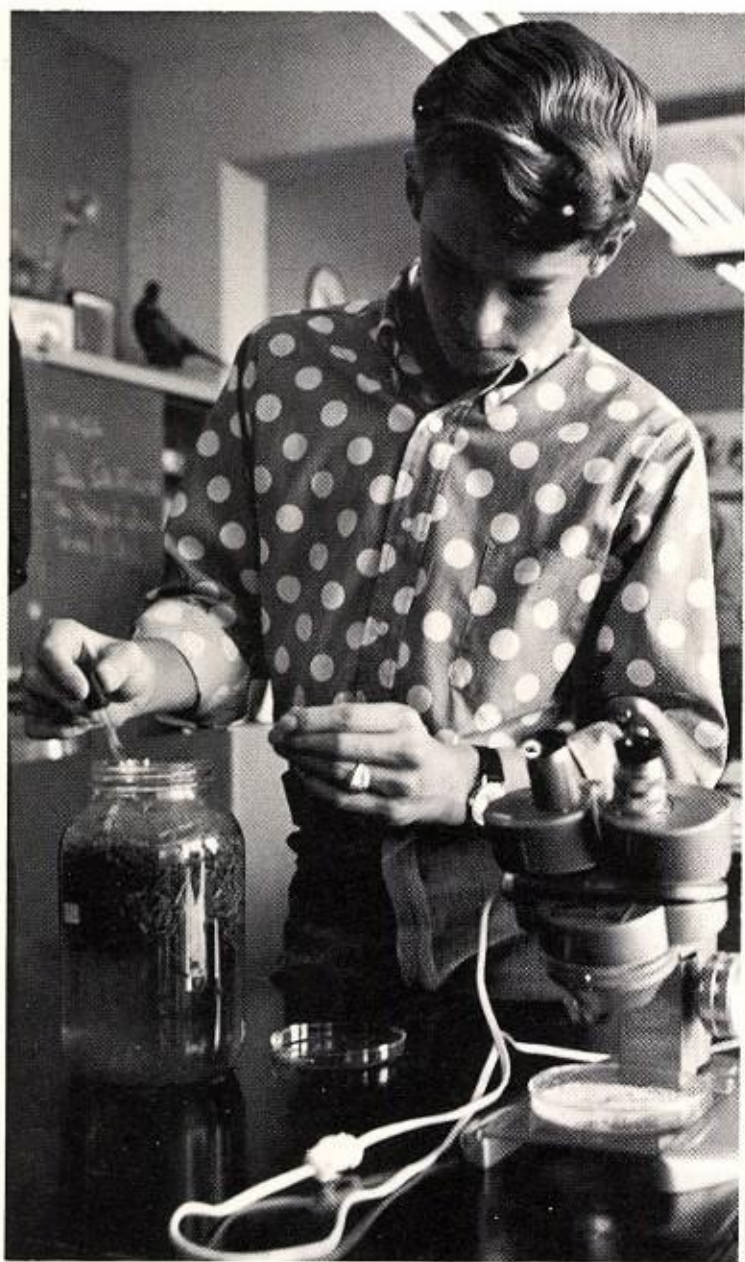

New programs were developed in all areas of science. Beginning with the freshman year, a double-track general science and physical science program was introduced. Two levels of biology were taught in the tenth grade by means of the blue and yellow version books put out by the Biological Science Curriculum Study. Eleventh grade chemistry used a new program of teaching with Chem-Study materials which included a textbook and a specially planned laboratory manual. A course in chemistry was also incorporated for those students who were not presently college oriented.

Twelfth grade physics teachers also developed the two-level program. The courses followed a technical approach but remained college acceptable in the event a student should change his mind later in the year.

Lad Heisten prepared to make a microscopic survey of a two week old bay infusion by smearing it on a glass slide.

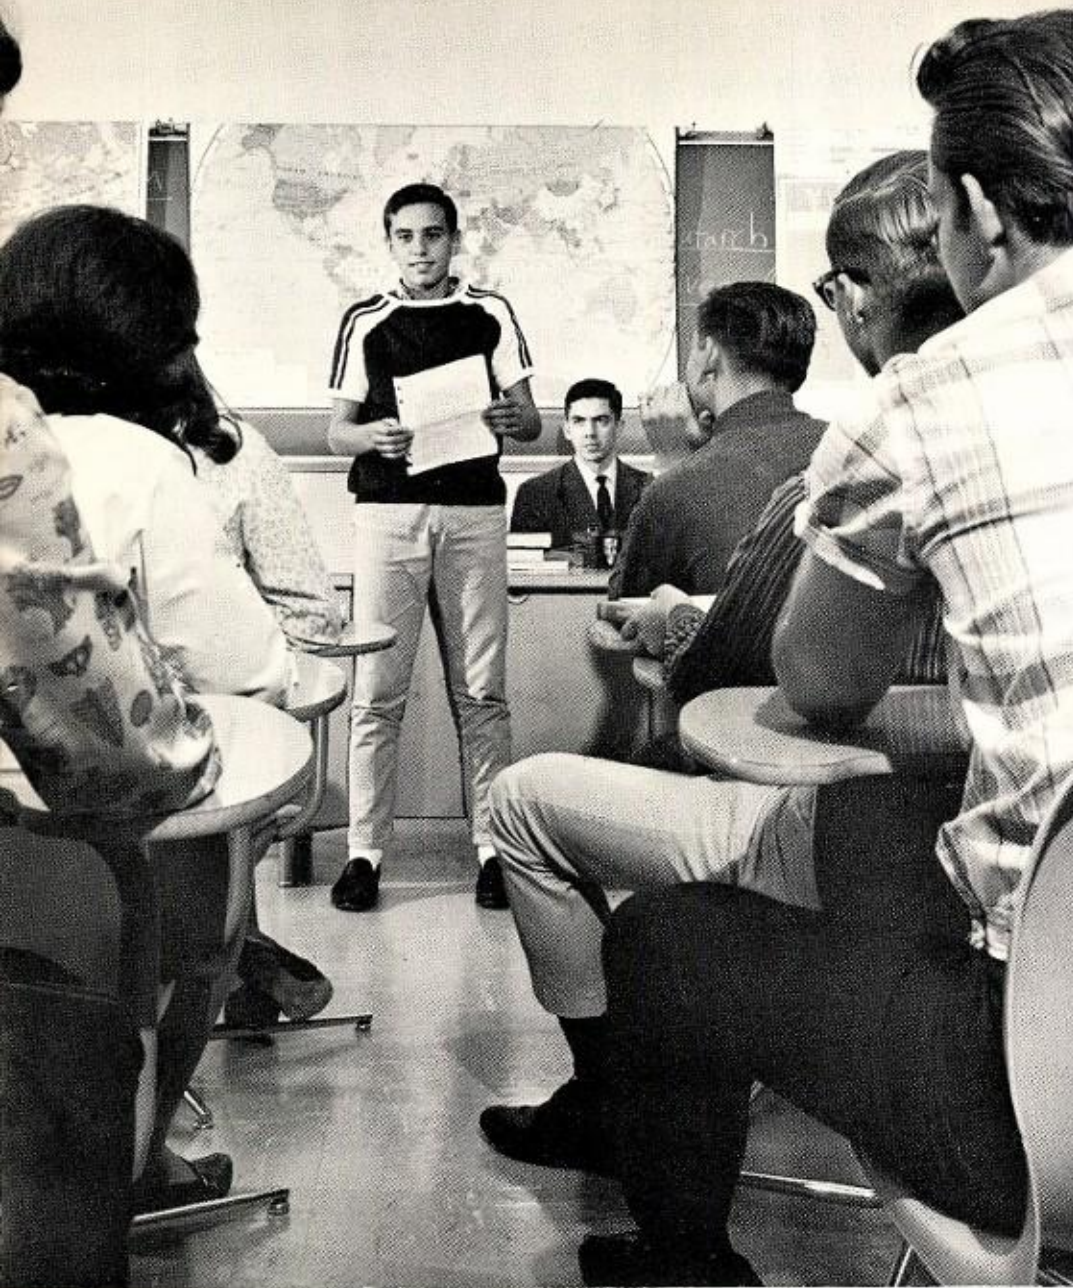

Randall Gilbert and Jan Feters helped Ken Hamel perform a physics experiment on the refraction of light.

Mrs. Brown explained the life span of pond water cultures to Mike O'Mara and Dawn Rutkowski.

With the use of hydrogen and oxygen, Mr. Frigo performed the simple experiment of producing water.

Jeff McCoy gave a report on the trouble spots of the world in Mr. Moore's World History class.

The Social Studies Department provided many different courses to pursue. Freshmen could begin with Geography, Citizenship, and Conservation. Many sophomores went on to World History, and all juniors were required to delve into American History. Government and Economics, which were required of all seniors for graduation, played a very important part in the program. Seniors were taught standards of the United States and its government before becoming adult voters.

Economics and Government teachers revealed that they would like to teach more of a variety in courses, such as Russian and Southeast Asian Government, and would also like to introduce something new--team teaching. This department was extremely well-organized and gained the interest of many students.

Under Mr. Racey's direction, Rick Vendel completed the examinations for his drivers permit by taking an eye test.

Counseling and Special Education

By looking through various college catalogs and other pamphlets, Lois Schubert selected colleges and made applications for admission under the guidance of Mr. Vanderberg, Campus counselor.

Studying next year's senior curriculum, Marjorie Becker planned that very important year with Mrs. Lohnstein, Campus counselor.

Planning her future high school curriculum, Barb Zeller discussed required and elective courses with Miss Arms, Northwest counselor.

Helping students understand their academic strengths and weaknesses, Mr. Van Kirk, Northwest counselor, explained the results of tests for Gloria Stevens and Donna Sturgeon.

An excellent counseling staff was provided at Harold L. Richards High School for the students. Patience and understanding and an honest interest in the welfare of the student body were reasons for the success of their endeavors. There were nine counselors distributed among all three buildings. They talked with students in office or classroom regarding academic or personal problems.

The counseling staff served purposes other than helping students with personal problems. During the beginning of the second semester, they helped students determine their curriculum for the next year. The college-bound student had many needs fulfilled by the counselors. They not only went over college requirements but helped conduct such tests as the A.C.T. and the S.A.T. Regardless of their problems, students always felt free to discuss them with counselors.

prepared students to plan careers

College Night gave many parents and students the opportunity to learn facts about future education from different representatives.

Reading a controversial report, Mrs. Derks awaited the next student in the counseling office.

Special Education helped to prepare the handicapped for satisfying jobs and civic duties within their capabilities. These students required a modified program suited to their educational needs much more than a schedule of regular, competitive academics. They were provided with a well-rounded curriculum in skills adjusted to the individual pace and level of learning. Many of the students had the opportunity to participate within limits in art, music, homemaking, shop, and physical education.

Carmello Narolewski explained time differences around the world to Richard Daly, Donna Sotor, and Eleanor Benbow in a Special Education class under the direction of Mr. Bruce.

Office staff organized school business

The secret of good organization was evident in the operation of the separate offices of the high school cluster. The competent and efficient office staff had the responsibility of assisting with such essential plans as organizing class schedules, activities, transportation, and bookkeeping information.

The office staff was always more than willing to give its assistance, whether dealing with principals, teachers, parents, or students. A visit to any of the offices gave people an immediate insight into the efficient work in progress. Staff members acted on a steady flow of details to provide for a smooth-functioning school.

Information about Tom Marsh's injury was recorded by Mrs. Middaugh at Campus.

Three registered nurses comprised the nursing staff of our school, Mrs. Middaugh at Campus building, Mrs. Richardson at Northeast building, and Mrs. Schultz at Northwest building. These dedicated nurses gave first aid, offered needed advice, and helped make students feel at ease. The offices at each school were well-equipped with all the latest first aid equipment, and a nurse was available in each building during all school hours. First aid for minor ailments was given at once, and the more serious cases were referred to family doctors. The nurses were not there simply to evaluate illnesses and give first aid, however. They were also concerned with teaching students better health habits. Our school was proud of its nursing personnel and confident that they could properly handle or refer any problem that might arise concerning student health.

Students' hunger was easily satisfied in the friendly, comfortable atmosphere of the cafeteria. Students could gaze through the spacious picture windows while eating and shiver at the cold elements or dream of the fresh spring air.

One of the most pleasant things about the cafeteria was its decor which drew comment from many. Colorful, form-fitted chairs and excellent lighting provided for an exceptionally pleasant eating arrangement. The immaculate condition of the equipment used to prepare the food and the spotless chairs and tables added to the appetizing design. Besides providing the students with carefully planned and prepared meals, the cafeteria served as a meeting place for friends to exchange opinions or even engage in chess games. The modern tables that could be folded and rolled away allowed the cafeteria to be easily converted into a dance floor or stage.

Our maintenance men and bus drivers

Transportation to and from school each day was efficiently run by the bus drivers. These men kept their schedules and picked up waiting students in all types of weather. Bus service was also available to games away from Harold L. Richards and other events at other schools. There was no extra charge for bus service to and from school. The bus drivers were always friendly with all students and mixed pleasure with their jobs. Being skilled mechanics, the bus drivers kept the buses in good condition.

Student organizations formed the heart of social life during the school year. There were clubs that appealed to every interest, and a vast majority of the student body participated in at least one. Organizations planned many activities throughout the year. Every club decorated a wall during the Christmas season, and each club built a float for the homecoming parade. Field trips that combined cultural interest with enjoyment were typical of many of the club activities. The functions of most clubs contributed to strong school spirit and support.

Organizations were formed at the beginning of the year when students elected officers and designed their initial plans and purposes. Each organization planned meetings at least once a month throughout the year. The meetings evoked many creative ideas from the members, and the leaders proved to be responsible as they accomplished set goals. Many members of the faculty contributed their time and effort to sponsor and guide the clubs.

This year the National Honor Society again presented honorary memberships to ten per cent of the senior class and five per cent of the junior class. Requirements for National Honor Society included a high scholastic average, active participation in two or more activities, leadership and general good character. The names qualified for possible membership were presented to various faculty members. The teachers then gave their final votes on who they thought were the best candidates. The new members' names remained a well-guarded secret until the annual National Honor Society induction ceremony in the spring.

Hard work, interest, and determination throughout all four years of high school gave a few seniors the satisfaction of being in the top ten percent of their class. This rating also made them eligible for certain National Honor Society requirements.

The grades of these students averaged together resulted as B or better. As high grades are essential for admission into most colleges, this proved an incentive for seniors who were looking towards future education as far back as their freshman year.

Students who served on the student council were elected representatives who acted for the entire student body. Student Council promoted school functions and demonstrated the enthusiasm that made activities successful.

Always eager to learn the majority view and personal feelings of the students, the council listened intently to suggestions. Establishing tradition and customs and smoothing out the rough edges of the relatively new organization were a part of the council's responsibility.

Student council members held regular meetings every Friday during the last period of the day. During the year, sock hops, dances, fad days, and other activities enjoyed by the students were planned. The council typified a form of government respected by all, and the student body was able to voice themselves through and identify with this "government."

Harold L. Richards was well represented on the television program, "It's Academic," on January 7, by Dianne Dado, Ken Hamel, and George Engelmenn. These students competed with teams from Elmwood Park and Wauconda High School and captured second place.

In preparation for the televised match of wits, our academic team poured over books and hundreds of possible questions which ranged from difficult mathematics problems to sports and opera. Contestants were required to think and answer fast to succeed in the game. Alternates for the show were Bob Hanson, Sue Miclow, Pat Lenart, and Janie Stevens.

Fast modes of talking and instantaneous response typified the needed qualities for the highly successful debate team. Preparations for the cases involved long hours of research. The practices after school proved to be well rewarding as the club brought honor to our school. Under the auspices of Mr. Maxcy, the team went on to many meets. Debate members often read the announcements over the intercom system to develop better speech habits and pronunciation. Membership was compiled to students from all three buildings. Those who earned enough points by participating in various tournaments and staging successful debates could become members of the National Forensic League, an honorary debate society.

Students with a wide variety of talent displayed their skills by participating in the popular Drama Club. Young men and women rehearsed long hours studying their lines and preparing themselves for upcoming plays. Students traveled to many area schools and performed one act plays that were widely acclaimed. Students with less ability as actors could donate their services to scenery, make-up and directing. Combined efforts of the actors, directors and prop workers insured successful performances.

Speech Club enabled students with oratorical abilities to express themselves in public. Members were able to compete with students from other schools. There were many categories that students could enter in accordance with their special talents. Mrs. Murray, sponsor of the club, coached the members in events that varied from poetry reading to comedy. In the South Suburban League Tournament, Gerritt Kerkstra placed second in serious readings, and Linda Gorski took third in after-dinner speaking.

Writing headlines and captions for the Golden Year required careful thought and planning as was exerted by Linda Cloutier.

Actual work for the Golden Year began in September with the beginning of school. The theoretical work and general preparation began during the summer of 1966 when the editor and co-editor attended workshops held at the University of Wisconsin and Northern Illinois University.

The purpose of the Golden Year was to record important events, organizations, and student life that composed the story of the year. The addition of several large color pictures, a variety of candid shots, and an increase in the number of pages added unusual interest to a greater 1967 Golden Year.

To help complete the Golden Year Sandra Drenthe, June Sebe, and Denise Ostertag worked steadily.

Experience and capability were prevalent on the staff of the Bow Wow Bulletin. Dianne Dado, who served as co-editor last year, held the job of editor. She attended many conferences and workshops in preparation for her position. Perhaps the most memorable event for the staff was the first-place award received by the newspaper from Quill and Scroll, a nationally recognized journalism association.

The staff achieved fine quality and interesting presentation of their articles. Students eagerly anticipated the issues that were distributed by-monthly. On special occasions, such as Homecoming, an extra edition was printed which highlighted the events of general interest.

Checking articles for the Bow Wow Bulletin were Harriett Oudsteyn and Dianne Dado, editor.

Organizations entertained and informed

Open to both juniors and seniors, the Fine Arts Club proved to be one of the most active at the campus building. Anyone interested in learning more about drama, music, painting and other graphic arts was encouraged to join. Monthly meetings were held and the club engaged in many special activities. What is a Painting? was shown at one meeting and Darlene Wasielewski demonstrated basic ballet at another. A trip to the Art Institute took place in October, and the club went downtown to view Half a Sixpence in December.

Boys of the Euclidean Club devoted their time to serving at luncheons, banquets, and other school functions. Members were selected on a basis of excellent grades, character and integrity. Members were usually chosen from their math classes. Miss Schaal, the sponsor of Euclidean Club, aided the boys in acquiring the proper politeness and etiquette required for serving. Boys chosen for service in the Euclidean Club considered it an honor.

students of many different subjects

All the activities of the International Exchange Club were based on the desire to sponsor a student from a foreign land and allow him to attend our new campus building. This worthwhile goal would spread a generous amount of good will to other nations and increase international understanding. This past year no student came to our school because of lack of funds. I.S.E. met once a month to discuss fund raising projects. Among the efforts to raise funds were the sale of lollipops and a theater party.

The Future Teachers of America Association sponsored many activities for its members throughout the year that helped to develop the incentive to become a teacher. By participating in an actual teaching project, members were able to receive a true picture of the teaching career. The monthly meetings often featured an informative speaker who gave vital suggestions to future teachers. At one of the meetings, a representative from Ray Page, Superintendent of Schools, was present to increase the students' knowledge of laws concerning education in Illinois.

in world history and culture

Latin Club continued in its traditional manner and held its annual Latin Club Banquet which only members were allowed to attend. Members were required to come wearing the ancient garb of the Romans and carry out many of the Roman customs. Latin Club was very interested in promoting a strong interest in the Latin language. Many of its activities were held with the idea of acquiring more knowledge of Roman culture and phases of life.

The Russian language became part of our curriculum for the first time last year and therefore the enrollment was not very large. Students in either their first or second year of Russian who were anxious to expand their knowledge of the Soviet Union were eligible to join Russian Club. Efforts were made to banish many of the fallacies about the foreign country and to present the club members with a true picture of the life and customs.

Awaiting the start of the Homecoming Parade, participants stood near artistically decorated cars ready to go.

Spanish students interested in extra activities joined Spanish Club. This popular organization planned fiestas and worked on special projects during the year. Spanish Club was sponsored by Mrs. Otten, and the president was Joanne Sharka. Vice-president was Michele Klein; secretary-treasurer, Darlene Schoenstedt; and Dan Strutzenberg was reporter. Program chairman was Pam Cripe.

Although many times they saw the same movie over and over again, members of the Pro Club kept themselves constantly on the job. During their meetings they learned the structure of the equipment and how to operate and maintain each type of projector. These boys proved to be especially useful when parts of the equipment were not running properly. Led by Mr. Frigo, the boys often found enjoyment and satisfaction as they aided others.

Paps Club set up and operated the public address system at school events. These boys learned how to operate the equipment and set it up efficiently for assemblies, lectures, and sports events. During Paps Club meetings, the members studied audio-electronics and became well acquainted with the equipment with which they worked. With these acquired skills, the students in Paps Club hoped to use their knowledge in some future vocation, and until that day they will continue to serve our school.

Students with a keen interest in numerical problems, their solutions, graphs, or geometric objects participated in either T.A.G. Club or Mu Alpha Theta. Mu Alpha Theta had a limited membership because of the advanced requirements for entrance. Responsible for the publication of the Math Journal, a creative mathematics magazine, the literary talents and puzzle skills of members were utilized. Any interested student enrolled in algebra, geometry or trigonometry could join T.A.G. Club.

Girls Club could boast of possessing the largest membership. It included all the girls enrolled at all three buildings in the cluster. Active membership, a somewhat smaller number, could be attained by accumulating six points by a date in the spring. Points were awarded for work on the various club projects and attending meetings. The biggest events planned by the Girls Club were the Turnabout Dance, Dad and Daughter Date Night, and the Mother Daughter Reception.

Ninth period Tuesday and Thursday of each week, the members of the Chess Club met to play this intriguing game. The boys could be seen bending intently over the desks that held their chess boards as they tried to plan their next move. The members each had a chess partner for practice games, but they exchanged partners during tournament games. Although advanced members made up the club in the beginning of the year, beginners were encouraged to join during the second quarter.

Six juniors were inducted into Quill and Scroll in the spring of 1966 and formed the international honor society for high school journalists in the fall. Harold L. Richards was granted the authority to establish a chapter on February 14, 1966, and the first meetings were held this year. Activity at the meeting included working on a literary magazine with a separate section assigned to each member. Many journalism and publications students kept the requirements of Quill and Scroll in mind as they contributed to newspaper and yearbook.

DISTRICT 218 ORCHESTRA

Musical entertainment for the Harold L. Richards cluster was provided by the Campus Concert Band, under the direction of Mr. Idle and Mr. Zachow. Some 85 members performed at various school activities, such as sports events and pep assemblies. During the football season the Campus band members, along with selected underclassmen, composed the marching band which demonstrated musical and formation skills during half-time. Many attended and enjoyed the total of five concerts presented by the band throughout the year.

Acting as the right hand of the administration and faculty, the student aids performed their jobs carefully and promptly. They gave up their study hall periods in order to run errands, file papers, correct papers, and attend to other clerical details. Their only recognition was a fourth of a credit and a word of satisfaction from their "employers." Those who were student aids for the office had been exempted from physical education. Finding and checking out books

The library in school was important and helpful to students who used it wisely. The library was efficiently and expertly run by the librarians and their student aids who offered their spare time arranging books on the shelves and lending research materials to students. The library aids kept all materials in order so they could be used by all interested. The librarians appreciated these assistants who helped them throughout the year. The library was enjoyable, as well as informative, because the library aids were so effective in its upkeep and operation.

Senior class elections were made well known through the use of many clever posters.

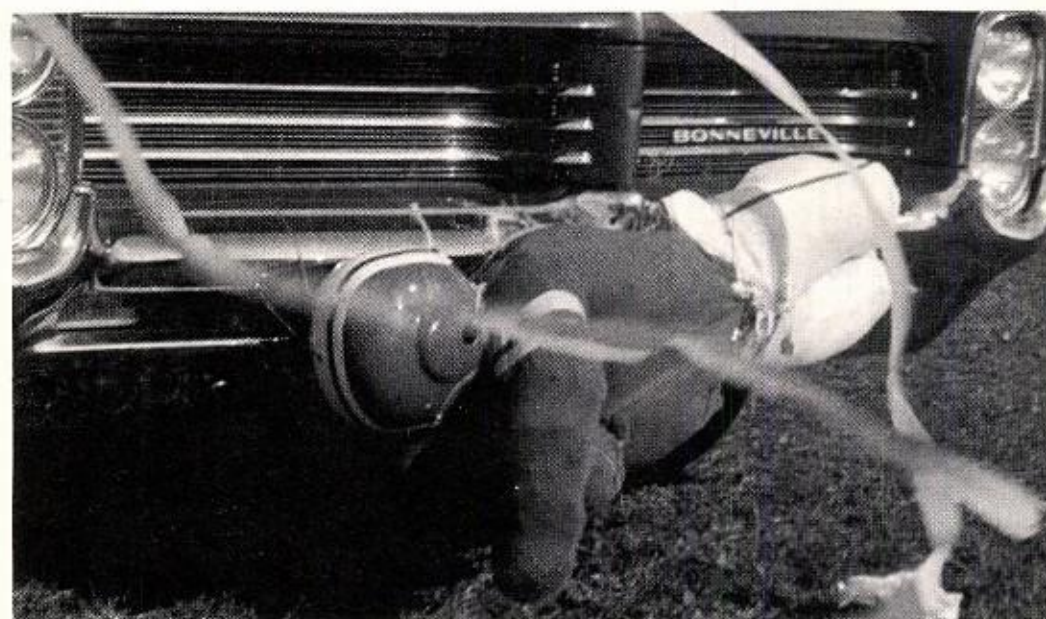

Victim of a football accident, Al Cherry cheerfully hobbled down the stairs between classes for several weeks.

Fred Tuinstra, Dave Kaar, Linda Gorski, and Barb Beck looked in amazement at the huge amount of snow left in front of the school doors by the Great Snow Storm of '67. Several members of Miss Mayor's workroom enjoyed their free taffy apples which they received for contributing the largest sum to the Community Chest Fund.

A straw Eisenhower football player, a victim of apparent defeat, adorned the front of the Golden Year staff float at Richards' homecoming festivities.

with academics

School had its gay moments when "Y" Club Psi Omega played a practical joke on Psi Epsilon for the whole school to view.

Psi Epsilon poked fun at Psi Omega when Gene Cunningham modeled the ideal Psi Omega member.

Promoting better school relationships, Sandy Wachdorf, student council president, acted as hostess when members from Thornton visited for a pep assembly.

When the BIG SNOW fell Mr. Hansen and Mr. Tysall occupied themselves with a thought provoking game of chess.

Showing the Bulldogs ability Pat Lahey skillfully made a point while the Bulldog mascot looked on during a pep assembly.

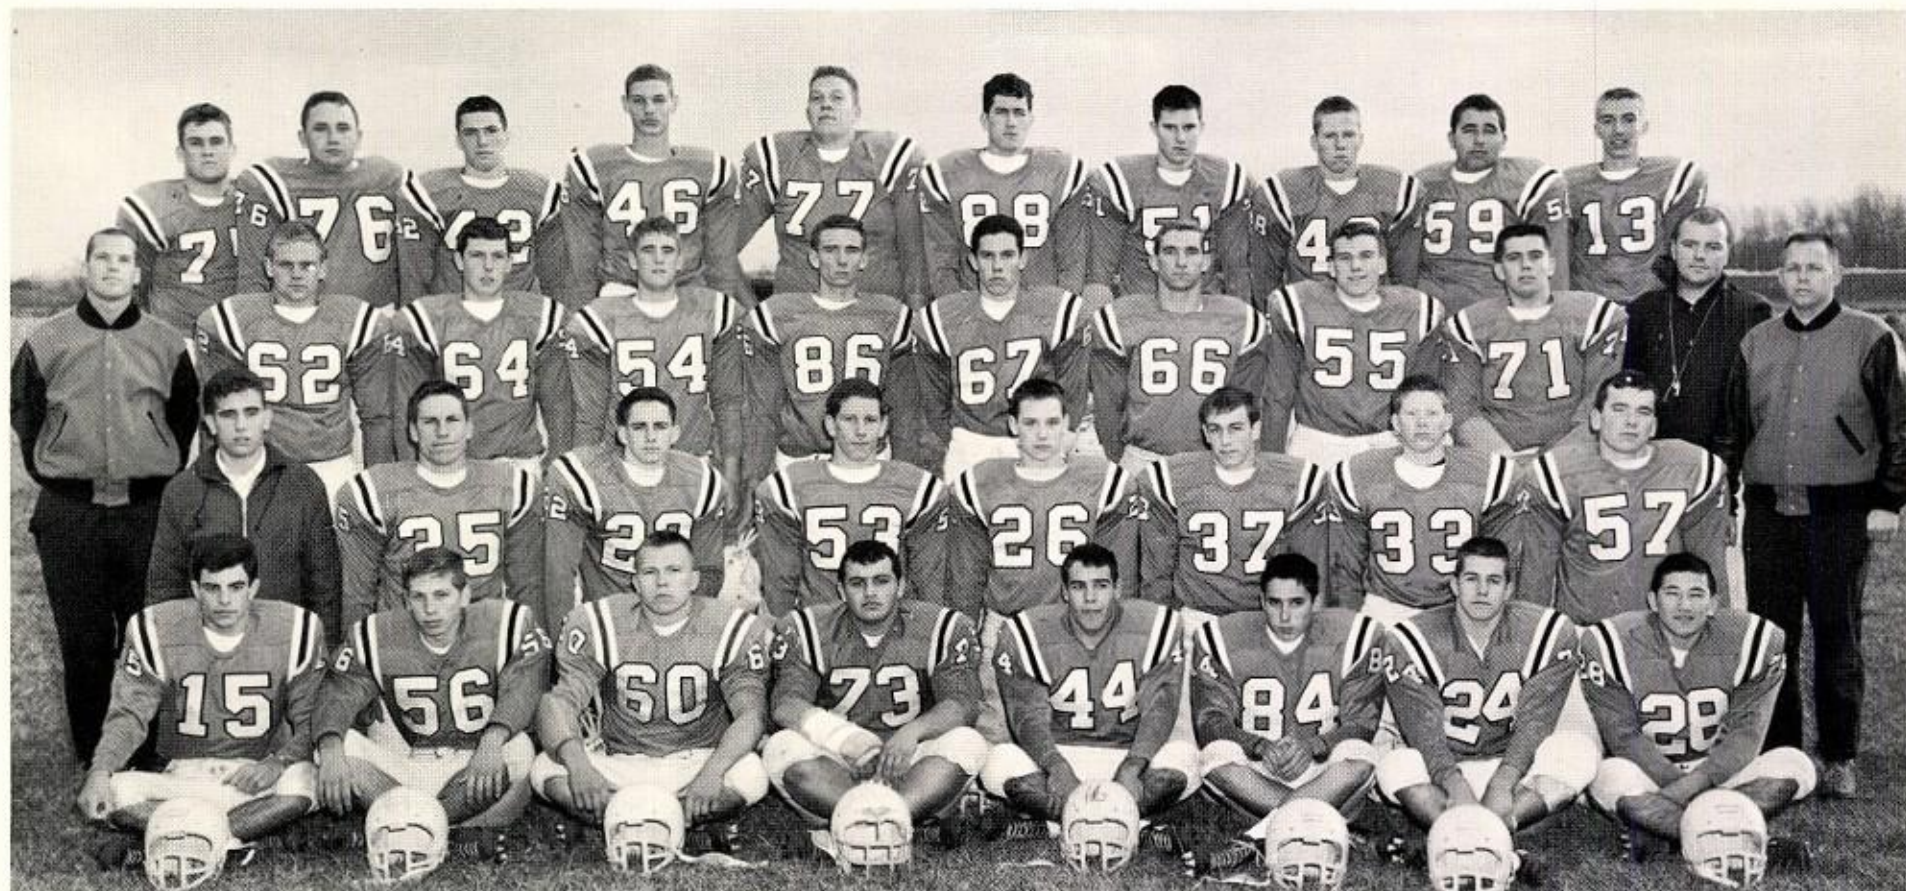

Athletics was responsible for many exciting events and activities that students avidly sought and enjoyed as competitors or spectators. Students who attended the games felt almost the same tension and excitement as the players. Led by the cheerleaders and the new pep club, the High Spirits, the cheering student body provided the players with the enthusiasm and encouragement they needed to fight for victory. School spirit appeared to be rising higher with every event. Booster pins, sold by the student council for the school fans to wear, were completely sold in a few periods.

Physical fitness and long hard practices were necessities for every sport, and athletes often made sacrifices of time and strength in order to compete for their school. Such students who actively participated in the rigors of high school athletics earned genuine recognition and felt a very strong sense of accomplishment. Great strength of character accompanied the stress of building a strong, fit body for the competition in the South Suburban League.

Varsity football exacted great

Well-respected as a student and player, Chuck Dahlke was elected as varsity football captain by the team.

Football has always been a sport that demanded a great deal from the individual. Practice sessions, often carried out in the worst kind of weather, demanded determination. The coaching staff and cheering fans encouraged the players to excel to the limits of their capabilities. Although the varsity did not win its games, it had a fierce will to win. The student body was aware of the severe competition in the South Suburban League and never failed to give the team loyal support. In return for the outstanding teamwork and effort displayed on the field, the members of the varsity team became well-known and respected. Several games proved to be very exciting as the Bulldogs managed to score well against strong opposition.

In a practice huddle, Jim Bobrowicz (36) discussed strategy and directed the next play as Mr. Tysall listened.

Much will be expected of the sophomore team when they begin to play varsity football. Skill and determination highlighted each of their games and convinced the spectators of a rewarding future. The intense games and rugged practice sessions offered the boys plenty of experience. Much of their success could be attributed to the fine coaching staff of Mr. Vock, Mr. Last, and Mr. Aramowicz.

Sophomore football players often received much attention because their games were immediately prior to the varsity games and because they would soon make up the varsity team. The new Campus was still a young school, and the victories of the sophomores became symbols of hope for future games.

Colorguards Martha Korke, Fran Komar, Rick Paus, Peter Davidovitch, Sue Angel, and Judy Paleczny stood at attention while the band executed formations during the varsity game halftime.

Although the freshman team did not come out at the top of the conference, its winning side of the record was admirable. The fine coaching staff of Mr. Fazio, Mr. Zoda, and Mr. Gustafson led the freshman team to four wins against strong league opponents. The freshman team was very important to the school, for the quality of future varsity teams would depend on their character, fortitude, and skill. Ken Langland broke scoring record with

Some of the most thrilling experiences for fans were derived from viewing the Varsity Basketball Team fight until the final buzzer sounded. Watching the fast-moving plays, tricky passes, and skillful outside shooting kept the crowds tense. Victories and losses were reflected in their faces and spirit. Part of the excitement was caused by the knowledge that at the end of the season all teams would find out where they stood in the race to the state tournament at Champaign in early spring.

Gaining position against his Eisenhower opponent, forward Ken Langland grabbed the loose ball.

A sport which was most grueling and required stamina was wrestling. Wrestling, an individual sport, enabled each boy to prove himself at the sport. Wrestling, which has twelve different weight categories, kept each varsity wrestler watching his weight. Our strongest weight categories were between 125 and 150. The team being led by stars like Bob Sands, (all conference football), and John Lazzara, (4th year varsity level), learned the quality of good sportsmanship and also to win and lose in the process.

In the half mile run at Thornridge, Ron Deason placed first.

The Freshman-Sophomore track, coached by Mr. May, compiled an impressive near .500 record this past year. Pacing the Bulldog team and providing the leadership to carry his teammates toward many victories was Dave Balija. Besides winning meets and setting school records, the freshmen and sophomores gained valuable experience which helped them throughout the whole season. Finally, to climax a truly sensational season, the Frosh-Soph team presented Coach May a plaque in appreciation for his outstanding work.

At Thornridge, Bulldog runner Dave Balija crossed the finish line for a first place award.

Golf, the popular Spring sport; demanded an accurate and consistent style of play from the varsity team. The members practiced every day at Palos Country Club or went to participate in matches with other schools. The team consisted of seven Campus juniors and seniors under the direction of Coach Lumpp. They managed to enjoy three precious victories during the season, taking one win each from Eisenhower, Evergreen Park, and Bloom. Pat Dillon was the only sophomore honored with an important place on the varsity golf team. Coach Fazio planned to sponsor the next varsity golf team.

Treasuring the ball that won the match, Pat Dillon discussed the game with his team mates, Hans Kasper and Len Fumi.

Putting successfully for a par four, Pat Dillon showed winning form on the green.

Varsity Baseball required great teamwork

Helping the pitcher warm up for a big game with Dwight D. Eisenhower High School, the varsity catcher, Jerry Kot, kept his eyes on the ball.

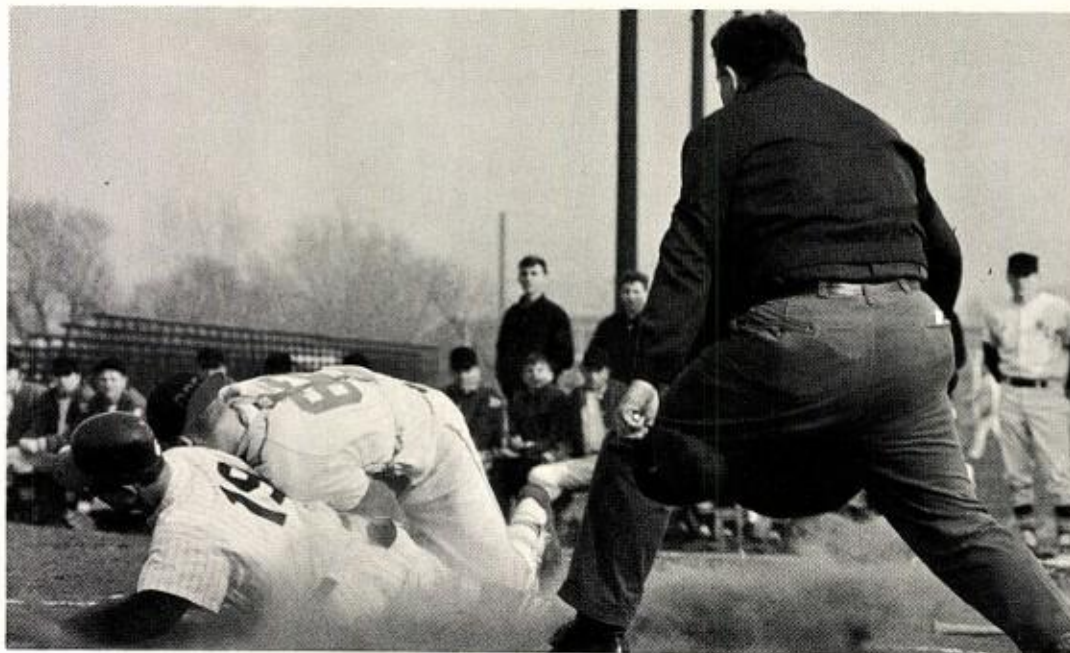

Although hampered by injury and inexperience, the varsity baseball team proved to be a much better team than anyone had expected and much better than the two-wins-and-eleven-losses record would indicate. This was the kind of team that could face defeat and play their very best baseball in spite of it. There were many times when the team was down by only one or two runs and would fight undaunted to the very last inning in an unsuccessful bid to pull out the victory. These boys loved the game of baseball, and they also had the right coach, Mr. James, to teach them to play a tough game like good sports. Our athletes had the will to win and left no doubt about it in the minds of their opponents. They really earned the respect of the South Suburban League.

Team strategy was discussed by Coach James and Mr. Gutches, Director of Athletics.

Terry Arcucci rounded third base as the D.D.E. third baseman awaited the throw from right field.

The umpire called "safe," as Terry Arcucci slid into home plate, on a very close play.

The freshman Bulldog baseball team gained experience and learned how to work as a team through the capable coaching of Mr. Rabold. Although fighting a losing season, our freshmen showed great potential for becoming one of the most powerful South Suburban League Contenders in two years. The future of the varsity baseball teams depended on the skill and potential of these freshman boys.

Following through a fast pitch, Charles Schuffert warmed up for a sophomore baseball game.

The sophomore baseball team made a commendable showing against strong competition with a record of five wins and five losses. Every boy that came out for baseball did his best to help Coach Kero to shape up a winning team. The defensive action of the team was impressive, due to the outstanding pitching of Jeff Janek and great fielding of Rick Murray, John Sallas, Mike Tuma, Chuck Schuffert, and Bob Somerville. Two members of this sophomore team, Jeff Janek and Bob Somerville, were proud to find themselves playing for the varsity baseball team during the district baseball game.

Pitching and playing techniques were discussed by Mr. Kero, frosh-soph baseball coach, with Charles Schuffert.

NORTHWEST G.A.A. OFFICERS: Kathy Carroll, Judy Ryan, Cheryl Dres, Lori Zeiler, and Caryn Conway.

This year the G.A.C. made a big change and became the G.A.A. The former Girls' Athletic Club joined the nationally recognized Girls' Athletic Association. Meetings were held several times a week as the girls participated in various sports on a team basis. Sports such as volleyball and basketball were played to coordinate with gym class instruction and were enjoyed by all the girls who took part. G.A.A. also sponsored several "play days" which were open to the entire student body.

Boys who received varsity letters by participating in at least one organized sport sponsored by the school were eligible to become a member of the Varsity Athletic Club. Another requirement was that he must purchase an activity ticket. V.A.C. was principally a service club. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Zoda the club devoted its time to work at all home games, serving in the concession stands, checking coats, and ushering. Members encouraged and maintained strong school spirit.

NORTHEAST G.A.A. OFFICERS: Derena Elich, Sue Brady, Laura Mathews, and Helen Schweikle.

Varsity cheerleaders were responsible for leading the many fans who attended the varsity basketball and football games in cheers. Practicing twice a week for about two hours, these cheerleaders perfected their high level of precision, and experimented with new cheers.

Also because of their pep, voice, appearance, skill, and coordination, underclassmen were chosen to form a squad to lead chants at sophomore games.

Pam Dresden demonstrated pep and skill, typical of the varsity squad.

Goldenaires ushered at P.F.A. meetings

Harold L. Richards skilled precision marching group, the Goldenaires, consisted of thirty-two juniors and seniors. Under the supervision of Miss Jankowski, the Goldenaires served as usherettes at such important events as class plays, P.F.A. meetings, luncheons, and other activities. Each girl chosen for Goldenaires was required to have neatness and efficiency and had to maintain a C average. Goldenaires met each O period in order to provide this service for the school.

Student life was enriched by clubs, dances, sports, and other exciting events. New clubs were started by groups of students who wanted new and better things for their school. Established clubs and organizations continued their activities and increased in membership. School spirit grew considerably during the year in all three buildings in response to pep assemblies held to cheer the teams to victory and in response to athletics awards assemblies to honor outstanding athletes. While students were learning theoretical and practical information in their classes, the social and recreational life that was available to them after school in student organizations and in special school events gave them other student activities was the key to enriched life. Whether a student was cheering at a pep assembly or working as a student aid for a teacher, he had the opportunity to become an important link in the network of student life. The spirit in which the students conducted themselves was one of eager cooperation and good fellowship.

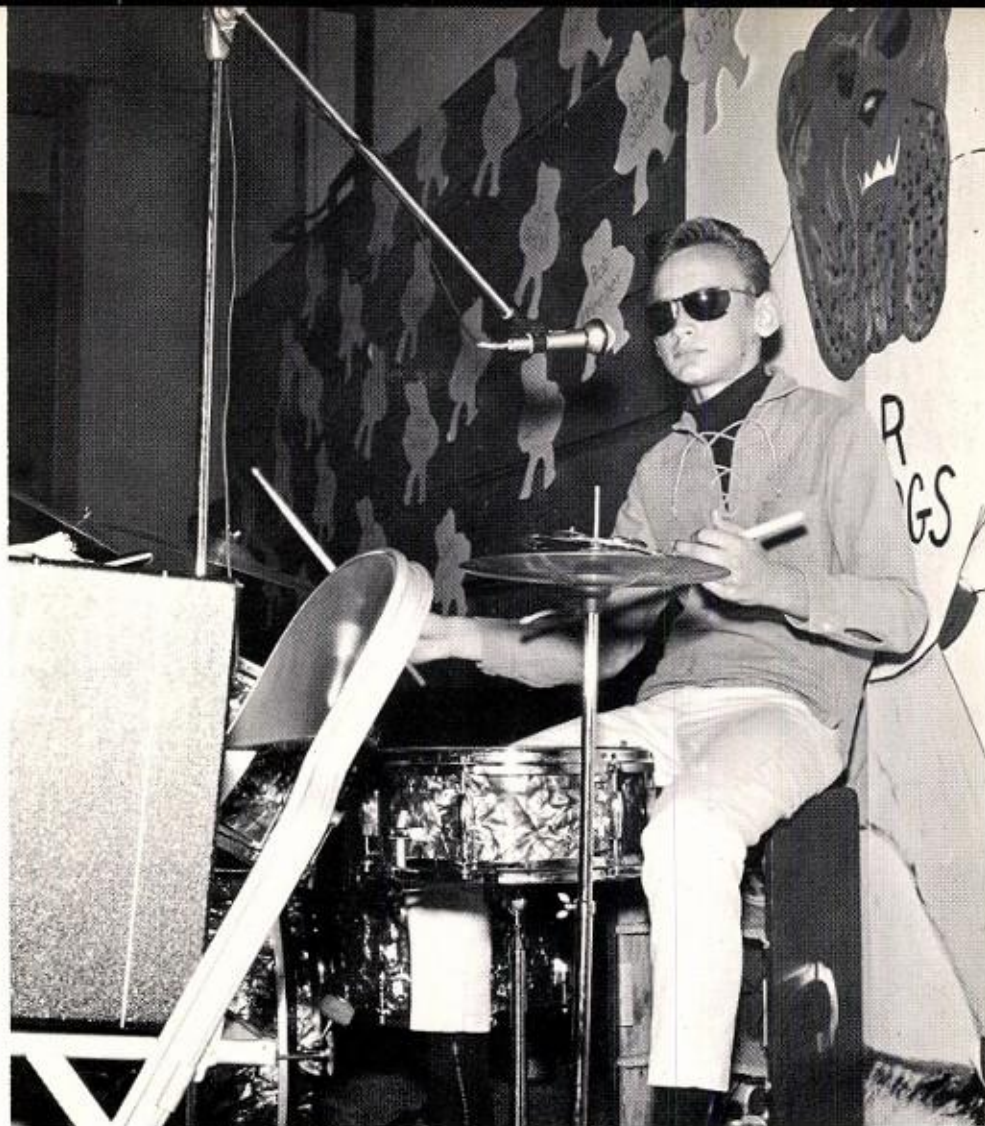

STUDENT LIFE

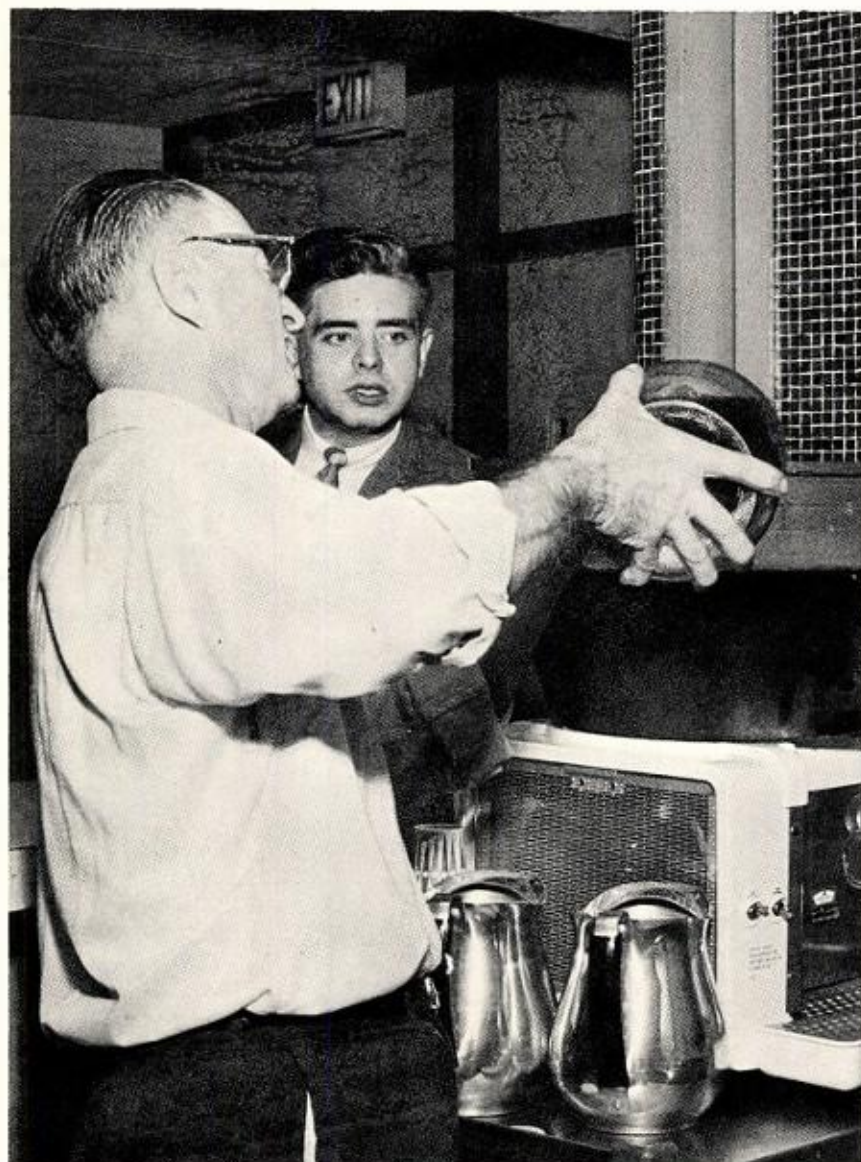

Lively action by Lorri Zeiler was typical of students on the go at the Kick-off Dance.

Surrounded by bulldog motifs, Bob Kot's drums established the rhythm of the action.

Kick-off Dance initiated

Pouring plenty of tasty apple cider at the refreshments stand kept Mr. Claude Peloquin busy as Mr. Vanderberg checked the quality.

September 17, 1966, marked the beginning of the football season. The Girls' Club recognized this event by sponsoring the Kick-Off Dance. Introduction of football players and a speech by Coach Tysall highlighted the evening. The Nightriders, under the direction of Dave Fey, provided enjoyable popular music for the dance. The gym was given a football atmosphere by sportive decorations with a bulldog motif. The players of the sophomore and varsity football teams had their names printed on the decorations. Refreshments of punch and donuts gave the dancers a pleasant moment of rest.

Lots of money earned for the Girls' Club made Terry Phillip and Cindy Tobias very happy at the Coat Check stand.

Jane Lausch descended the steps in a pretty paisley dress.

social whirl in the fall

The afternoon of November 17, 1966, attracted many fashion-conscious girls to the Harold L. Richards Little Theatre where our second annual Girl's Club Fashion Show was being held. The show, featuring all types of clothes from casual to formal evening wear, was presented by the Cinderella Shop in Palos. Girl's Club Officers served as models for the lovely fashions, and the program was narrated by Mrs. Evans, Northwest Girl's Club Sponsor.

The theme of the show was "Follow the Yellow Brick Road." Decorations consisted of the famous characters from the "Wizard of Oz."

Door prizes were awarded to girls by Mrs. Evans at the Girl's Club Fashion Show.

Pat Lindgren modeled a casual dress for the girls.

Ruth Jackson, Sue Pretmar, Cindy Tobias, and Pam LaCoy helped to make real the Girl's Club Fashion show theme, "The Land of Oz."

Modeling striking fashions at the Girl's Club fashion show were Kathy Carroll, Helen Schweikle, Gary Wainwright, (an escort), Terry Phillipp, Andrea Sotor, and Jan Wastak.

Fall Frolic with "Golden-Knight" theme

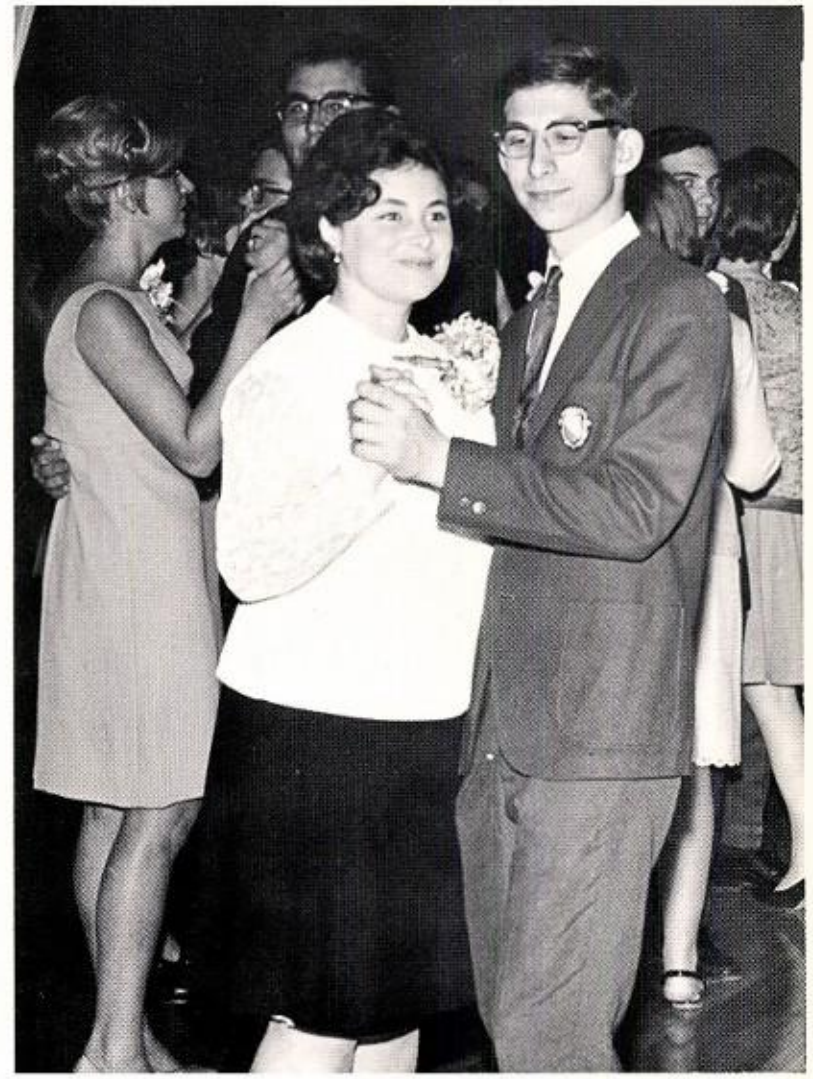

Admiring the Golden-Knight poster, Nancy Knirsch and Ed Hastings enjoyed themselves at the Homecoming Dance.

The Fall Frolic was planned as the first homecoming dance of the new Campus. The theme, "Golden-Knight," set the romantic mood of early medieval times. The Student Council, which sponsored the affair this year, made sure the gym was transformed into a golden fantasy with knights, shields of armor, and a beautiful throne.

The highlight of the evening proved to be the crowning of the king and queen, selected by the senior class. Nancy Voorn and Chuck Dahlke received this honor. The other classes also chose a boy and girl to represent them as members of the court. Delicious refreshments and the lively music of the Don-Tays added to the excitement of the occasion.

As they awaited the coronation, Michele Klein and Jeff Broder visited under the protection of the Golden-Knight.

Dancing to the romantic music of the Don-Tays put Donna Paleczny and Steve Schmiedl in a pleasant mood.

A trophy for the outstanding float in the Homecoming Parade was presented by Tom Langner to Sue Chifo, who represented the Spanish Club at Northeast.

marked zenith of first homecoming

To reign over Richard's first homecoming were Chuck Dahlke and Nancy Voorn.

The Fall Frolic homecoming court for 1966 was Lorri Zeller and Doug Newman (NW), Kathy O'Hare and Gary Wainwright (Junior representatives), Pat Lindgren and Gary Buzanis (2nd. runners-up), Chuck Dahlke (King), Nancy Voorn

Terry Balija, representing the football team, was assisted by Diana Wachdorf in crowning the homecoming queen, Nancy Voorn.

(Queen), Ed Hastings and Sandy Wachdorf (1st runners-up), and Dennis Lejeck and Helen Schweikle (NE).

One hundred ten members of our Harold L. Richards' band awaited the signal to perform at our homecoming game.

Designed and constructed by the 5th hour Psychology class and Miss Mesenkop, the psychology float won first prize in the homecoming parade.

Representing the Northwest band, Michael Omara, Debbie Richardson, Carol Fitch, Steve Kerkstra, and Mr. Habley rode in the car caravan.

Festive activities

F.T.A. float waited for the festive parade to begin the seven mile parade route.

Many people were present on the route of the Homecoming parade to view the long caravan of beautiful floats and to wave at those riding on top of them. Our bands added drama, precision and lively music to the procession. Almost every club at the three buildings could boast of a fine float that displayed careful preparations and clever themes. The band of Northwest, the Spanish Club of Northeast, and the I.S.E. Club of Campus captured the awards that went to the most outstanding floats from each building.

"We Are Expecting a Victory" was the theme of the yearbook float constructed by Ford Smith and the staff.

International Student Exchange Club made a colorful float honoring our bulldogs.

Northeast Spanish Club, sponsored by Mr. Vega, made a bright, huge, sombrero which won first place among all buildings.

The queen candidates Sandy Wachdorf, Nancy Voorn, and Pat Lindgren rode in the colorful parade.

Girls' Club members rode in an array of gold and white balloons.

Members of the Bow Wow Bulletin staff, under the auspices of Mr. Tracy, rode in their entry along the parade route.

Northeast bowling presented a unique float for our homecoming parade.

Officers for the 1966-67 Girls Club were Pat Lindgren, First Vice-President, Diane Barz, President, and Jane Lausch, Second Vice-President.

On the fourth day of May in the Campus II Building, the first annual Mother-Daughter Reception of Harold L. Richards High School was held. A more appropriate theme than "My Fair Lady" would have been difficult to find. The Girls Club sponsored the reception. Both mothers and daughters participated in the presentation of the program which included songs, dances, and humorous skits. The actresses and soloists will be hard to top next year. Installation of officers concluded the program, and to end a delightful evening, refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Alice Engelmann danced to the jingle of her tambourine at the Mother and Daughter Reception.

Moms were delighted with reception;

Martha Dorke was a wild and misunderstood teenager in her skit.

Pam Hearne, Geri Vartunis, Gerry Knoll, and Sally Seagard portrayed Romiet and Julio's parents in a skit presented for the moms.

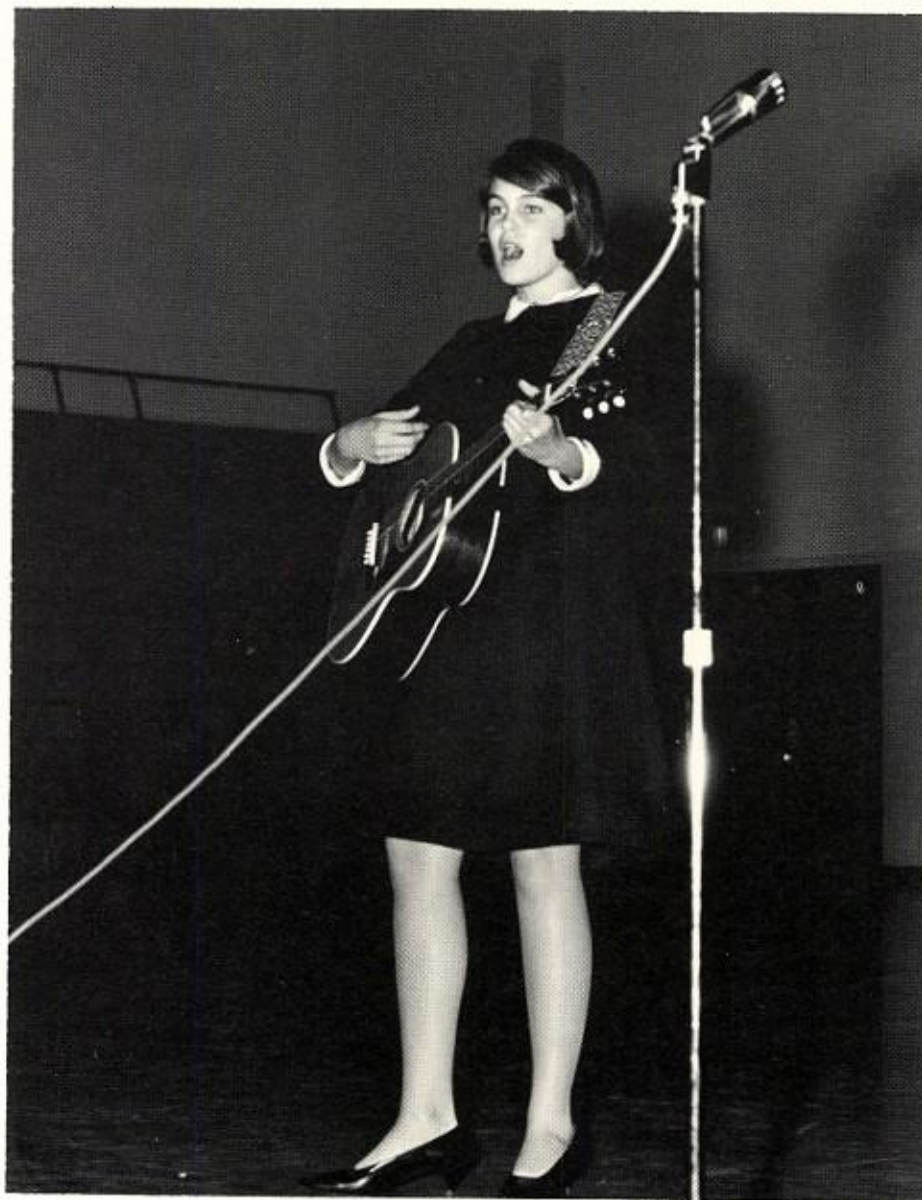

Chatting and eating after a delightful evening were Mr. Reinecke, Chris Reinecke, Jan Wastak, Mr. Wastak, Sally Seagard, and Mr. Seagard.

The theme of Dad and Daughter Date Night, one of the annual events sponsored by Girls' Club, was "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." Many girls proved that their hearts did belong to their dads by inviting them to attend this event held on October 20.

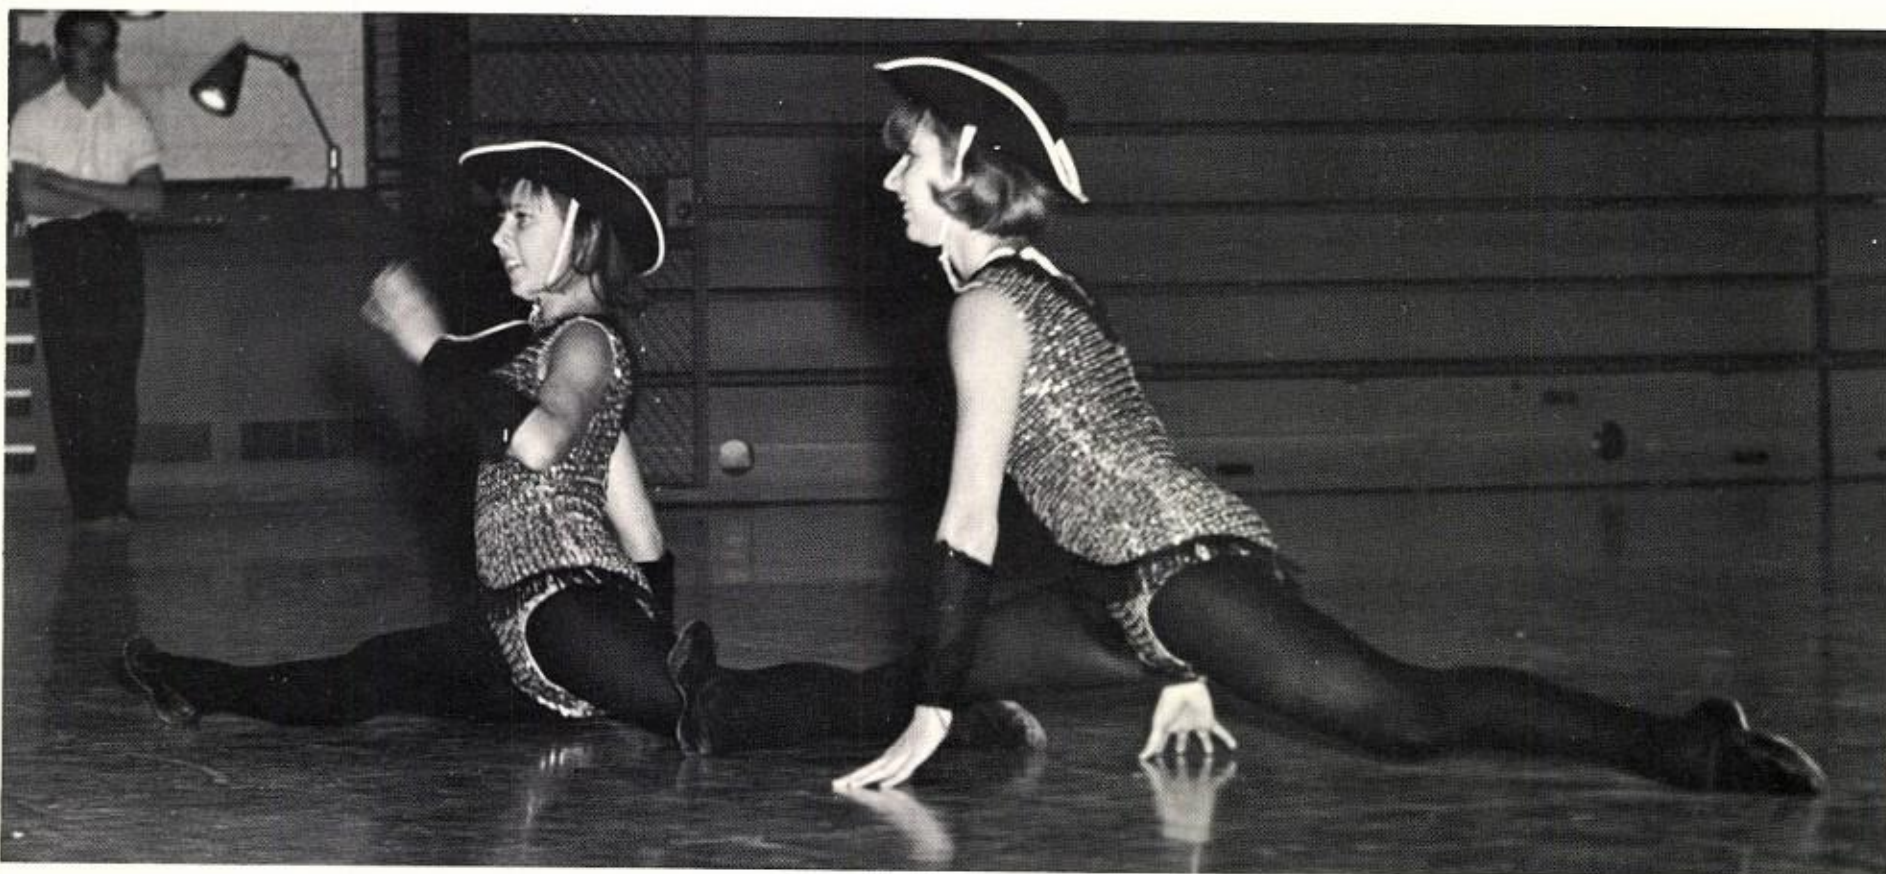

Dads were able to find out just how talented their daughters were when the girls presented skits, danced and sang for them. Both daughters and dads enjoyed and appreciated the opportunity to mingle. Following the talent program held in the Campus gymnasium, refreshments were served in the cafeteria by the Euclidean Club. Many of the beautiful decorations were saved as tokens of this memorable evening.

For entertainment at Dad and Daughter Date Night, Sue Smith sang some favorite folk songs.

dads were honored guests of daughters

Doing a modern dance number were Elaine and Darlene Wasielewski.

Pat Lindgren crowned Jack Nemeth Mr. M.I.G. at the Turnabout Dance.

Students practiced their latest

"Shower of Hearts," theme of the annual Turnabout Dance, was held at the campus gym on February 11, 1967. Streamers of pink, red, and white enveloped the dance floor adding flare to the gala evening. This dance reversed usual dating habits, because boys were asked by girls. Weeks before the Turnabout, the Most Ideal Guy had been selected by all of the girls. Girls Club sponsored a wonderful evening. The proceeds of the dance went to the American Field Service Fund.

Sue O'Connor anxiously pinned Marsha McKeon's corsage while Steve Swann looked on.

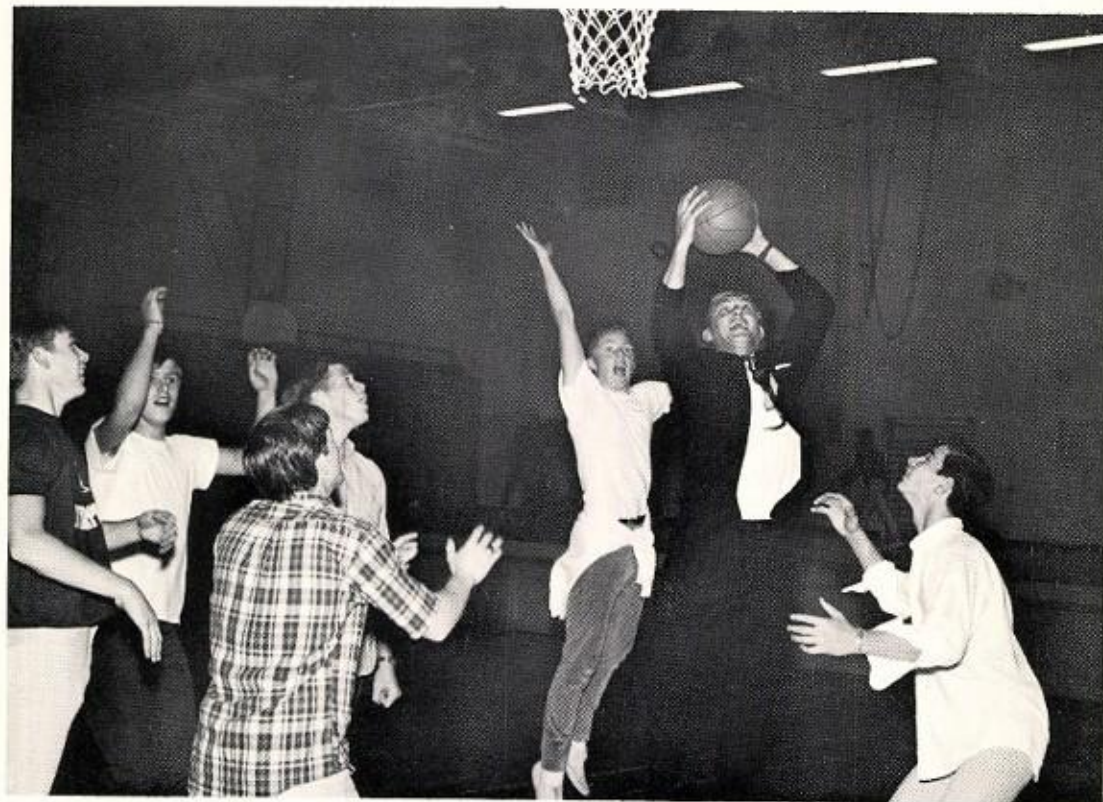

Jorge Moreno, candidate for Mr. M.I.G. and Jan Wastak, took part in the crowning ceremony of the Turnabout Dance.

Barb Russell and Vic Gustofson watched couples dance to the music of G.C. and the Viscounts.

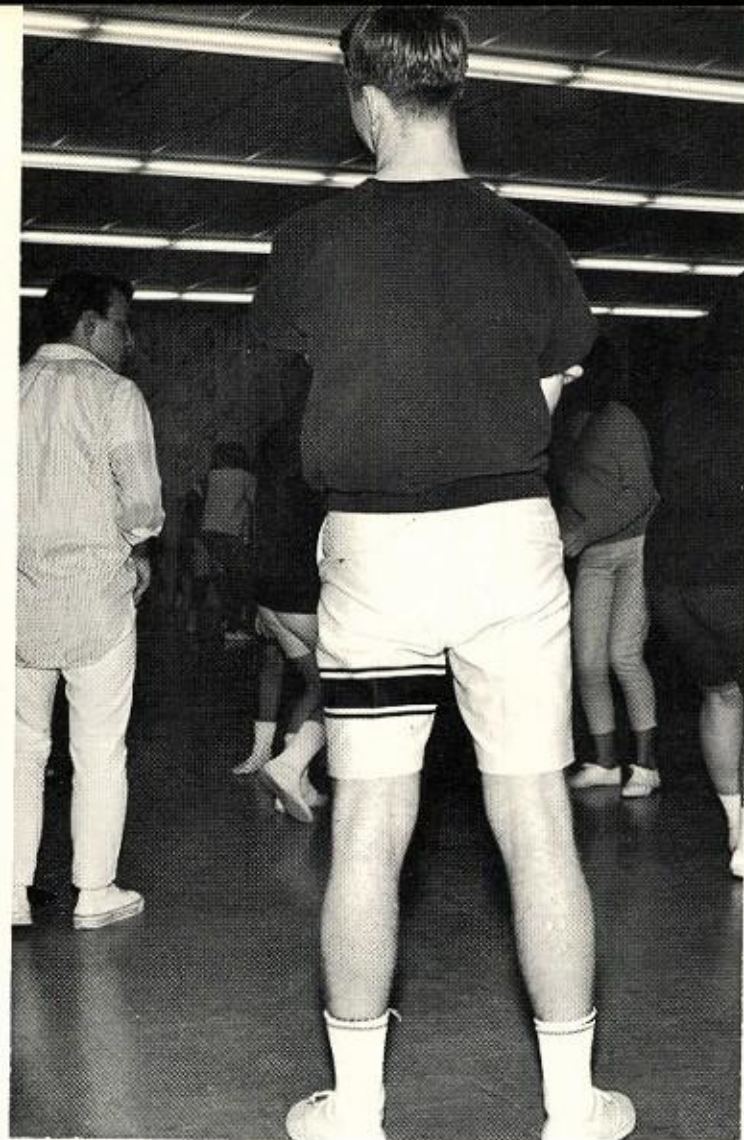

Pat Ickes and Sandy Paraday showed their dates, Mike McCormick and Rich Buroff the bids they received at the 1967 Turnabout Dance.

Caught in an enthusiastic game of basketball were Rick Paus, Dan Strutzenberg, Rich Lysen, Don Larson, Art Nyberg, Mr. Gross, and Peter Davidovitch.

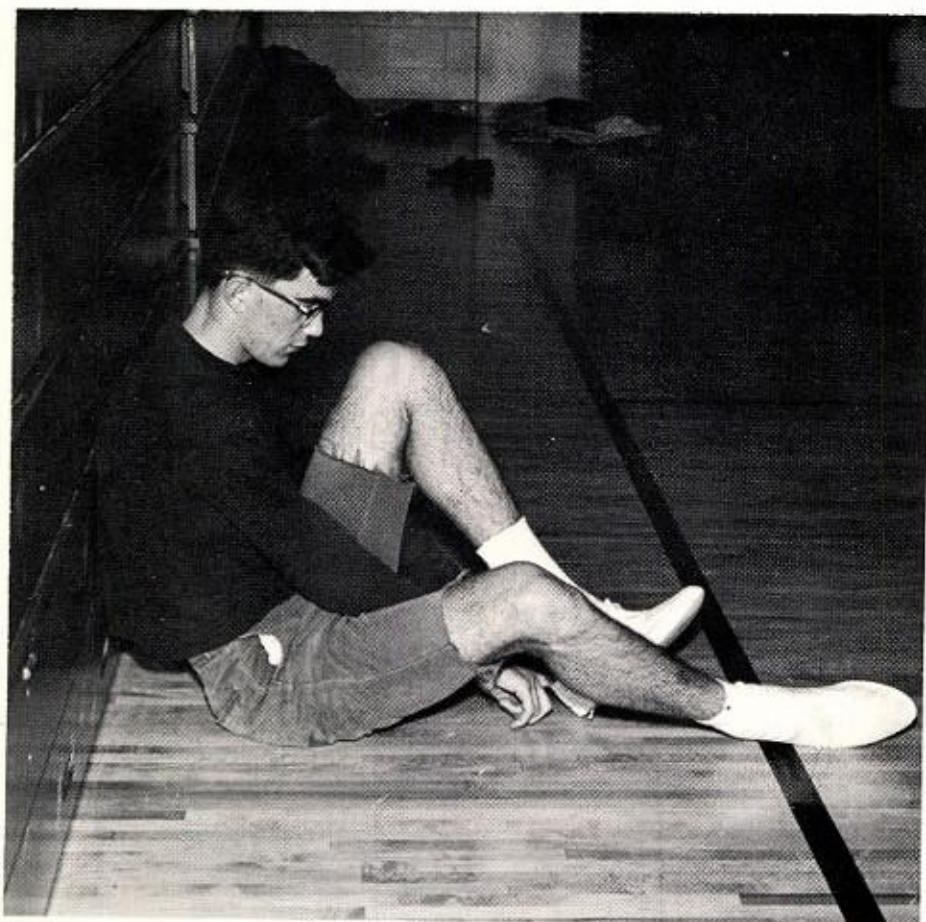

Dancers at the gym jam were carefully surveyed by Bob Modder.

dance steps at gay gym jam

Friday evening, November 18, 1966, found many students back in the gym, not for a class but for fun. Actually, the students crowding into the gym were there to participate in a gym jam. Activities such as volleyball, basketball, shuffleboard, and table tennis made up a part of the fun for the evening. After several hours of fun and exercise in the gym, the crowd all assembled in the cafeteria, where refreshments were served to the hungry and thirsty participants. Later, they returned to the gym to dance to the music of "The New Company of Sound."

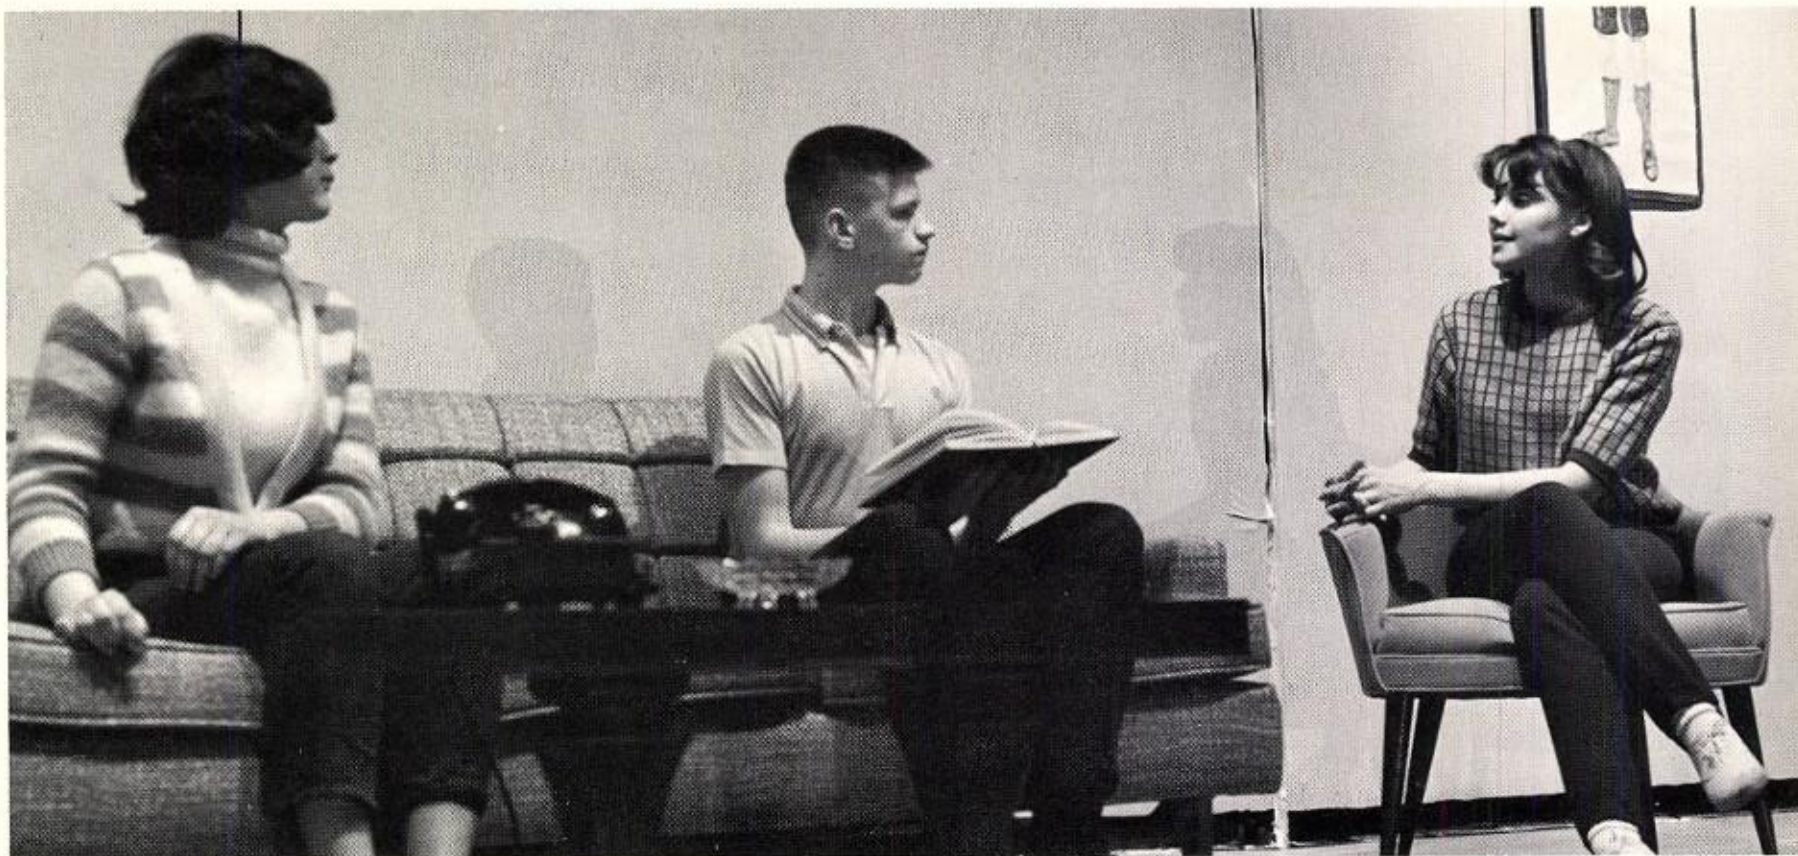

After much rigorous activity, Robert Marta paused for a brief rest and the instant recuperation of youth.

Practice shots helped Rita Mitchell warm up for a game of table tennis.

Studied concentration on the dance was the key to enjoyment, as shown by John Goldenstern and Sharon Galvin at the gym jam.

Joanne Sharka rehearsed her part as a "nosey neighbor" with Betty Sumner and George Engelmann for the junior class play, Mrs. McThing.

Through play productions students gained

Betty Sumner gave George Engelmann some serious advice as she played the part of his mother in Mrs. McThing.

The junior class of 1966 presented a play that combined comedy with mystery, Mrs. McThing. The memorization of so many lines and acting were new experiences for some juniors. The actors were, however, able to coax the audience into understanding the characters which ranged from witches to gangsters.

The ritual of separate junior and senior class plays came to an end this year when The Diary of Anne Frank was presented in the fall. Any student attending the campus building could demonstrate his talents to the dramatic productions. Other students in the Drama Club assisted in such things as make-up and directing.

Scott McNally, Larry Kenelly and Gene Hubacek, who played the parts of gangsters, teased downhearted George Engelmann in a cheap restaurant setting of the junior class play.

The junior and senior cast for the Diary of Anne Frank consisted of the following members: (seated) Michele Zurik, Karen Swanson, Ed Fischer, Peggy Ziegler. (standing) Kathy O'Hare, Pat Dillon, Carolyn Bender, Mike Brester, Gary Kiner, and Doug Vandermeer.

experience in drama and comedy

A family argument between Karen Swanson and Mike Brewster had a shocking effect upon Michele Zurik as she portrayed Anne in the school play, the Diary of Anne Frank.

Soft tropical music of the junior-senior prom put Sunny Potter and Ron Policky in a gay, romantic mood.

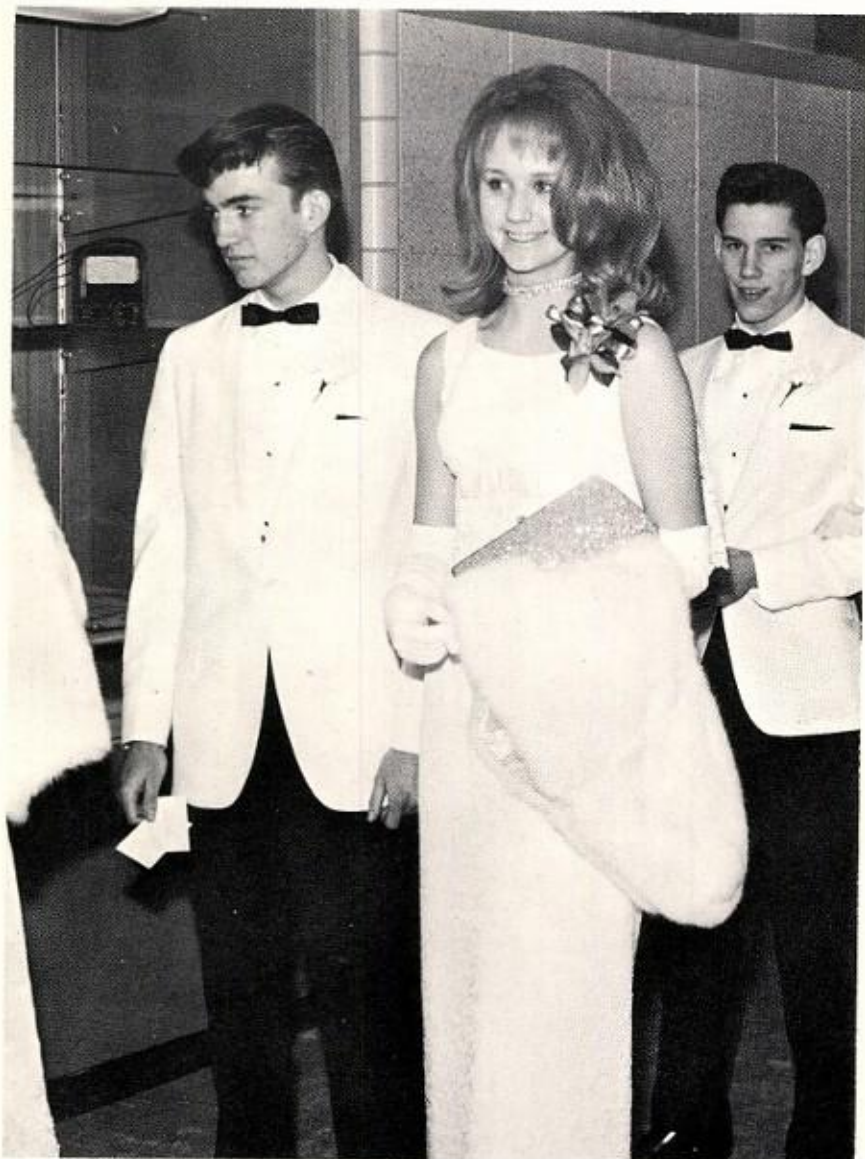

Posing as natives to highlight the tropical setting were Linda Heikes, Janice Schweda, and Jackie Petty.

"Tropical Splendor" entranced beautiful

The theme of the prom was Tropical Splendor. The theme was carried out in the decorations that transformed the gym into a tropical island. Girls dressed in grass skirts and Hawaiian costumes served refreshments. The couples danced to the soft music of the well-known Mel Roland Band, filling the air with romantic tunes. After the prom the couples left to keep reservations at some of the most well-known restaurants in the downtown Chicago area. The next day many of the more adventure-some students braved the cool air for a day at the Sand Dunes.

Checking the activity tickets of Cathy Mioni and Jim Marsavella, Miss Mesenkop and Mrs. Bruce complimented the attractive couple.

Jim Colbert, Jane Gustafson and Norm Schling were full of anticipation as they arrived at the long-awaited and very important junior-senior prom.

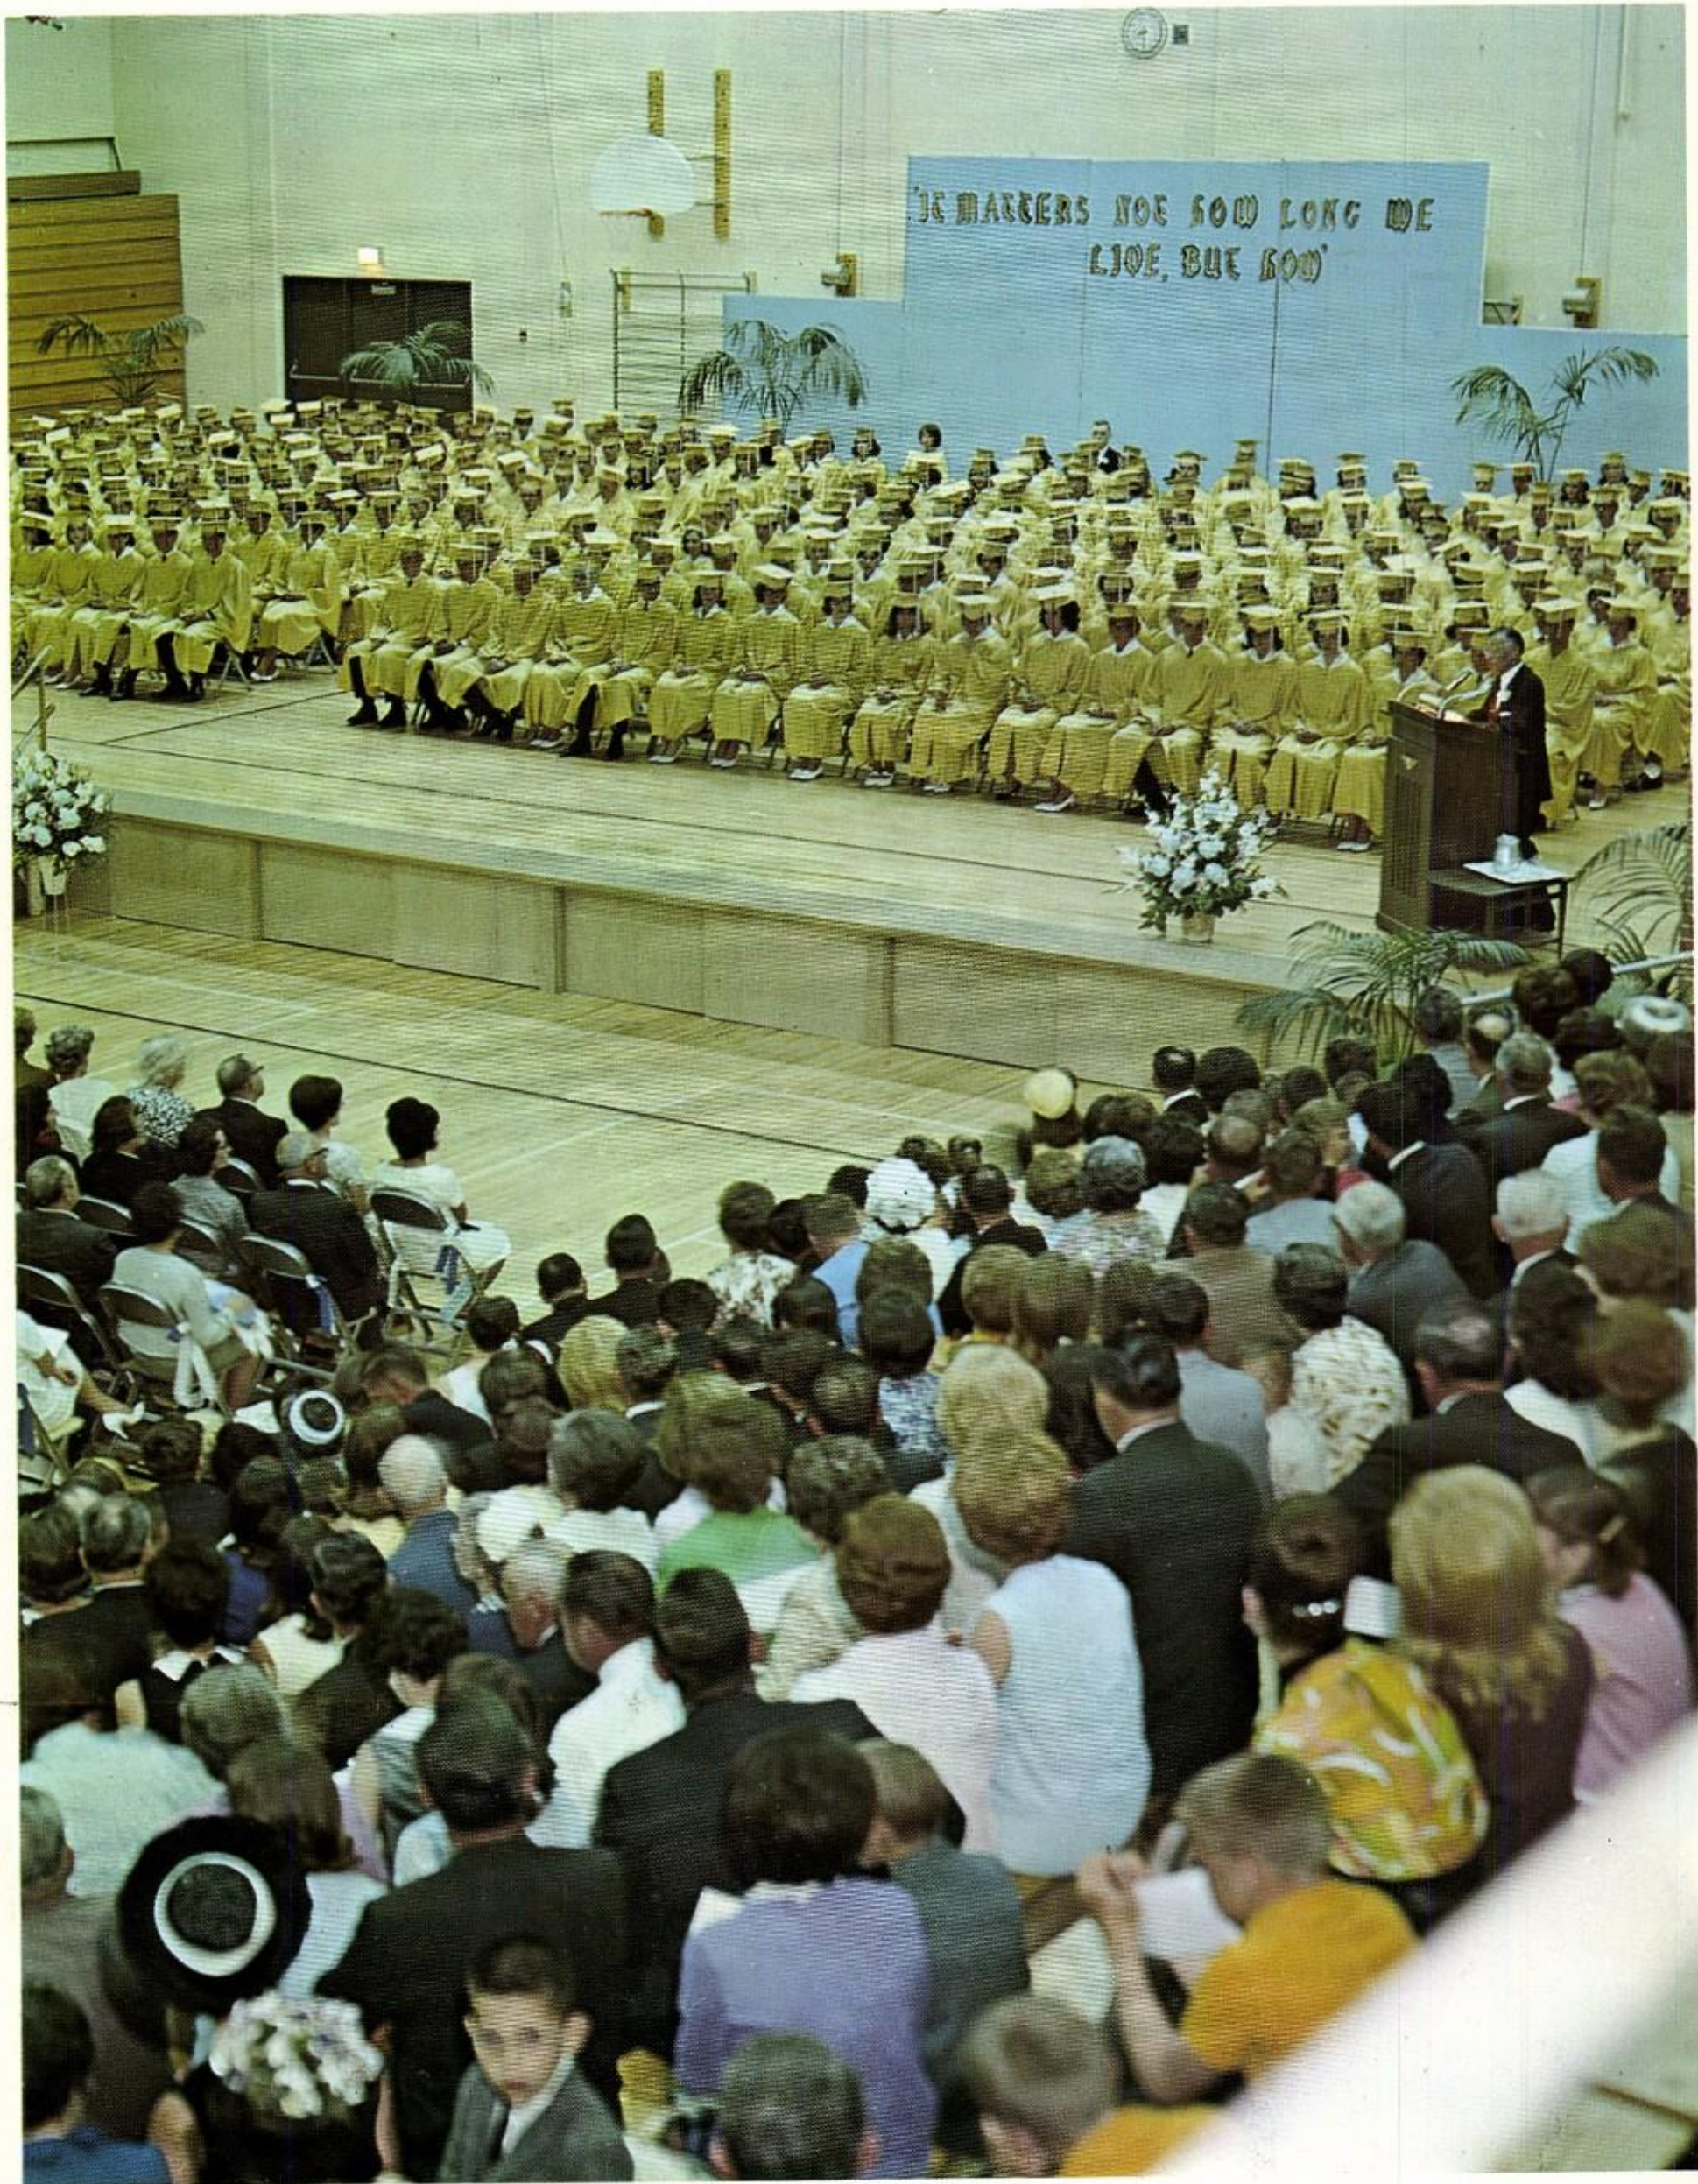

Sandy Dorl and Ron Planis found a quiet corner and a palm tree where they could take in all the magic of the prom, "Tropical Splendor."

maidens and their handsome beaux

Ron Pollicky, Sunny Potter, Mike Minervini and Cindy Kirk

found a few vacant chairs amidst the palm trees where they could visit comfortably and enjoy the other tropical prom decorations.

Graduation climaxed formative school years

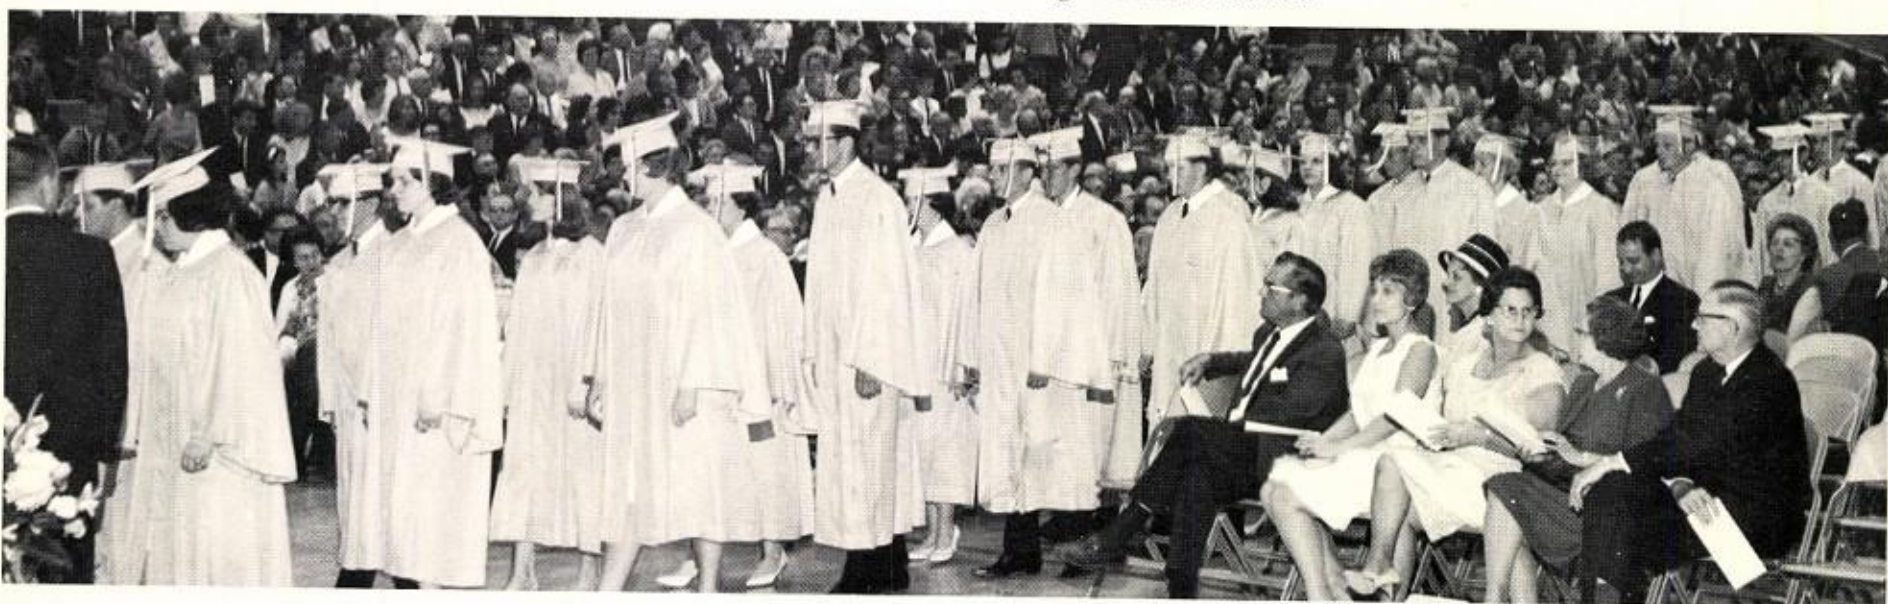

In preparation for graduation, Mrs. Otten took the necessary measurements for Ed Larsen.

Last words of wisdom were spoken by guest speaker Dr. Carl Winters.

Many seniors will recall graduation as the most memorable event of high school. The dignity of the ceremony and rewarding feeling of having earned a diploma will be retained by the students graduating for many years. Families of the graduates attended the ceremony with pride, and every one listened intently as the speakers expounded upon the future. The climax of the evening was, of course, the thrilling moment when each student received his diploma, his ticket to the future.

Intent parents watched with eager eyes in hopes of seeing their son or daughter in the graduation ceremonies.

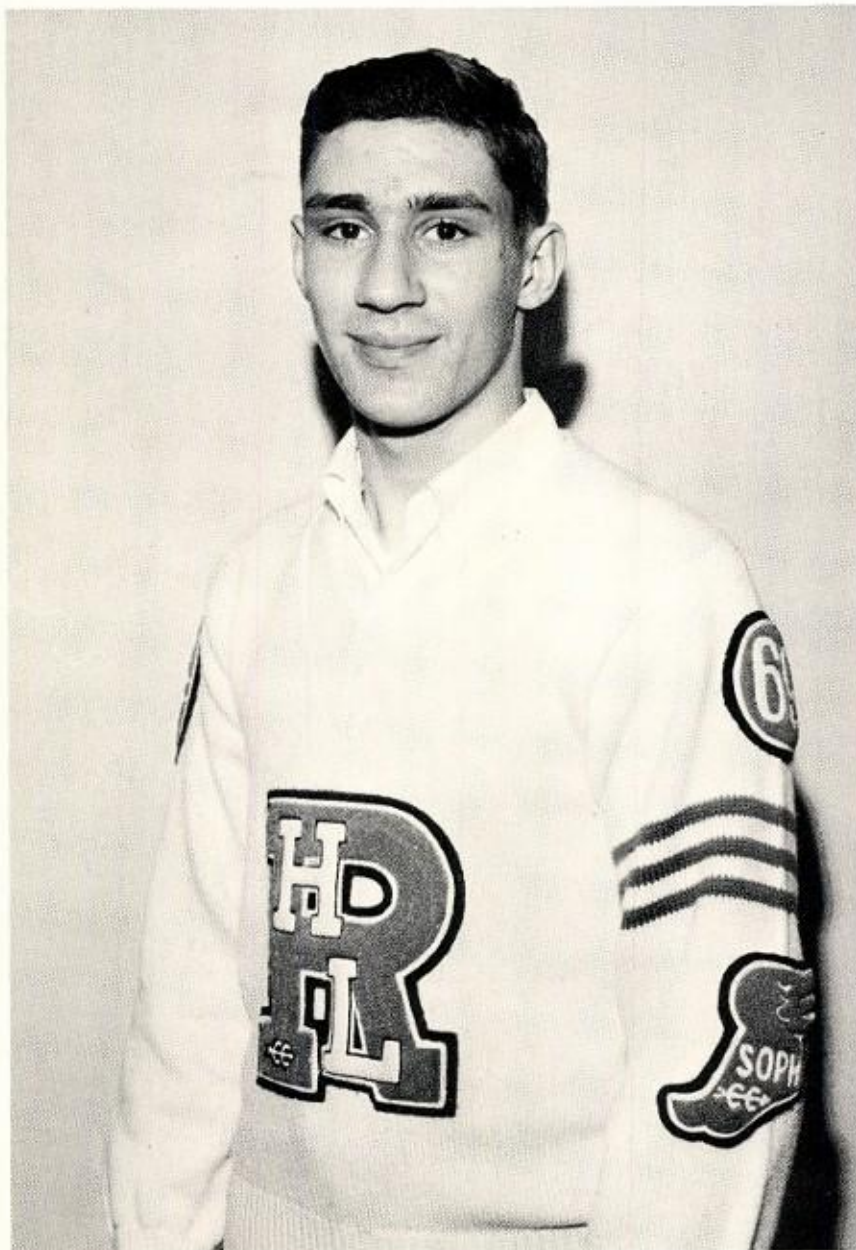

Winner of a free hard covered yearbook was the cover designer. Runners up and the winner, with their covers were Janet Kumingo, Janice King, Ed Heffernan, this years' designer, Antonine Federico, and Tina Cashia.

CANDIDS

School life was accented

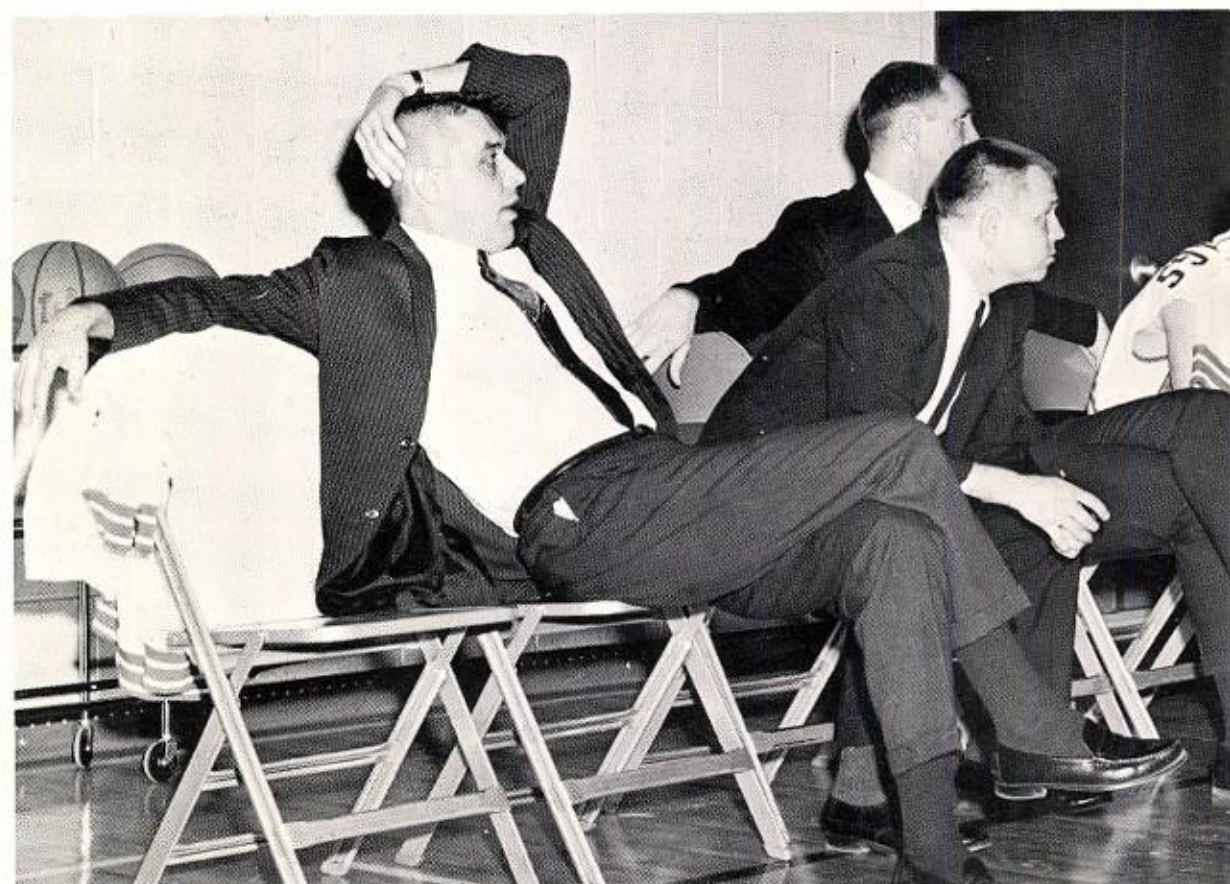

Playing the part of Jackie Gleason, Wayne Waller had a lighthearted discussion with Sue Bussean as Jimmy Durante.

A brief interlude at the drinking fountain proved to be quite refreshing to Yvonne Hartman.

In a bit unorderly fashion, the boys lined up for their first Harold L. Richards identification pictures.

A bit frustrated during a basketball game, Mr. James relaxed into a bit unusual position.

Latest shoe styles brought attention to the feet.

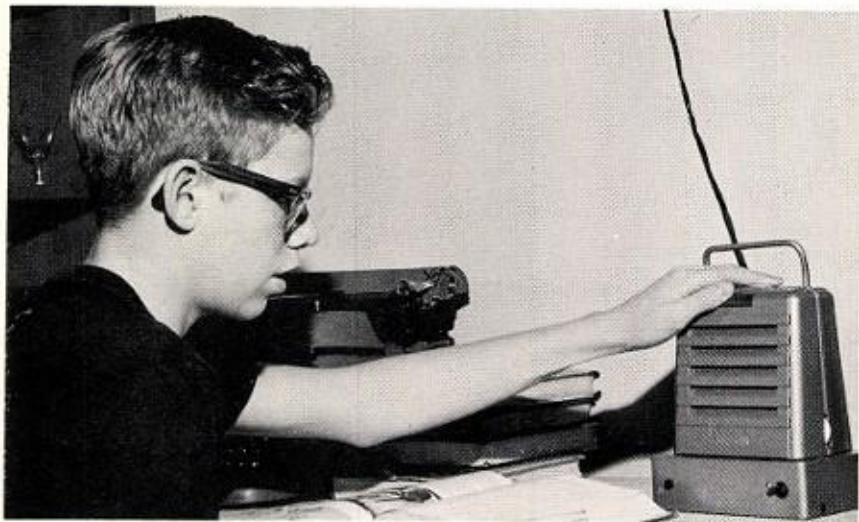

by various enjoyable events

Student teachers gained valuable experience through help of permanent teachers.

Tele-prompter aided students in receiving school work while recuperating at home.

Along with eating their meal, some students helped cut letters for posters during lunch period.

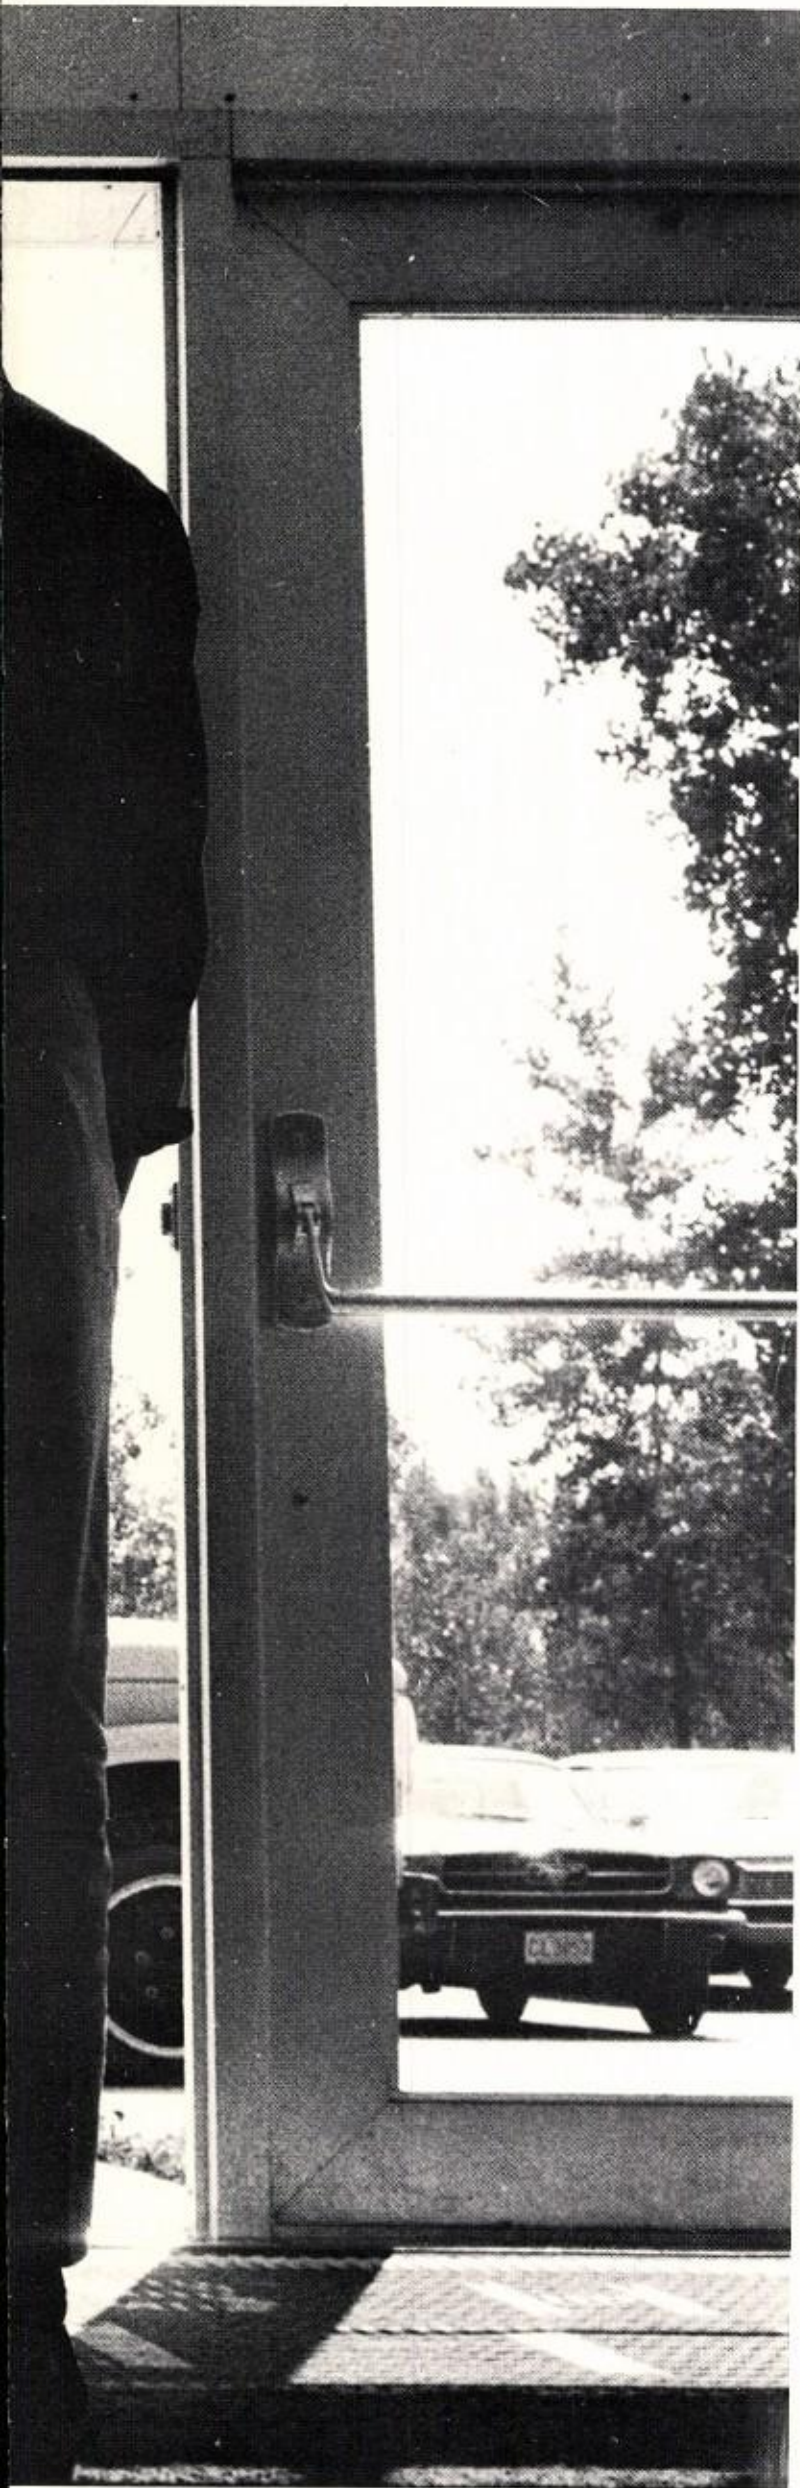

Bulldog mascot was viewed by many students at the Homecoming Dance.

Foreign exchange student from Eisenhower, Jorge Mareno, played popular songs while Mrs. Beatie and family sang along.

SUMMATION

After a record-breaking season of winter weather, seniors were as surprised to see themselves ready to graduate from high school as they were to see spring. All students were a bit awed as they watched the year come to a close. There were, however, many experiences that would remain fresh in the minds of most students. Memories such as beating Dwight D. Eisenhower High School to win our first conference basketball game during the winter and watching our first beautiful homecoming parade last fall will not easily be erased. Students will be surprised to find that they not only recall the highlights of the year but also multitudes of casual everyday occurrences. Exchanging smiles and jokes in the cafeteria and hallways, fighting lockers that jammed, rushing from gym class, and preparing homework assignments will all leave their special mark on the pages of memory. As students continue throughout life to acquire more knowledge and experience, all will have a warm and pleasant feeling for the educational years they spent at Harold L. Richards High School.

GOLDEN YEAR STAFF

Many people generously contributed to the cooperative production of the 1967 Golden Year. The publisher, the Norman King Company of Des Plaines, Illinois, was devoted to the creation of the kind of yearbook the staff desired. Excellent photography was produced by the skill and patience of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Cornejo and other photographers of the Root Photographers Studio of Chicago, Illinois. Special thanks were due to Dave Johnston, a senior at campus, for producing many excellent photographs for the use of the staff. The yearbook staff was especially indebted to Mrs. Norma Bruce, yearbook advisor, for her dedication and guidance. Many students and teachers contributed important time and effort to this publication. The staff, therefore, gratefully acknowledges its indebtedness for all contributions of creative talent and effort from all the people involved. Many dedicated students on the staff were determined that the 1967 Golden Year will be enjoyed and treasured through the years as one of the best yearbooks ever produced.
